Advises delay, however, for children

U.S. panel urges 'go-ahead' for adult swine flu shots

WASHINGTON (AP) — Enough swine flu vaccine will be ready this summer to begin inoculating millions of adults shortly after Labor Day, U.S. health officials say. But vaccination of younger Americans will likely be delayed pending further studies of side effects.

Dr. Saul Krugman of New York University said Tuesday that dose and composition standards for the adult vaccines should be ready within two weeks so manufacturers can go into full production.

"We know now that in the age group of 25 or so and above it will be possible to recommend a dose that can be well tolerated," said Krugman, member of a Center for Disease Control advisory committee.

Federal health advisory committees recommended Tuesday that the $135-million vaccination program move ahead to immunize the nation's adults as soon as possible, but they advised delaying shots for children and young people until more studies are made.

Dr. David J. Sencer, director of the U.S. Center for Disease Control (CDC) in Atlanta, said vaccination of the young should begin by late fall or early winter following studies of what type of vaccine at what doses should be used.

The bodies recommending a go-ahead with the adult part of the program were the Advisory Committee on Influenza Protection to the CDC, and the Panel on Viral and Rickettsial Diseases of the Food and Drug Administration's Bureau of Biologics.

Both committees' recommendations will go to Dr. Theodore Cooper, assistant secretary for health of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Cooper can order implementation of the vaccination program after it is set up.

In their deliberations, the committees considered results released Monday of the first human trials of swine flu vaccines.

Those studies with more than 5,000 persons concluded that the vaccines appeared safe and effective in adults. However, they showed side effects in children were higher than expected with the most effective vaccines.

While these side effects — including mild fever, general malaise and headache — were no more severe than with other flu vaccines and showed in only a small percentage of children, researchers said a mass-immunization program would leave too many youngsters affected.

If there were an emergency situation with swine flu spreading rapidly, then the side effects would be considered low enough to vaccinate all children, researchers said. But since the anticipated disease has not yet appeared, there is time to pursue a better vaccine program, they said.

Further tests with children will be completed in August, the committees said, and then a program for younger Americans can be put together.

An A-strain of influenza virus — dubbed swine flu — surfaced at Ft. Dix, N.J., last winter and scientists say it could reoccur in the general population in future flu seasons. This flu is similar to one that in 1918 killed 20 millions persons throughout the world.

Kidnaping, conspiracy to murder

Indict Teamsters boss, 4 others

WASHINGTON (AP) — A New Jersey Teamsters union leader, Anthony "Tony Pro" Provenzano, and three other men have been indicted on federal charges of kidnaping and conspiring to murder another New Jersey Teamsters leader 15 years ago, the Justice Department announced today.

The four men were charged in the disappearance and death of Anthony Castellito, who was secretary treasurer of Teamsters Local 560 at the time of his death in 1961.

Provenzano, 59, now is secretary treasurer of the teamsters local. He also has been a focus of investigators' interest in connection with the disappearance and apparent death of former Teamsters president James R. Hoffa.

The sealed indictment was returned in U.S. District Court in New York on Tuesday and opened today.

Provenzano and two of the other men also were indicted by a county grand jury for murdering Castellito.

The others indicted along with Provenzano are Salvatore Briguglio, 46, business agent for Local 560; Harold Konigsberg, 47, currently jailed at the Clinton Correctional Institution in Dannemora, N.Y., and George Vangelakos, 47, an employe of a Bayonne, N.J., trucking firm.

Provenzano, Briguglio and Konigsberg also were named defendants in the murder indictment returned in Ulster County, N.Y.

The department said Provenzano and Briguglio were arrested today by FBI agents.

The indictment charged that the four men conspired from Jan. 1, 1961, to Sept. 30, 1961, to kidnap Castellito "for the purpose of murdering" him.

The defendants, along with two unindicted coconspirators, agreed to lure Castellito from New Jersey to his farm in Ulster County where he was murdered by Briguglio, Konigsberg and the unindicted coconspirators, the indictment said.

The unindicted coconspirators are Salvatore Sinno and Edward Skowron.

While Castellito was being killed Vangelakos dug a grave for the body, the indictment said. But the burial plan was changed and the body was taken back to New Jersey and buried there, the indictment said.

Provenzano arranged the scheme and paid Konigsberg $15,000 for his participation in the murder, the government charged.

Provenzano appointed Bruguglio as business agent for the Teamsters local as his reward for joining in the scheme, the indictment said.

And Provenzano arranged "to be in Florida during the time when Anthony Castellito was to be murdered."

The murder was committed on June 5, 1961, the indictment said.

Each of the two counts of the federal indictment carries a maximum penalty of life imprisonment.

Hoffa has been missing since July 30, 1975, but his body has never been discovered and no one has been charged in connection with the disappearance.

The federal investigation of Hoffa's disappearance focused on Provenzano who served prison time with Hoffa and reportedly opposed his attempt to regain the union presidency.

Law enforcement authorities in New Jersey have said Provenzano has had a long-time connection with organized crime.

Before his disappearance, Hoffa told his wife he was planning to meet Provenzano and Anthony Giacalone, a long time gangster in Detroit, at a restaurant in a Detroit suburb. Hoffa was last seen in the restaurant parking lot.

4 valley men, woman booked in slaying of Mira Loma man

Four men and a woman are in custody on murder charges in connection with the slaying of a Mira Loma man, whose body was found Saturday in La Verne.

Chino police, who arrested the suspects Tuesday, said the victim was believed to have been shot in that city in what may have been a drug-related incident.

The body of Edward Lorenzo Gonzales, 30, of Mira Loma was found in the back seat of his car parked on the railroad tracks west of D Street and south of Arrow Highway in LaVerne. Gonzales had been shot twice.

Los Angeles sheriff's deputies assisting La Verne police in the investigation at the time were uncertain if Gonzales had been killed in La Verne or elsewhere. Deputies also suspected that Gonzales had been killed sometime Friday night.

On Monday, sheriff's deputies contacted Chino police when they learned that Gonzales had been shot on 12th Street near Edison Street in Chino on Friday night.

A joint investigation by Chino officers, La Verne police and Los Angeles deputies led to the arrest Tuesday of Florentina "Tina" Meza Roybal, 30, of 6374 Mann St., Mira Loma; Pete Ballesteros, 32, of 13240 Fourth St., Chino; Dennis La Crosse, 38, of Ontario; Ronnie Abilez Loza, 28, of 10775 Vernon St., Ontario; and Robert Fajardo, 28, of 13011 Carillo St., Chino.

The five suspects were arrested on warrants charging murder. Bail was set at $100,000 each. The woman was booked in West End Jail and the men in Chino Jail.

Chino Police Chief Jerry Doyle said this morning that the motive for the murder "may have been drug-related, but we are not certain yet," Doyle said that the shooting death of Gonzales, "as far as we know is not related to the slaying of two members of an anti-vandalism patrol at Our Lady of Guadalupe Church in Chino last month. But we are asking questions."

Doyle said the alleged murder weapon that may have been used to kill Gonzales had not been found. He said the search for the weapon would continue today.

Doyle said that further information about the slaying may be released later today, following a conference with West Valley Deputy Dist. Atty. Mary Fuller.

Doyle said jurisdiction of the case more than likely would be in Chino, but said that the other agencies involved could bring related charges.

Ventura County blaze still out of control

THOUSAND OAKS (AP) — Nearly 300 firemen from three counties battled a 600-acre brush fire burning out of control in hilly terrain early today and feared weather forecasts of strong winds might push the blaze into new areas.

Ventura County Fire Department Capt. Audie Callaway said predicted strong northeasterly winds this morning will mean the fire may spread more.

"We're hoping to hold it through the night," Callaway reported near midnight Tuesday, "but if that weather forecast happens, we'll be out there all day tomorrow."

Callaway said no structures were in danger and no injuries have been reported from the fire. But, he said, combined units from the state and three counties have been unable to contain the blaze.

In another major fire, Los Angeles County fire officials said a 125-acre brush fire which blackened a canyon area near the Saugus housing development of Friendly Valley was contained late Tuesday.

The roof of one house was damaged and one fireman injured in that blaze, county fire spokesmen said. At the fire's peak, 400 men were on the lines protecting the housing development, officials said.

About 10 county fire units also tackled a 25-acre blaze in the Agoura area. The fire broke out in a brushy area off Lost Hill Road, just north of the Ventura Freeway, shortly after midnight.

Fire officials said no structures were threatened.

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Photos of the Martian site chosen for Viking 1's July 4 landing streamed in from space to the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, where scientists will study them closely to make sure the area is safe for the rocket's landing.

The 58 photos were taken in about six minutes Tuesday by Viking's twin cameras from its newly established orbit. They came to earth late Tuesday and early today via radio transmission.

"We've made a lot of estimates (of the nature of the surface) from what little evidence we have, and the proof of the pudding is starting to come in today," said Dr. Harold Masursky. He is a member of the Viking orbiter photography team and is a U.S. Geological Survey scientist.

The landing site is called Chryse. It's a basin area at the mouth of a huge valley where water may have flowed at one time.

Pieced together in a photo mosaic, the pictures will be studied by geologists to determine what the surface is made of and whether boulders, potholes or soft sand pose any hazards for the three-legged Viking lander, which will separate from the mother ship.

For the rest of June, the spacecraft will circle the planet — and pass the landing area — once a day. Mars is about half the size of earth but its day, called a "sol" by scientists, is slightly longer than earth's: 24.6 hours.

Chino awarded second $474,000 federal grant

Congressman Jim Lloyd, D-35th Dist., announced today that the City of Chino has been awarded a federal grant totaling $474,000 to finance community improvement projects ranging from park construction to sewer line replacements.

"This is an extremely significant grant from the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD)," Lloyd said.

"The grant and the improvement-type projects that will result represent the major emphasis of my work in Congress which is local control to address the needs of the community," Lloyd said.

The valley lawmaker, a former West Covina mayor and city councilman, said local government officials and citizens are in a better position to define local problems and determine solutions.

"Last year under this same program, Chino received the identical amount of $474,000 and the total for the three-year program will be $1.9 million," Lloyd said.

The congressman indicated the Community Block Grant Program involved the planning of local officials and a citizens' committee representative of all segments of the community.

"This grant is a total community effort and we all can take pride in it," Lloyd said.

Open space project up for Walnut vote

Action on a landscape and open space maintenance district, protested earlier this month by 200 of the residents it would affect, is scheduled tonight at a Walnut City Council meeting.

If the council establishes the district, homeowners in the Vracin, Grant and La Solana tracts must pay for landscaping and open space maintenance.

Councilmen had continued public hearings on the district from June 9.

Also scheduled tonight is an appeal hearing on a tentative tract map of 10 acres north of Carrey Road and west of Lemon Avenue.

Daniel Vracin owns the property. There are plans to build 38 homes on it.

Like the landscaping and open space maintenance district hearing, the tract map hearing was continued from June 9.

The Vracin property lies within Walnut Civic Center overlay zone.

Councilman William Wentworth appealed a favorable Planning Commission decision on the residential tract map submitted by the Vracin Co. He contends the firm's plans are not consistent with the city's general plan.

At the last meeting councilmen received petitions with approximately 700 names protesting plans to buy the other 9.44 acres lying within the civic center overlay zone.

They objected to the city's offer of $110,575 the council planned to make for the acreage, part of the Woods estate.

Since then the property reportedly has been sold to a private party for $160,000, eliminating any plans for a civic center in that zone.

Hearing slated in shooting

Victor Lee Denham, 30-year-old off-duty Los Angeles police officer accused of shooting his girl friend's male companion May 10, faces preliminary hearing June 28 in Citrus Municipal Court, West Covina.

Denham, an eight-year veteran of LAPD, shot private detective Robert Lee Petrasich, 26, of Monterey Park, when he found Petrasich with Sandra Broussard, 26, in her home at 19381 Springport St., Rowland Heights, sheriff's investigators said.

The victim was shot in the lower chest and is recovering. The woman was not injured.

$364,000 is voted for renewal unit in Pomona

A $364,000 budget for the city's redevelopment effort has been approved by the Pomona City Council.

The budget includes $250,000 in working capital for redevelopment projects and $30,000 for the hiring of a redevelopment director.

The council approved the budget unanimously Monday. Most of the funds are contingent upon the continuation of the federal revenue sharing program.

Charles Stillinger, chairman of the city's Redevelopment Commission, told the council the commission would like to begin work of a redevelopment handbook, establish minimum criteria for redevelopment projects and promote redevelopment as its goals this year.

The council unanimously approved the suggested goals.

In other business Monday, the council approved a request by Gene Stallians, owner of Paul's Yellow Cab Co. in Pomona, for a fare increase. The new rate will be 80 cents for the first one eighth of a mile and 20 cents for each additional one fifth of a mile. The present fare is 80 cents for the first one eighth and 20 cents for each additional one fourth mile.

Assemblymen reject Brown's budget in farm labor dispute

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Despite Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s new farm labor board appointments, the Assembly has refused to approve a $12.8 billion state budget containing money for the board.

The 46-28 vote Tuesday night, eight short of the needed two-thirds, was a setback for the Democratic governor and Assembly leaders who had hoped the appointments would end the nearly five-month-old deadlock.

The budget drawn up by a two-house conference committee for the year starting July 1 includes $6.6 million to revive the Agricultural Labor Relations Board, which has been dormant since Feb. 6.

Assembly Speaker Leo McCarthy said another vote could come Thursday or Friday, the last day before the legislature's scheduled five-week recess. The Senate is to take up the budget Thursday.

The ALRB, Brown's proudest achievement in office, stopped holding elections when its funding was held up by growers' legislative allies, who claimed the board was biased in favor of Cesar Chavez' United Farm Workers.

Brown filled three vacancies on the five-member board Sunday. That gave rural Democrats, who had been caught in the middle on the issue, a chance to support ALRB funding as an alternative to a UFW-backed initiative on the November state ballot.

But most major growers continue to oppose revival of the board, saying changes in the law are needed first — particularly severe restrictions on union organizers' right to enter farms.

"A bad law, no matter who you choose to administer it, is still a bad law," said Assemblyman Ken Maddy, R-Fresno, a principal spokesman for farm-area Republicans.

All 25 Republicans refused to vote for the budget. They were joined by eight of the 54 Democrats — several over farm labor, the others over omissions of such spending programs as research into the little known killer disease lupus erethymetosis.

Though farm labor was at the center of the budget dispute, such issues as school finance, postcard voter registration and cash supplies to local governments and mental hospitals surfaced Tuesday night as both parties sought a way out.

Assembly GOP leader Paul Priolo of Pacific Palisades, who was to present his party's demands to McCarthy today, wouldn't spell them out Tuesday night.

First Lady shaken as death strikes

MOMENT OF SILENT PRAYER

First Lady Betty Ford asks audience at a bicentennial dinner for the Jewish National Fund of America to observe a moment of silent prayer for Maurice S. Sage, president of the fund, as Secret Service men try to revive Sage who collapsed and died Tuesday.

Leads group in prayer as Zionist leader on dais collapses and dies

NEW YORK (AP) — A gala affair to raise funds for an American Bicentennial Park in Israel ended in tragedy when a Zionist leader on the dais with First Lady Betty Ford collapsed and died.

As policemen tried in vain Tuesday night to save the life of Dr. Maurice S. Sage, Mrs. Ford led the 2,500 guests in prayer.

"Dear Father in Heaven," the First Lady began, her voice trembling. "We ask thy blessing on this magnificent man. We know you can take care of him. ..."

Sage, 56-year-old head of Sage Laboratories, Inc., and the recently elected president of the Jewish National Fund of America, which was sponsoring the event, was pronounced dead at Polyclinic Hospital less than an hour later.

Sage had finished speaking and was standing beside Mrs. Ford on the dais as she accepted from another official a decorated Bible from Israel.

As Sage slumped to the floor, Secret Service agents guarding the First Lady rushed to his side and began efforts to revive him. He was later taken by ambulance to the hospital.

Mrs. Ford turned pale and took her seat when Sage collapsed. Moments later, she stood and stepped to the microphone.

"Can we all bow our heads for a moment," she said, "and say a prayer for Rabbi Sage. He is going to the hospital and needs our prayers. Would you rise and bow your heads."

As the shaken audience rose, Mrs. Ford paused, then continued.

"I'll have to say it in my own words," she said, and began her prayer, which lasted about two minutes.

Mrs. Ford then said to the audience, "Thank you very much. I know it will mean a great deal to him and I know it means a great deal to me. Thank you."

The First Lady's press secretary said Mrs. Ford's erroneous reference to Sage as a rabbi resulted from an impression she received during a meeting with Sage at a Zionist function about a year ago.

Sage was the son of a former chief rabbi of Paris and fled France during World War II.

He began his chemical and pharmaceutical firm in 1944 and later operated a brokerage business. But his real love was Zionism, and at one time he served as president of the Religious Zionists of America.

Survivors include Sage's widow, Lillian, two sons and a daughter.

Carter calls for partnership between U.S., other nations

NEW YORK (AP) — Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter said today the United States must abandon what he called its "Lone Ranger" foreign policy and organize free nations to share responsibility for "a just and stable world order."

Carter, the Democrats' probable nominee, called for collective action by the world's democracies in "creative alliances" to help stabilize world prices, ease military tensions and combat hunger and poverty.

Carter painted his concept of "creative alliances" in broad strokes, giving few specific details.

He said it is time to form a partnership between North America, Western Europe and Japan, and that there is a need for increased unity and consultation with Israel, Australia, New Zealand and other democratic societies.

Carter also said in a speech prepared for the Foreign Policy Association that:

—NATO forces must be re-equipped with up-to-date weapons to balance modernized Warsaw Pact forces, but he said the costs must be shared by NATO partners, not borne solely by the United States, and that no effort should be spared to seek a balanced reduction of forces on both sides.

—Increased cooperation between East and West is desirable "but we will never seek accommodation at the expense of our own national interests or the interests of our allies."

Carter has said previously that the United States "has gone overboard in detente" with the Soviet Union and the results, including the U.S.-Soviet joint manned space flight, wheat deals and strategic arms limitations talk (SALT) agreements, have been basically negative for this country.

—He is "particularly concerned" by the nation's "role as the world's leading arms salesman" and that the United States and its allies must work to reduce the flow of arms into developing nations.

—It will be possible to withdraw U.S. forces from South Korea over a time span to be determined after consultation with both South Korea and Japan, but the United States should make clear that "internal oppression" in South Korea is "repugnant to our people."

The Foreign Policy Association is composed of academicians and others who meet periodically for seminars.

Hahn fails to halt spread of freeway carpool lanes

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An attempt to halt the spread of bus-carpool lanes to freeways other than the Santa Monica Freeway — where the notorious Diamond Lanes debuted — has been spurned by the Board of Supervisors.

By a 3-2 vote Tuesday the board rejected Supervisor Kenneth Hahn's attempt to have the county adopt an anti-Diamond Lane policy. Hahn sought to head off tentative plans by the state Department of Transportation to inaugurate a bus and carpool lane system on a 10-mile stretch of the San Diego Freeway.

Speaking for the majority, Supervisor James Hayes conceded that the Diamond Lane is "poorly put together." However, Hayes insisted that the experimental transportation project deserves more proving time.

Supervisors freeze pay of top officials

The supervisors' action Tuesday in effect froze the salaries of Sheriff Peter J. Pitchess, Dist. Atty. John Van de Kamp, Assessor Philip Watson and Chief Administrative Officer Harry L. Hufford.

The freeze also left top-level county salaries well below the pay of comparative Los Angeles city officials, such as Police Chief Edward M. Davis, whose pay will be hiked to $69,760 annually under a 11.5 per cent increase.

Schabaraum opposed setting a salary ceiling and contended it would make the county's top officials "scapegoats" for the county's tight fiscal situation.

Supervisor Ed Edelman conceded a ceiling would hinder efforts to entice the best talent into county service, but in the end he backed the board's action.

The board also voted an 8¼ per cent raise for county department heads not at top-scale and a 5 per cent boost for management employes below the level of department heads.

Five management employes, however, were barred from the 5 per cent salary hike because it would put them within $100 of the $49,500 earned by the heads of their departments.

The board's action represented approval of the salary proposals negotiated with 45 bargaining units whose contracts expire July 1, when the salary hikes become effective.

Plan for wealthy to pay some tax near OK

WASHINGTON (AP) — A plan to require wealthy Americans to pay some income tax no matter how many tax loopholes they use is nearing approval in the Senate.

The plan, approved earlier by the Senate Finance Committee, would cost the wealthy $1 billion a year. A bloc of liberal senators is seeking to raise that figure by $200 million and apply the tougher provisions to corporations as well as individuals.

Strengthening this "minimum tax" is a key element of the big tax bill being debated by the Senate.

The minimum tax was enacted in 1969 in an effort to assure that persons using such shelters would pay some income tax. Despite this, it was disclosed earlier this year that 244 Americans earning more than $200,000 paid no income tax in 1974 because of large deductions.

Making the minimum tax even tougher than the committee wants is the most important part of a package of tax amendments offered by the liberals. They were beaten Tuesday in most efforts to eliminate tax shelters for high-income investors.

On a 53-40 vote, the Senate indicated it prefers the milder tax-shelter crackdown approved by the Finance Committee, which would raise investors' taxes by $165 million in 1977, a figure that would drop gradually to $126 million by 1981.

The plan advocated by Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and other liberals would have meant a $200-million increase in taxes in 1977 and gradual increases over the next five years.

Kennedy's proposal would have wiped out tax shelters gained through investment in farming, commercial real estate, equipment leasing and movies. The restrictions would have applied only to investments in obvious tax-avoidance schemes, not to those persons already involved in those businesses.

Driver held in hit-run; boy injured

A young Pomona man was arrested and accused of leaving the scene of a traffic accident in which a 9-year-old Los Angeles boy was injured Tuesday evening.

The suspect, Edward Lee Singleton, 20, of 936 E. La Verne Ave., was booked on suspicion of felonious hit-run driving after he turned himself in to Police Sgt. Richard Hannibal at Garey Avenue and Willow Street later.

Police reported that Singleton and the boy, who was riding a bike, collided as Singleton was turning at Ashfield and Asbury avenues. Witnesses said the driver sped away, and as he did the muffler and tailpipe fell from his car. The car was found a few minutes later parked in the 2100 block of Stocker Street. A few minutes after that, Singleton hailed Hannibal and turned himself in.

The boy, Michael Walker, 9, was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital and transferred to County-USC Medical Center. He was reported in fair condition there today. He was under observation after complaining of stomach pains, a spokeswoman said.

Man beaten, stabbed in park

A Pomona man told police late Tuesday night that he was beaten and stabbed by a group of young men in Sharkie Park who told him the park was theirs and ordered him out.

They also took his pickup truck, he said.

The victim, Richard Jay Johnston, 24, was taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital where physicians removed a broken, five-inch knife blade from his right arm. He was treated for several other puncture wounds in his arms plus bruises and released.

Johnston said he was at the park alone when he was confronted by the group. He said he agreed to leave, but was attacked anyway. During the beating someone went through his pockets and took the keys to his pickup truck. The vehicle was found abandoned in an alley nearby later.

Johnston walked home, despite his injuries. Relatives summoned police.

Vandals in museum

UPLAND police this morning continued their search for vandals who broke into the Chaffey Community Cultural Center at 525 W. 18th St. Monday night and sprayed several museum displays with a fire extinguisher, causing considerable damage.

The vandalism was discovered early Tuesday morning when Mrs. Bea Riggs, volunteer director of the museum, walked through the broken down doors of the building and found a youth spraying some of the displays.

Mrs. Riggs asked the youth what he was doing and he replied "just looking around." The director picked up the telephone to call police to report she had the youth in custody, but carbon dioxide from the fire extinguisher that looked like smoke distracted her. She told the dispatcher she had better call the Fire Department. Meanwhile the youth fled.

Museum spokesmen said that the dollar amount of damage would be difficult to determine, but that some of the objects were damaged to the point where they would have to be repaired by experts.

Police found that about $4 worth of goods possibly were stolen by the vandals.

DNA research rules set

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Institutes of Health today issued long-awaited guidelines for a controversial type of genetic research. They include a ban on some experiments considered too dangerous to perform.

The new rules for recombinant DNA are designed to control what some see as the almost God-like potential of science to create new forms of life.

Critics fear the research could create super disease organisms not found naturally and immune to all defenses against them.

Supporters say the research has vast scientific potential. They envision turning bacteria into little generators of valuable proteins and hormones, such as insulin and blood clotting factor.

Dr. Donald S. Fredrickson, NIH director, said the guidelines for recombinant DNA molecule research are effective immediately at NIH laboratories and those of its contractors and grantees.

NIH said the guidelines are more stringent than proposals it circulated at the first of the year, and stricter than recommendations by an international meeting of scientists issued in 1975.

DNA — deoxyribonucleic acid — is the chemical that forms genes, the basic units of heredity. Recombinant DNA molecules result from recombining in a test tube DNA from different species of life.

Genes for specific inherited traits taken from one species are combined with those of another, usually by removing a gene from a higher organism and putting it into bacteria.

When the modified bacteria reproduces, the offspring contain characteristics of the new gene.

The new guidelines prohibit combining genes from certain risky disease organisms into others; transfering drug-resistant traits to microorganisms that could compromise use of a drug to control disease; and forming recombinants with genes that can synthesize potent poisons. The new directions also prohibit large-scale experiments — those with more than 10 liters of culture — with recombinants known to make harmful products.

However, NIH said specific large-scale experiments that could directly benefit society may be allowed if done under special conditions with specifical approval from NIH:

The guidelines list four classes of laboratories in which the research can be done. Depending upon the experiment and genetic material involved, the laboratories range from common college labs to ones with elaborate systems of airlocks and filters resembling space capsules.

The Recombinant Advisory Committee at NIH, which helped put together the guidelines after conducting public hearings, will remain in existence to interpret the guidelines and answer questions that may arise, Fredrickson said.

It is unknown how much recombinant DNA research is going on, Fredrickson said, "but there are indications that industry already is involved in this research to a wide extent."

Fredrickson said private industry isn't required to report on what kind of research it is doing, nor are the guidelines mandatory for research outside NIH. "It is our hope that they will be effective as guidelines with voluntary compliance," he said.

Several international health and scientific organizations have indicated they plan to adopt the guidelines for research abroad.

Concern about recombinant DNA research has grown as scientific advances pushed its potential from the possible to the probable.

In February, 1975, scientists from around the world gathered at the Asilomar Conference Center in Pacific Grove, California. In an unprecedented move, they agreed that certain DNA experiments should not be performed now.

Court arbitration system to begin statewide

A greater role arbitration in disposing of Los Angeles County Superior Court civil cases seems probable beginning July 1 as a new state-wide system of arbitration replaces the successful voluntary arbitration program which was a model for the state plan, Frank S. Zolin, the court executive officer said.

"Thousands of court trial days have been saved in the nearly five years that the voluntary plan of this court has been in effect, Presiding Judge Robert A. Wenke said.

Wenke explained that an Arbitration Administrative Committee, as required by the new law, has been established by the court. Judge John A. Loomis is chairman.

The original arbitration program disposed of more than 2,000 cases after being put into effect in November 1971. It made unnecessary trials which would have taken 9,500 days — the equivalent of the work of 38 full-time judges for one year.

Three hundred lawyers served as arbitrators without pay under that original program. Court facilities and court staff were utilized, however.

Loomis said that arbitration offers a much quicker and less expensive way to handle Superior Court cases. It is particularly suited for cases where the potential recovery amount indicates that it is in the best interests of all parties to avoid the time and expense of a trial.

Loomis explained that major changes resulting from the plan are that the plaintiff can invoke arbitration if he limits his recovery to $7,500, and that if any party is dissatisfied with the result, he can demand a trial in the Superior Court. However, if the party demanding the trial does not improve his position, that party must pay the costs of the trial.

Another difference is that arbitrators will be paid by the state for each proceeding. The minimum fee is $150. The hearings will be in the central courthouse in Los Angeles.

The committee recommends that both sides agree to a $15,000 limit for recovery attempts, but both sides may agree to a higher limit if they wish.

Demos ask debates for regional races

Area Democrats have asked local Republicans to jointly sponsor a debate for party candidates seeking election to the Assembly, state Senate and Congress.

Darlene Pritchard, co-chairman of the Democratic Party for the 25th Senatorial District, has written to Dr. Walter Buerger, chairman of the Los Angeles County Republican Central Committee, in seeking the debate.

"It is important that nominees of our political parties set an example in discussing the critical choices confronting America. In this Bicentennial year, I can conceive of no greater service on behalf of our American system than an old-fashioned political debate on the issues," she wrote.

Copies of the latter were sent to Rep. Jim Lloyd, Democrat and Louis Brutocao, Republican, candidates in the 35th Congressional District; state Sen. H. L. Richardson, R-19th Dist., and Ron Barbatoe, Democrat, candidates in the 25th Senatorial District; and Assemblyman William Lancaster, Republican, and Sandy Baldonado, Democrat, candidates in the 62nd Assembly District.

She reported initial response to her inquiry has prompted her to believe that local Democratic Party candidates are "very likely" to participate in the debate.

Convalescent wins environmental award

A child care center would be operated by Walnut High School students under a plan submitted to the Walnut school board.

If plans are adopted at a future meeting, a day care center would be initiated in 1976-77 to handle some 20 to 24 preschool students.

They would be selected on the basis of need from working mothers within the Walnut school district.

The center would accept the children beginning at 6:30 a.m. and keep them until 5 p.m. A lunch would be served. A nominal fee would be charged the mothers.

High school students would be trained by a certificated teacher as child care aides. Students completing the program would be qualified to work in private schools.

The day care center would be used for observation by child care, management and nutrition classes.

Such a program can be developed in cooperation with the La Puente Valley Regional Occupational Program.

In other action Monday, board members adopted a tentative 1976-77 budget of $14,595,259 for the school district.

The budget calls for a 19-cent increase in the tax rate per $100 assessed valuation.

Significant expenditure increases anticipated for 1976-77 are connected with opening, staffing and operating Chaparral Intermediate School in Diamond Bar, the new swimming pool at Walnut High School, the new Cyrus G. Morris Elementary School for a full year and the new Walnut Elementary School, now under construction, for half a year.

Child care center proposed at WHS

The Southern Chapter of the California Environmental Health Association honored Country House resident Victor Jennings for his interests and efforts to improve the environmental health conditions in his surroundings.

John Porter of the Southern Chapter of CEHA presented the youth, a student at Danbury School in Claremont, a plaque for his special interest in safety and fire prevention.

At the presentation ceremony were Joseph Salazar, Los Angeles County Licensing Department; Raquel Casillas, Eidth Keim and Luke Franck, Los Angeles Continuing Care Services Section; James Otto, owner of Country House; Dorothy Broadway, administrator of Country House; Mrs. Joan Gottuso, director of nurses; Kathy Lemly, program director, and all the Country House program staff, nurses aides, and residents.

Overtime pay okayed

LOS ANGELES (AP)— Los Angeles' police commission has approved $25,000 in overtime pay for policing the July 4 Bicentennial parade down Wilshire Blvd., but parade organizers say the other two cities that share Wilshire — Beverly Hills and Santa Monica — are balking at providing police manpower to patrol their share of the 18-mile route.

Parade Chairman James R. McFaden says the parade is being billed as the longest in the United States

"I hate to ask the governor to call out the National Guard for the Beverly Hills and Santa Monica portions of the parade," says McFaden, "but if it stops at the (Los Angeles) city line it won't be the longest."

Lloyd doing a flip-flop on Congress pay—Brutocao

LOUIS BRUTOCAO, Republican candidate in the 35th Congressional District, said a recent statement by Rep. Jim Lloyd, D-35th Dist., that he is co-sponsoring legislation to repeal the cost-of-living increase approved for legislators last year doesn't begin to explain Lloyd's record in the pay matter.

"The pay measure which has already netted congressmen a $2,100 salary boost contains a clause granting Congress automatic permanent cost-of-living pay increases. Lloyd voted last July in favor of the hotly debated salary issue which passed the House by one vote — Loyd's vote," he charged.

On Sept. 4, Rep. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, introduced a bill to repeal the pay raise, Brutocao continued. "At that time Lloyd stuck by his earlier statement that Congress deserved the raise and said that although some of his colleagues 'haven't got the guts,' he would stand by his vote in favor of the pay increases."

"Now, nearly a year since the pay raise passed and 10 months after the bill to nullify it was introduced, Lloyd has announced he will cosponsor Grassley's bill to repeal the salary increase."

REP. JIM LLOYD, D-35th Dist., has demanded that governments of Southeast Asia make a full accounting to the United States on Americans missing in action from the Vietnam War.

"As a member of the House Select Committee on Missing Persons in Southeast Asia, it is evident to me the communist regimes of Southeast Asia could supply substantial information on the fates of the 809 persons listed as missing in action," he said.

irresponsible and only add to the suffering of families and friends of missing persons, both military and civilian," he added.

The Assembly has approved legislation by ASSEMBLYMAN BILL McVITTIE, D-65th Dist., which prevents the sale of drug contaminated meat to consumers.

The measure would tighten control of substances used as livestock remedies and prohibit the sale of animals which may still be contaminated.

"Residues from medication given to livestock can be dangerous to humans who eat the meat. This bill would require the owner of such treated animals to notify the buyer that the meat being purchased may still be contaminated by medication," he said.

The bill next goes to the state Senate for approval.

Volunteers to make up a Department of Motor Vehicles "Backseat Driver" public panel are being sought by Lloyd F. Souders, manager of the DMV Pomona office.

The panel will become part of a network of 89 community advisory bodies statewide.

Souders said the program is to enable people who seek services from the state government "to have some participatory input as to the quality of the service rendered them and to have some say on the policies and programs of DMV."

The Pomona public panel will include 10 to 15 members and will reflect the interest and backgrounds of the community, the DMV manager said.

"We're looking for people who don't normally have access to the policy makers, people who haven't been consulted much by the government in the past but should have been contacted as a matter of course," he said.

Applications and more information about the program can be obtained at the DMV office at 211 Erie St., Pomona, or can be mailed to interested parties who phone the office at 629-3055.

Volunteers will be sought from among high school students, senior citizens, homemakers, salaried workers and members of social or cultural organizations.

Panels are expected to start functioning in July so those interested in serving are urged by the DMV to contact the local office soon.

Meeting monthly, the panels will require two or three hours a month of each member's time, the manager estimated. Participants will receive no remuneration for their service

Medicare insurance rate to rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Millions of Social Security recipients will soon find their benefit checks a little smaller as the cost of Medicare insurance rises by 50 cents a month.

The government is raising the monthly premium for Medicare's "Part B" coverage to $7.20 from $6.70 starting July 1. Some 24.6 million elderly and disabled Americans are covered under Part B, which pays doctors' bill and other out-of-hospital medical costs.

The government deducts the Medicare premium automatically from the monthly checks of many persons drawing Social Security. State Medicaid agencies pay the premiums for more than 3 million persons, and the government bills others quarterly.

A legislative quirk prevented the government from raising the premiums since July 1, 1974. The increase would have been much larger if Congress had not imposed a lid on premium hikes, according to the Social Security Administration.

Without the lid, which is tied to the cost-of-living, Part B premiums would have jumped to $10.70 a month to keep pace with rising medical costs, a spokesman said.

The increase is meant to put Medicare's supplementary medical insurance program on a sounder financial footing next year.

Part A of Medicare covers hospital and nursing home bills. It is automatic for Social Security beneficiaries and requires no premiums. Part B, which requires premiums, is optional.

The premium increase is expected to bring in an additional $149 million during the 12 months beginning July 1.

The program had total income of $4.9 billion in the fiscal year ending June 30, including $1.9 billion from premiums and the rest from the federal treasury and trust fund interest. Total expenditures were $5.2 billion.

In fiscal year 1977 beginning Oct. 1, the government anticipates total income of $7.3 billion, including $2.2 billion from premiums, and total expenditures of $6.5 billion.

The SSA said that Part B coverage will be extended to 22.4 million aged persons and 2.2 million disabled persons under the age of 65 years. An estimated 12.5 million aged and 1.7 million disabled persons are expected to submit medical claims next year.

Decorating—a crisis?

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: We recently bought a home and ever since we started decorating it we've been teetering on the brink of divorce. Never in our married life have we had so many quarrels. I never knew how difficult my wife was and, apparently, she feels the same about me. What happened? — F.E.

Dear F.E.: What has happened is that you both are showing feelings that you may not have even known existed. Decorating a house is such a personal thing and it often brings anxieties and fears to the surface. Sometimes women who have weathered many major crises in life are shattered by the experience of getting a house together in the way they like it.

There is no time when a woman is more apt to go to pieces than when she is engaged in decorating a home. Because a home is like an extension of herself, her choices of color, furniture and design are determined by an unconscious image of what she is, or dreds to be. This can also be true of a man.

Regardless of sex, the home does expose many of the innermost feelings of its owners, and it is on display for everyone to see. Very few people are so secure that they can expose themselves without some anxieties and doubts.

No two human beings are exactly alike and husband and wife are not apt to see eye to eye on color or even furniture choices. Some men may be content to leave all this up to their wives but most men today are almost as concerned as their wives are about these matters.

Decorating a home is much more than meets the eye. It moves into our innermost being and uncovers buried feelings. Use this experience to learn more about each other and your marriage will be enriched, rather than marred.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: Having come from large families, my wife and I have always hoped that our children would also have large families. We're disappointed because none of them has more than two children and after a lengthy family discussion, we were told in no uncertain terms that this is it. We respect and love all of them but we think they're a bit too concerned about overpopulation. Aren't children from small families more spoiled than those from the old-fashioned kind of home we had? — H.R.

Dear H.R.: I know that, as parents, you realize that family size is something each couple must determine for themselves. Pressure on this subject, even when it's meant to be helpful, is almost always unwelcome.

I should think as grandparents you might be more pleased with fewer grandchildren because you have a better chance to get to know each child in greater depth. When there are too many grandchildren, grandparents often end up feeling that they're being used and they, like the parents, begin to lose sight of the children as individuals and tend to view them more as a unit or a group.

Studies have indicated that children in two-child families have many advantages over those from large families. They tend to be brighter, bigger, more creative and more vigorous. The parents of two-child families are happier, more emotionally stable and better off financially. They are able to give their children better educations and health care. One study showed that the number of children in the family affects intelligence. Children from small families consistently outscored those from big families. Enjoy your grandchildren and celebrate their advantages.

CHET JAEGER

Chorus, band set for Starlite

The Pomona Community Chorus, directed by Ray Woods, and the Nightblooming Jazzmen, conducted by Chet Jaeger, will present a concert at the Starlite Patio Theater, Montclair civic center, at 8 p.m. Tuesday. Admission is free.

The chorus, formed in 1972, has performed widely throughout Southern California. Twice it has sponsored the Pomona Valley Festival of Choruses in which massed choral groups were conducted by Roger Wagner, director of the Los Angeles Master Chorale.

The Nightblooming Jazzmen is a seven-piece Dixieland band drawn from the Society for the Preservation of Dixieland Jazz. The group received a standing ovation after its performance recently at the Sacramento Dixieland Jubilee.

The summer program at the Starlite Patio Theater is a series presented free of charge by the Montclair Parks and Recreation Department. Harve Edwards is director.

Chino to give drama classes

The Chino Recreation and Parks Department will present a series of 10-week classes in acting, stage design, makeup and other theater techniques, starting July 12.

Called the Chino Theatrical Production Company, the classes are open to all children, teen-agers and adults in the valley area. They will be held from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the multipurpose room of the Riverside Drive Elementary School, Sixth Street and Riverside Drive.

On Monday nights classes will be held in scenic design and lighting; on Tuesdays the classes will be in acting and mime; and on Thursdays the topic will be costume and makeup.

The fees are $10 for one workshop, $15 for two and $20 for all three.

Registration can be made at the Chino Recreation and Parks Department starting July 6 or at the first meeting of the class.

SUBSTITUTE SIDEKICK — Richard Hatch, left, poses with Karl Malden as they start filming The Streets of San Francisco for the fall season. Hatch replaces Michael Douglas as Malden's sidekick in the detective series. It airs at 9 p.m. Thursdays on ABC-TV.

Bonita singers at Kennedy

The Bonita High School Chamber Singers, conducted by Tom Antel, will present a prelude concert in the grand foyer of the Kennedy Center Concert Hall, Washington, D.C. at 4:15 p.m. Monday as the National Music Council salutes California composers and musicians in the Bicentennial Parade of Music.

The 21-voice group was named best high school choral ensemble in California in competition at the Music Educators National Conference earlier this year.

Among the selections to be performed at the Bicentennial Parade of Music is "Divertimento No. 5, Theatrical Sketches," by Gail Kubik, award-winning composer-in-residence at Scripps College. The work will be performed by Diana Steiner, violin; Frances Steiner, cello, and David Berfield, piano.

The program will also include Frederick Lesemann's "Fantasy for Solo Piano," Suite for Solo Violin" by Halsey Stevens, "Songs of Affirmation" by William Grant Still, Marshall Bialosky's "Fantasy for Solo Cello" and "Tawny and Heather" by Elinor Remick Warren.

Suit is filed against studio

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Attorney General's office has filed a consumer suit against Maurice Kosloff and his Hollywood Theatrical Studios.

The suit, filed in Superior Court on Monday, claims that advertising lured persons to the studio on the pretext that jobs were available, but job seekers were actually solicited to pay for acting lessons.

Rooney to star in film

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mickey Rooney has been signed as one of the stars of "Pete's Dragon," the biggest project of Walt Disney Productions since "Mary Poppins."

Rooney will star as Lampie, a bibulous lighthouse keeper and father of Helen Reddy. In the script Miss Reddy befriends a 9-year-old orphan and his companion, a dragon named Elliott.

Jerome Courtland is producing "Pete's Dragon" with Don Chaffey as director.

Career criminals target of organization

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Its name sounds like a project to train future Al Capones. But the Career Criminals Program (CCP) is just the opposite — an attempt by law enforcement officials to put away those who have already made a career of crime.

Thirty-seven persons from 11 states met here over the weekend to discuss the progress of the program designed to target and prosecute cases involving habitual offenders.

Each area has its own definition of career criminal, with the CCP being a special unit in the district attorney's office set up to deal solely with those repeat offenders.

In Boston, Houston and New Orleans, for example, members of the special unit are on 24-hour call. When a person categorized as a career criminal is arrested, the unit is notified and one of its members is assigned the case.

In Houston, the unit stays with a case until it goes to trial, when it's turned over to a regular prosecutor. In New Orleans, the assistant district attorney notified by the police follows the case through to trial.

"A minority of criminals commit the majority of the crime and this program identifies that minority," says Philip Cohen of the National Legal Data Center, which coordinates the various cities' programs.

"By identifying them, we are able to stop continuances, limit plea bargaining and incarcerate these people as soon as possible."

The idea of program was outlined by President Ford in September 1974. The first program became operational in New Orleans eight months later with funds from the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA).

From an initial LEAA outlay of $4 million to 11 cities, money has spread to 20 jurisdictions from New York to California, with some impressive early results.

"We have cut the average time from arrest to disposition from five months to eight months down to 60 days in cases connected with this program," says Harry Connick, New Orleans district attorney. "I think we have demonstrated effective use of the tax dollar."

Vic Pecorino, the head of the project in Houston, says speed is not the only result of the program.

"Our project concentrates on robberies and they are down 25-30 per cent since we began," he said "We can have a guy on his way to jail before he knows what hit him — and he can't rob the public from there."

Growing Chino mulls parks, water—and tax

By CONRAD CASLER
PB Correspondent

Quadrupling park acreage, Water Department expansion and a $200 tax on new homes are under scrutiny by Chino city councilmen today.

Councilmen heard proposals from city staffers and the Parks Commission at Tuesday night's meeting which would:

— Add five new major parks to Chino's present one large park and five miniparks at a cost of $2.1 million.

— Increase Water Department wells and water mains to meet residential growth at a cost of more than $6 million.

— Tax new homes and trailer sites an additional $200 to bring in an estimated $200,000 annually for general fund use.

Councilmen approved a request by Public Works Director John Gerardi to pursue a study on how to raise funds for proposed expansion of the water program through 1985.

Mushrooming subdivisions require expansion to meet demand, including several new city wells and transmission lines, Gerardi said.

Consultants for the city said several financing alternatives are open including revenue bonds, general obligation bonds and the possibility of obtaining some federal or state funds.

Gerardi said about $3.5 million in expansion is needed by 1980 and $3 to $3.5 million more by 1985.

Jack Anderson, parks and recreation director, outlined plans to quadruple park acreage in a program which would allow voters to ballot on a $2.1 million parks bond issue in 17 months.

Chino now operates the 7.5-acre Villa Park and five miniparks of one acre each. Anderson's plan approved by parks commissioners would add Northside Park with 7.5 acres, Walnut Park with 4.9 acres, Monte Vista Park with 8.7 acres and five acres each Magnolia, Mountain and Norton Parks.

Some of the park land already has been purchased by the city, with help from the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development. Anderson said the bond issue of $2.1 million would allow all new parks to be developed. Tentative date for voter action on the plan is set for November 1977 with a completion date of November 1978 for all park construction.

Councilmen gave Anderson approval to complete the parks planning package.

City Manager Bob Fast and Community Development Director Gale Carr outlined a $200 tax on new homes which would pour $200,000 a year into city coffers to be used for street improvements, parks and other general fund needs.

This tax would be on top of the $245 tax already imposed on new home construction and earmarked specifically for park construction.

Fast won approval to draft a new tax ordinance for later council adoption.

Dennis Chineaeff who left Chino last November as assistant community development director, Carr's assistant, was named to succeed Carr who is leaving city service next month to become a private consultant with a firm in Anaheim. Chineaeff has been a planner with the city of Scott's Valley.

Also appointed by councilmen were Emil Torkar to the Environmental Appeals Board and Betty Cavanagh to the Cultural Center Committee.

Tax break seems sure for Chino School Dist.

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

Residents of the Chino school district apparently will be among the unique this year — they should be getting a tax break.

The school board Tuesday night adopted a $15.9 million tentative budget reflecting an 8½-cent tax increase proposed by administrators. But trustees ordered the staff to make cuts in the budget that would mean a 10-cent drop from the present tax rate.

Board members were unanimous in their resolve to cut the total tax rate to $4.94 per $100 assessed valuation. It would involve reducing the unified tax by 20 cents — which had been proposed to rise by 21 cents. The community service tax still will go up by 10 cents, partly counteracting the unified tax reduction.

"If the tax situation improves, maybe we can add things (programs) to the budget later," said board President Al McCombs. "But I can't see a 31-cent boost (unified tax plus community service) in the tax rate on top of increases in assessments. It would be quite a burden on the taxpayers."

The $15,937,659 tentative budget is about $1 million higher than last year. Of the total, $927,796 is in undistributed reserves. The budget is balanced, and revenues will be about $5,000 more than expenditures.

A 10 per cent increase in assessed valuation was estimated by Asst. Supt. Al Searfoss, but McCombs said it may be 15 per cent or more.

The beginning balances of $530,211 is $200,000 less than last year, said Searfoss.

No salary increases for teachers are included in the budget. However, 5.5 per cent boosts recently awarded to management and confidential employes are reflected in the plan.

Trustees indicated Tuesday they will wait until the new state collective bargaining law takes effect on July 1 before negotiating teacher salaries.

New programs included in the budget — and the main reason for the $1 million increase over last year — are reorganization of the district staff, more vice principals at the elementary level, reading specialists in grades four through six, expansion of health services, a school farm manager program and monies for collective bargaining.

The reading specialists are part of the RISE (Reform of Intermediate and Secondary Education) program approved by the board earlier.

District staff changes include a new director in the instruction department, a director of finance and a data processing programmer.

About five part-time vice principals are recommended at elementary schools.

A special nurses clinic is also proposed, along with a manager to run the student farm.

The proposed programs all were seriously questioned by the board and were ordered to be re-examined.

TIME FOR A TREAT

Carpenter and artist give young patients something to treasure

Young patients at Pomona Valley Community Hospital giggle with delight when they spot the treasure chest and highly imaginative mural just completed in the pediatrics department.

Created by hospital carpenter Walter Knott and retired school art consultant Drew A. Dobosh, the project includes taped music, atmospheric lighting and toys provided by the hospital auxiliary members.

The mural which is painted inside of a three-sided booth depicts a pirate fantasy featuring 50 characters with which children can identify. A variety of colorful birds and animals further enhance the mural which took Dobosh over 500 hours to complete.

Centered within the curved mural is a large wooden treasure chest which Knott made last year. The carpenter constructed the booth and installed the lighting and taped music this spring.

Dobosh, who retired in 1969 as art consultant for the Pomona Unified School District, previously designed a large wall mural which brightens the pediatrics wing recreation room.

While the artist has contributed a number of projects to the hospital, he has yet to match the record of his wife, Goldie, who has logged more than 4,000 hours as a volunteer with the hospital auxiliary.

The gifts in the chest are given to youngsters who are patients at the hospital.

Artists apply for exhibition

Applications are now available at San Dimas City Hall for local artists wishing to exhibit their work during Cultural Day activities July 4 in San Dimas.

The exhibit will be among a host of activities coordinated by the San Dimas Bicentennial Commission to celebrate the nation's 200th birthday July 4 and 5.

S.D. again delays vote on ravine landfill plan

By MAE TATE
PB Staff Writer

The San Dimas City Council once again delayed a "half-million dollar decision" Tuesday night, supposedly to consider other alternatives to a landfill proposal.

Representatives of Crow-Pacific Builders and the Via Verde Development Corp. were noticeably annoyed about the postponement. They have been trying to get a decision from the council on the matter for a month now and quipped about the council dallying over "a half-million dollar decision."

Darrell Wright of Crow-Pacific and Ron Martin, design engineer for the project, explained the proposal in detail to remove 230,000 cubic yards of excess dirt from land north of Via Verde and west of San Dimas Avenue and dump it in a ravine just east of the tract. The excess dirt would be from the grading of the tract area for the residential development.

Mayor Marvin Ersher pushed for delay until a special budget session of the council tonight at City Hall. He said that he wished to explore other alternatives before making any final decision.

Councilman Philip Wax was absent from the council meeting, attending a meeting of the West Covina Plaza Merchants Association. He has frequently joined with Ersher and Councilman Terry Dipple to defeat Councilmen James Lough and James McLean on controversial issues.

Ersher argued for the delay, not because of Wax's absence supposedly, but because he wanted to look at the site again "in light of the new projections presented" by Martin.

Lough objected to the delay, commenting that the council had sufficient information to make a decision at that time and avoid additional holdup on the Crow-Pacific development.

Although Lough did not comment on how he would vote, Dipple said he also felt there was enough evidence to merit an immediate decision but he would undoubtedly vote in the "opposite" direction of Lough. He reiterated his oft-repeated argument about the conservation of the "natural design of the area."

Lough at this point questioned City Atty. George Wakefield on the number of affirmative votes necessary for approval of the grading plan. Wakefield responded that three affirmative votes were needed and that a split vote or 2-1-abstention would not be considered a passing vote.

Although Lough disagreed with the delay, he agreed that he had no choice but to go along with the tabling.

In another matter, the council delayed recommending the award of a construction contract for Pioneer Park until the city receives word that 1976-77 Community Development Act funds have been approved.

The city cannot act on any project under the federally funded act for community improvement until the CDA allocation has been officially approved. Unaware of this regulation during the 1975-76 fiscal year, the city had to pay for the acquisition and demolition costs for San Dimas Elementary School out of general funds because it acted before official notice or receipt of CDA dollars earmarked for this expense.

Bryce Bailey, parks and recreation director, said the council will act on the matter tonight if it receives official notice from the county today.

Historical unit plans barbecue at mansion

Free entertainment, including a 50-voice barber shop chorus, stagecoach rides, a puppet show, square dancing and music, will highlight the Pomona Historical Society's annual barbecue Sunday at the old Phillips Mansion in Pomona.

The event will also feature a book fair under the direction of Cal Poly history professor Donal H. Pflueger, with a number of local writers on hand to autograph their works. They include humorist Richard Armour, whose "Drug Store Days" is about Pomona more than a half-century ago.

Other writers include William F. King of Mt. San Antonio College, author of "The Vintage Years," Esther Boulton Black with "Rancho Cucamonga and Dona Merced," Maxine Strane with "Tomo of Kukumongo Village," Don Clucas with "Light Over the Mountain," Alta Visnack with Ontario's "A Bicentennial Salute," and Pflueger himself with "Charles C. Chapman — Career of a Creative Californian."

A book entitled "Thirty-two Adobes in California" by Isabel Lopez de Fages of Pomona will also be available.

The barbecue, which is being cosponsored by the Cal Poly Circle K club, will be held from noon to 5 p.m. A deep pit barbecue dinner will be served for a donation of $3.50 per adult and $1.75 for children under 10.

Donations, which are tax deductible, will be used for renovating the Phillips Mansion.

Special guests during the event will be 1926 graduates from valley high schools.

A complete dinner will be served and there will be music and entertainment.

Ticket prices are $3.50 for adults, $1.75 for children under 10, which are tax deductible.

Claremont chamber outlays questioned

By GEORGE MacLAREN
PB Staff Writer

The Claremont City Council would like to see what the city will get for the $34,300 it will give to the Claremont Chamber and Convention Bureau during 1976-77 before it signs an agreement for that amount.

Council members Tuesday night delayed the approval of such an agreement until June 29 to allow time to study the goals of the chamber and convention for the next year.

A City Council subcommittee of Eleanor Cohen and Frank Hungerford met twice with chamber representatives and recommended that:

—The city allocate to the chamber $7,000 — $3,500 from the general fund for citywide promotional activities, and $3,500 from the Redevelopment Agency for specific promotion of the Village Redevelopment Project.

— The city allocate to the convention bureau $31,000, which represent approximately the amount collected on a two per cent transient occupancy tax.

—If the transient occupancy tax receipts between July 1, 1976 and June 30, 1977, exceed $120,000, the city pay the convention bureau an additional $3,000.

Deputy City Manager Paul Brotzman stressed that of the $38,500 budgeted for payment next year, $4,200 represents payment to the chamber based on an agreement approved for the chamber's relocation from its city hall site.

Mrs. Cohen said that essentially it was the same contract as in 1975-76.

Councilman Richard Newton said he has serious concerns about the agreement, "because we are paying the chamber more than either Upland or Pomona are paying their chambers."

"Should we be paying that much?" he asked. "I would like to see this tapering off. The bulk of the advantage of the business is to motel owners. How do we compare with other cities?"

Hungerford said that the Claremont motels are anticipating adding an additional 150 rooms. "Should we change the basic agreement?"

"I think it should be eventually capped," said Mayor Bertye Smith. "I would keep the bed tax in for this year next year I would like to see the $7,000 cut."

That the funds would be reduced each year was the idea at first, Councilwoman Claire McDonald said. "The bed tax receipts get to be a healthy sum."

"I want to see what are the benefits to the community," Newton said. "Someone is taking in $1.5 million in business. There are a lot of benefits to a lot of groups. Maybe we should come up with a different formula."

'Wasn't getting anything accomplished'

Chino school critic quits board

BOY WARD

Roy E. Ward, a Chino school board member elected a year ago on an anti-year-round school platform, resigned his position Tuesday night.

Ward, whose term still has three years to run, said this morning that he "wasn't getting anything accomplished" on the board.

"I got to the point where I saw I wasn't making any headway. I found myself making political decisions and I'm not a politician."

Ward explained he was "bucking heads" with four board members who usually voted against his proposals. "I'm tired of it. There is too much time involved in this. I'd rather go fishing."

The 50-year-old Ward was elected on a slate with Lyle Briggs in March 1975, backed by Citizens for Improved Education (CIE), anti-YRS group.

He had taken many controversial positions, one of which was a proposal to fire Supt. Royce Lapp. Although he was backed by Briggs in the move, the attempt was defeated by the other three trustees.

Ward had pulled away somewhat from the CIE, sometimes openly fighting the group's proposals. But he said that had little to do with his resignation. "If that was the only reason, I'd have stayed and fought it out."

Board President Al McCombs announced the resignation after a hastily called executive session. There was no comment from the board on Ward's departure.

Trustees voted to appoint a new board member at a July 19 meeting. They will first interview prospective candidates on July 13.

Citizens may file a petition opposing the appointment within 30 days of it being made.

Soviets slip behind West

The Soviet Union is dangerous precisely because it is a second-rate power in everything but military strength. And may be on the downhill road.

Soviet technological advances, the basis for significant economic-industrial growth except in the field of materials production and routine manufactures, cannot match those of the United States or other major Western countries.

The Russians are slipping further and further behind. Soviet agriculture is a shambles despite impressive inputs of capital and heavy thinking on the problem at the Kremlin level.

Soviet management does not seem to do significantly better when complete modern high-technology factories are installed ready to operate down to the last push button, even when fitted with highly redundant backup systems to serve in case of breakdowns.

We are not here talking of economic collapse, rather of Soviet ability to compete economically in an increasingly technological world, where efficiency is a crucial factor. This is not either to belittle Soviet theoretical scientists who can match their abilities with the world's finest. Or Soviet artists. Or writers. Or engineers.

It's rather that the economic system is so tied in with Soviet ideology that it apparently cannot be changed without severely straining the power structure on which the men in the Kremlin depend.

This same fumbling applies to Soviet relationships with other nations, particularly those whose actions the Russians would like to influence. Where there is no mammoth Soviet army on the border, the Soviets almost invariably lose their influence, even in fellow Communist nations. Exceptions, such as Cuba, are infrequent, and occur apparently only when the recipient is deeply in need of continued aid and sees no other open door. Or during limited periods when the objectives of the nation being helped and those of the Soviet Union run parallel.

Combine these failings then with the proven Soviet ability, though at great cost in technical manpower and in rubles, to mount a broad development of its armed forces, both nuclear and conventional.

What then happens as the Soviet Union begins to slip further behind the West in industry, as in agriculture? And when its immediate successes, as in India, Angola, Afghanistan, begin to sour — as has been the case with Egypt and a wide assortment of other nations where Soviet influence once seemed firmly in control?

Here then will be the period of danger. Having a strong military force, knowing that no nation would likely intervene given the danger of nuclear war, and having confidence in its own highly developed civil evacuation system aimed at reducing nuclear casualties, some Soviet ruler could act either in overconfidence or in the belief that action was necessary before the balance of polito-economic power shifted too far against the USSR.

There are, however, strong rays of hope. Historically, even in the midst of its aggressions, the Soviet leaders have been extremely cautious men, leaving themselves wide avenues for silent retort even in the midst of military operations. This was true in the undeclared war with Japan in the 1930s when whole divisions were destroyed — but the actions never publicized at home or abroad. This was true in Soviet excursions into Iran in the World War II era. And in the Cuban missile crisis. The Soviet leaders of this and past eras have been prone to copper their bets. And in all-out war there is no possible way to be smugly secure.

There are also faint signs that some conservative U.S. government analysts interpret as an attempt by the Soviet bureaucracy to bring its more militant members, civilian and military, under tighter control. If this attempt is real, and if it succeeds, the outlook will be improved. True bureaucrats are, by nature, extremely cautious. And caution, of course, makes war less likely.

Aid for ailing sewers

That commercial encouraging housewives to empty a box of bicarbonate of soda down the kitchen drain, after using it to combat odors in the refrigerator, may be more than an ad-man's brainchild.

Chemists with Dwight & Church Co., largest producer of bicarbonate of soda (or baking soda), have discovered that the stuff is good for a lot of the things that ail sewage systems. Because of its ability to absorb either excess acidity or excess alkalinity it's a natural pH control buffer, and also acts like a "vitamin" for busy little crud-digesting bacteria.

A dose of bicarb — 196 pounds a day, to be exact — saved the life of a 37-year-old sewage treatment plant in Hightstown, N.J., the company says, as well as millions of dollars of taxpayer money that would have been necessary to bring the plant into compliance with Environmental Protection Agency standards.

Helicopter intrusion

Dear Editor:

A helicopter flying over your house at 300 feet or at any height without your permission is an intrusion of your privacy.

Flashing a light in your backyard is a denial of your constitutional right to freedom from illegal search and seizure.

Helicopters are the unsafest flying machines ever made. One will definitely crash soon.

Four or five have crashed in Southern California alone in the last eight months. Do you ever wonder where the next one will crash?

I wonder how much insurance the city carries to cover the possibilities of harm or death to the innocent below. Will the city build you a new home or pay the constant cost of medical care if one of your family is maimed?

A helicopter on patrol over the residential area of a town is the beginning of repressive government.

Imagine every police chief of a town with helicopters on patrol getting together and electing a super chief of police.

The history of this country is one of the little people keeping our government on the right track. I believe that this program of helicopter patrol is not in our best interest.

If you and I were watching a TV show and the movie began with pictures of a helicopter flying over a town at night with a light beaming down into backyards, we would assume we were watching a movie about Russia.

Our city is not a slum and the families here are good and fine people. I ask you to call your councilman or mayor if you feel as I do. They tell me that people are in favor of the noise waking up our children night after night. There are old and sick among us, and those that work odd hours and many long hours.

A helicopter on patrol over our town declares to the world that we are a failure as a free people.

Please call them and let them know how you feel.

The CIA's sex shop

WASHINGTON — In contrast to the haphazard sex on Capitol Hill, the Central Intelligence Agency for years has conducted an elaborate and efficient sex operation.

Few national secrets have been more carefully guarded, but the CIA has provided kings, presidents, potentates and magistrates with female companionship. On a lower level, girls have been made available to defectors and the CIA's own agents.

Sometimes, the CIA's guests bring their own partners. More often, the agency selects girls from its vice files according to specification. The agency also provides "Safe houses" where the liaisons can be consummated in protected privacy.

The CIA's sex shop, according to sources in a position to know, is run by the Office of Security. Although this division has many functions, it acts primarily as the CIA's internal police force.

Through field offices scattered around the country, the Office of Security maintains close ties with state and local police forces. In each field office, a "black book" is kept of the males and females who can be safely recruited to entertain the CIA's visitors.

The black books contain names, phone numbers and titillating details, which are gleaned largely from local vice squads. In Washington, for example, CIA agents used to pay regular visits to the police department's vice squad to photograph documents.

The late Deputy Chief Roy E. Blick, who headed the "sex squad" for years, kept exhaustive records on "perverts" and "miscreants" around the country. He had a close, backroom relationship with the CIA, say our sources.

During the 1964-74 period, the sex operation was supervised by security director Harold Osborn. Some of his subordinates, according to our sources, regaled their friends with stories about the sex episodes they were privy to. As they told it, they were called upon to fill some occasional bizarre requests.

Each black book entry, according to sources with access to the files, contains some fascinating vital statistics — physical description, measurements, health status and sexual specialties.

This inside information is used to produce sexual partners for princes and potentates, defectors and agents. The congressional investigations of the CIA, however, skirted the sex operation. The House Intelligence Committee stumbled onto the information that the CIA once provided an unidentified Middle East monarch with female companons. We have learned that the king in question was Jordan's Hussein.

It's the CIA's own foreign agents, coming in from the cold, who make the most use of the "safe house" and a "case officer" is assigned to watch over him.

The officer is supposed to keep his charge happy and to provide for his needs. If occasionally the need should be sexual, the right contact in the Office of Security is called upon, the black book is whipped out and the desired companion is procured.

The CIA uses sex for an even more seamy purpose. As we reported over a year ago, the agency has used prostitutes to lure foreign diplomats into love traps where their sexual antics were filmed through one-way mirrors. The film was later used to blackmail the foreigners into becoming informants.

In New York, the CIA maintained adjoining efficiency apartments on the sixth floor of a high-rise building in Greenwich Village. On the wall of the blackmail apartment was a large painting of two ships. But the painting was actually a one-way mirror.

On the other side of the wall, CIA agents could watch the action through the see-through painting and film the most intimate moments. The painting was strategically placed so that it gave the CIA observers a full view of the sofa, which opened into a bed. A Japanese screen, implanted with microphones, provided the sound for the CIA's blackmail movies.

In San Francisco, the CIA operated a similar apartment equipped only with bugging devices, not observation mirrors. The New York apartment was used from about 1960 to 1966, the San Francisco apartment from the late 1950s to about 1965.

Footnote: We confronted Harold Osborn with the facts about the sex operation. He denied that any such operation was conducted "during my tenure." A CIA spokesman had no comment. Our calls to the Washington police and Jordanian embassy had not been returned at press time.

DOUBLE STANDARD: Solicitor General Robert Bork tried to block Rep. John Dingell, D.- Mich., from submitting a friend-of-the-court brief in an environmental case before the Supreme Court. In a private letter, Bork rejected Dingell's offer to supply information helpful to conservationists.

Then Bork turned around and gave his consent for Carter Oil Company, Utah Power and Light and Western Fuels Association to furnish pro-industry information to the court.

Paul Harvey

Now you understand

Now Washington, D.C. "outsiders" are beginning to understand. For a while you could not imagine why your congressman had so suddenly turned against the FBI. Now you see why.

During his lifetime of selfless service, J. Edgar Hoover was treated with deference and respect by members of Congress. It was difficult to understand why any of them would dance on his grave, why they would suddenly want to disparage him, destroy his files, curtail FBI surveillance.

Now it's easy to understand. The kiss-and-tell girls on Capitol Hill have now involved so many honorables who obviously aren't that Americans may yet reach what Jenk Jones calls "the stomach-turning point."

If so, there's going to be a lot of ticket-splitting this fall. Americans who heretofore have tended to vote the party line, because it was a geographical tradition or because it was easier, will be inclined in November to pick and sort candidates — ignoring party affiliation.

For generations, Southern Democrats voted a "straight party ticket" while holding their noses because they'd been sold the notion that their only clout in Congress derived from perpetuating committee chairmanships.

Now so many of those chairmanships have been disparaged or disgraced that I expect this longtime leverage will be considered less important than a general housecleaning. A vigorous "vote against" would also tend to damage incumbent Ford's chances for election.

At the height of the recent rash of disclosures by the play-for-pay girls in congressional offices, a speaker at the Southern Baptist meeting in Norfolk was heard to say: "The Lord works in mysterious ways Jimmy Carter to elect."

Indeed, Carter does appear to be a political "Mister Clean" least likely to sin, in public or in private.

There is no other explanation for the unprecedented rise of Jimmy Carter from "incredible" to "inevitable" in six months. "God's man of the hours," his disciples insist.

Republicans, in the upcoming campaign, will have to argue that there has already been a White House-cleaning; that what's needed now is to purge the Congress.

They will remind voters that the hankypanky on the Hill has been mostly the doing of the Democrats — if only because there are more of them.

That the ugliest headlines have involved Democrats: Kennedy and Mills, Young and Howe, Hays and Gravel. So this next November, for the first time, an increasing number of voters will take the trouble to split their tickets.

If the national regurgitation — voting the "ins" out — unseats Ford, the same voter revolt could retire the Democrats who have dominated the Senate and House. Be interesting if our nation should owe a renaissance of political righteousness to the "anything for money, honeys" of Washington, D.C.'s bugged bedrooms.

Just in jest

There is a threat of another gasoline shortage this summer and naturally folks are a bit upset. Will we, they wonder, be forced to put up with a proposed 10 gallons per week rationing program? But if you think that's a worry, consider the weeping and wailing and heart rending screaming that would arise throughout the land if the government also decides to ration vodka.

And don't think that it couldn't happen! Didn't we have to import 85 million gallons of the stuff last year? And furthermore, isn't it always true that anything that will create more jobs for bureaucrats is always given favorable consideration by government experts on national economy?

Sacramento scene

Dymally has his dreams

By EARL G. WATERS

Although the disastrous attempt of Governor Jerry Brown to advance himself onto the national scene has ended in shambles, the dreams of Lt. Governor Mervyn Dymally to become California's first black governor are not entirely ended.

It was those dreams which influenced Dymally to actively support Brown's presidential aspirations. Everyone knows he had no other reason. For the governor had studiously ignored Dymally's existence for 14 months even though he sat in an office just across the hall and was always within a heartbeat away from occupying No. 1. chair.

And even though Dymally, a far more realistic politician than Brown, may have known that Brown had no chance of being the Democratic nominee, the hope that a good showing might get him serious consideration for second place on the ticket moved him to forget the past indignities and throw in with Jerry. If it happened and if the Democrats won the in November Dymally would inherit California's top office. From Dymally's point of view it was a bet not to be passed up.

But Brown's persistence in petulantly carrying on his campaign long after everone else in the country knew the race was over and his harsh attacks upon Carter would seem to make certain the VP spot will go to anyone but Brown.

What is reviving Dymally's dreams however is the possibility that Carter might choose California's senior U.S. Senator Alan Cranston as a running mate. If Cranston's seat were to become vacant it would fall upon the governor to name a successor to fill the term which doesn't end until 1980. It might well be that Brown would appoint himself, leaving the governorship to Dymally.

For Brown has reached a pinnacle he will find hard to top. He won the battle but lost the war. Being a loser he has no place to go. He is faced with the necessity of finishing out his term and hoping to retain enough popularity to win re-election to keep his ambitions for higher office alive.

That will be a tough feat to perform if he doesn't improve his 18 month record of non-accomplishment. Having set himself to abandon ship in mid-term he is without any program for the balance of his term. At the moment the future odds for another term must be judged heavily against him. Further, his failure to reward party regulars who helped him into office along with having turned his back on major supporters leaves him without any semblance of a political machine to insure his future. So it could well be that a U.S. Senate seat gained without facing the voters is looking mighty tempting to him.

Conceding Carter's nomination there remain some "ifs" in Dymally's dreams. Would Carter offer Cranston second place? Would Cranston accept? Will the Democrats win in November? Would Brown leave office for a seat in the Senate? As it stands Carter's nomination is certain and chances for his victory in November are bright. The iffiest part depends upon whether Cranston would be the choice and would accept.

Certainly an opportunity to be vice president would be luring but Cranston has moved up rapidly in the Senate and, with the retirement of Mike Mansfield, stands to rise even more. His high regard for the Senate would weigh heavily. For he sees that role as far more substantive than being VP. It is one which he feels can contribute more significantly to meeting the problems of the nation than any other except the presidency.

It seems likely that both the governor and Dymally will have to practice what Brown has been preaching all along and lower their own expectations.

Reader offers advice on coins

I am writing in the hope I may be of help to someone.

There have been several complaints to Action Line from people who have ordered Bicentennial coins by mail and have not been satisfied.

Several local coin retail houses handle these coins, both gold-plated and natural. I remember one specifically, Old School House Coins in Claremont.

The mints have issued so many Bicentennial coins that their value to collectors, if one uses rarity as an index, should not be very great.

Gold-plating any coin is surprisingly cheap to do. For example, I met a traveler who had Roosevelt dimes gold-plated at a cost of three cents each and left them as tips in foreign countries. — P.H., Pomona.

Gerry Nelson of Old School House Coins said the firm didn't have any gold-plated Bicentennial coins at the time we inquired but had them in the past and planned to get more.

Your three-cent figure was around $4 off. Nelson said he could offer a set of three gold-plated Bicentennial coins, a quarter, half dollar and dollar, without a display case, at a "ball park" figure of $6.50.

Gold-plating is expensive, he told us, even though a minute amount of gold is used. Knowledge of coins and the process of cleaning them plus craftsmanship are involved, so gold-platers are highly paid people.

Nelson pointed out the difference between rare coins, no longer in circulation, and commemorative coins now in circulation, like the Bicentennial coins.

Human nature being what it is, Bicentennial coins are being hoarded throughout the world in the hope that they may become rare and more valuable.

He named supply and demand, date and condition as a general factor governing the cost of coins to collectors.

I have a problem with Social Security and I am hoping you can get it straightened out.

Social Security claims there was an overpayment on my account for 1974.

On March 31 I paid the amount said to have been overpaid, $941.60, but my monthly checks for May and June did not arrive. I was notified they were being withheld until the amount of the overpayment was made up.

I have been to the Pomona office three times and have written to the Kansas City payment office but have not heard from either of them. — H.K., Montclair.

A representative of the local Social Security office said the staff had been trying to clear up your problem and you might get word that it had succeeded any day.

Shortly after our talk with the SS representative we received a note from you indicating you had received the hoped-for news and thanking us for our time.

I read the information about weight reduction groups published in answer to a letter from K.G. of Pomona.

Can you give me some specific data about a TOPS (Take Off Pounds Sensibly) group near my home? — Mrs. H.S., La Verne.

We couldn't find a TOPS group in La Verne but there are two nearby in Pomona.

Both meet at the First Christian Church in the corner of the building close to Park Avenue and Artesia Street. One is an evening group Wednesday at 6:30, the other a morning group Friday at 9.

Ann Landers

Concerned, but not too bright

Dear Ann Landers: My father has terminal cancer. We've known about it for several weeks. I can accept this tragic turn of fate, but I CANNOT accept the long, drawn-out, insensitive expressions of "sympathy" from freinds who phone day after day to talk about it. I also find it hard to be civilized to acquaintances I meet on the street who tell me how awful they feel.

It usually goes like this: "I just heard about your father. You have no idea how sick I am over it. Isn't it awful? I am heartbroken about it. He was such a wonderful person. It must be very difficult for you to watch him go a day at a time . . ."

The conversations last anywhere from 10 minutes to half an hour. After four or five "sympathy" chats I feel more depressed than ever.

Another thing: Why in the world do people aks, "Was the tumor malignant?" My father does not want the truth known and we have been abiding by his wishes. What is your opinion of such a question? Also what should I do about the demoralizing calls? — Saddened Not Gladdened

Dear Saddened: In response to the question, "Was the tumor malignant?" It's nobody's business. Only a clod would ask. Simply say, "We hope for the best."

About the phone calls. No one will talk to a dead line for 30 minutes, or even 10. Ring off promptly with the legitimate excuse that you have many things to do and must run — but "thanks for your concern."

Do bear in mind, dear, that most of these people mean well. They just aren't very bright.

Dear Ann Landers: With all the letters you've printed from husbands who complain about unresponsive wives, I decided to describe a recent incident which beats anything I've read so far. It doesn't require an answer — so please don't rack your brain trying to come up with one.

Last week I climbed into bed with my wife after bowling a few more frames than I had planned on. I got home about midnight, kissed the little woman on the forehead (lightly) and accidentally brushed her leg with my hand. She turned over and mumbled, "All right, go ahead — but don't wake me up."

How's that for a commentary on what some wives consider "doing their duty?" I had a good laugh over it — but maybe I should have cried. NO, I did not risk awakening the sleeping beauty. Her terms were not very enticing. — That's The Way It Is At Our House

Dear Friend: Your and lots of others.

Dear Ann Landers: This question may sound dumb, but I need an answer and I don't know who else to ask. Here goes:

I am 11 years old and have not started my period yet. Could I get pregnant? I say yes. A friend of mine says no. The reason I believe I could is because I read in the paper about two years ago that a nine-year-old girl in India had a baby. Thanks for clearing up this matter. Am I — Right Or Wrong?

Dear Wrong: Menstruation begins much earlier in some parts of the world than others. (It also varies greatly with individuals.) That Indian girl who gave birth could not have had a child, if she hadn't started to menstruate.

Do you feel awkward, self-conscious — lonely? Welcome to the club. There's help for you in Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity." Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Humming along with the birds

One of the fringe benefits of summer icumen in is that one moves out to the patio for the cocktail hour and the after-dinner coffee. It is a second living room.

Ours, I discovered, when I dragged the patio furniture up from the cellar, has a new occupant, or occupants, a pair of spritely, buzzing hummingbirds who have moved in without so much as a by-your-leave. Chosing an incredibly fragile tendril behind a sheaf of ivy, the two feathered transients constructed a tiny nest of mud and string well out of reach of the resident cats. The nest is no larger than a golf ball, and so artfully concealed that we wouldn't have seen it at all except for the comings and goings of our little guests.

Hummingbirds are something else, the smallest bird in Mother Nature's aviary. A newborn babe is the size of a bumble bee. Newly hatched hummingbirds are so small that four of them fit into a teaspoon. The eggs,paid two at a time, are the size of navy beans.

So these two tiny beans have been deposited in the little nest on our patio, and now I am in a nervous sweat about the babies' first flight. Do they know how to fly right off the bat? Will they crash to the ground and burst into flame? Will they flop and flutter down, easy prey for predatory felines? I can't spend 24 hours a day out there, playing bodyguard and nursemaid to a couple of thumb-sized fledglings, can I?

Mommy comes buzzing in, darting quick as an eye-lash, hovers challengingly over a sleeping dog, then zooms to her nest where the two little beaks lift importuning.

This is the calliope hummingbird, metallic green in color, the only hummingbird on the West Coast. There are, my research reveals, 400 kinds of hummingbirds, but only 19 types live in the United States. Concerned about "the babies," I might consider the fact that the adult weighs about the same as a penny. Not exactly in the class of California vultures.

The hummingbird can fly forward and backward, up and down. It can hang suspended in the air with its tiny wings flashing 80 times a second. That's awfully fast. Mommy comes whisking into the patio with a goody for the babies, then stops threateningly just in front of me as I am raising my martini to my lips. Delicate, fragile, charismatic, there is nonetheless something alarming about the tiny creature as she eyes my olive and measures me as a possible threat to her miscoscopic family.finally she concludes I am harmless, and zips to the nest with the groceries. (Hummingbirds do not hum, they buzz. They do not chirp, they go "chtttt-chttt".)

So I am spending my evenings on the patio with a fishing net in my hand, waiting for the emergence of our feathered friends. I hope the babies get off safely. As a member of the Man Will Never Fly Society, I hold to the motto, "Birds fly, men drink."

I just hope one of the babies doesn't drop into my drink. He wouldn't be as large as the olive.

Dr. Lamb

Varied diet for vegetarian

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a vegetarian. I've read that even the best of vegetarian diets lack vitamin B-12, but other books say that there is nothing lacking. Would you set the record straight and let us vegetarians know if we're getting all the vitamins and nutrients we need?

DEAR READER — Vitamin B-12 is found in animal products. Strict vegetarians who use no animal protein at all in their diet are consuming a vitamin B-12 deficient diet. Microorganisms do live in the nodules of legumes that synthesize coenzyme B-12 and that delays the manifestations of B-12 deficiency. The strict vegetarians also get plenty of folic acid from leafy vegetables. The folic acid may help to prevent part of the problems of B-12 deficiency but not some of the vital ones.

Vegetarians who use milk, cottage cheese and dry milk powder will get some B-12 from these products. Also, there is an adequate amount of B-12 in egg yolks. But if these items are not in the diet then you should seriously consider adding some B-12 to your daily nutrient intake. I'd recommend that such individuals just take an ordinary daily all-purpose vitamin pill and that will meet the daily needs for B-12.

You can get sufficient amounts of protein in a vegetarian diet that includes plenty of beans, particularly soybeans, plus some wheat in the diet. However, for growing children who need greater amounts of some of the amino acids I think it is wise to also include milk and milk products in the diet.

To give you more information on daily dietary needs I'm sending you The Health Letter number 4-6, Balanced Diet, Recommended Daily Dietary Allowances (RDA). Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Could there be any danger of hemorrhage from taking 10 milligrams of Coumadin as a blood thinner over a period of time?

DEAR READER— It is certainly a warning that you should see a doctor at once and have your blood tested. A dose of 10 milligrams a day is the upper range that is usually given and is likely to be too much over a period of time.

The dose does not have to be regulated for each patient according to how his blood-clotting factors respond. You can only tell this with blood tests. I do not think anyone should be taking Coumadin unless they have fairly regular tests done to be sure the dose is properly regulated.

Individuals taking Coumadin and other medicines to prevent clotting of the blood should be aware that some common medicines can increase their tendency to bleeding. Aspirin is a good example. Aspirin alone can increase the bleeding tendency and has been known to cause hemorrhages in people taking large amounts.

Tylenol will not cuase bleeding when taken alone, but it will increase the action of Coumadin and in this way increase the tendency to hemorrhage. Since people can get aspirin and Tylenol without a prescription the doctor may not know they are taking these medicines and that plays hob with trying to regulate the blood-clotting mechanism.

Opening lead — 4 ♥

I used to write my father in Korea to ask him bridge questions. I remember one bit of advice he stressed. It was to take time as declarer to plan the whole play of the hand before playing the first trick.

He pointed out that a little study then is likely to save a lot of futile struggle later.

Here is a hand that I really went wrong with because I played too fast at trick one. West opened the four of hearts. I called for dummy's six (second-hand low) without any thought at all. East put up his queen and returned the suit to knock out dummy's ace. Later West took the ace of clubs and three more heart tricks to defeat my game.

Today, I know that this was one time for second-hand high. The ace play would insure my contract unless West had led from five to the king-queen-jack. A very unusual lead since it is automatic to lead an honor from that holding.

I might not have worked that out back then, but at least it would have been well worth my while to stop and think.

Ask the Jacobys

Several readers have asked the significance of a three-spade response to partner's opening bid of one in any other suit.

In expert circles it shows either a bad hand that would take six or maybe seven tricks with spades as trump or is some sort of high-level artificial bid depending on partnership understanding. With the Jacobys it is the first meaning.

In other games it usually means that partner has a very big hand and is so excited that he has jumped one trick higher than necessary.

Studies indicate that fewer than two out of 10 manufacturing companies will hire women to sell for them on the road. Too bad. The women who sell are just like the men who sell. There are relatively few strong ones, but those who can cut it, do exceedingly well. Those sales managers, who are always looking for another hotshot, reduce their odds considerably, if they refuse to try out the girls. Post this notice, please.

A. Surfers are said to be more numerous. With maybe 2.2 million of them. As opposed to 2 million scuba divers.

KEEP TALKING

If you want to keep a conversationalist talking to you, you should at 15-second intervals nod your head approvingly, or say "I see," or mumble "hummm." So reports a team of psychologists who made a lengthy study of the matter. Unfortunately, they did not advise a technique to stop said conversationalist. I once asked a high-powered executive, who possessed an uncanny knack of interrupting smoothly to get the floor anytime he so desired, how he did it. He said, "I simply smile and say yes, yes, yes, and start talking."

SWIMMERS NEEDED — Posing beside an empty El Roble swimming pool in Claremont are instructor-guard Chris Martin, city Recreation superintendent Ron Hagan and Maia Kinsinger, new pool manager. The sign they are holding will be installed in front of El Roble pool to let residents know the pool is not restricted to swimming lessons. Families are encouraged to use the pool's facilities during specified hours during the summer.

No pool fees for three days: now that's really free style!

The city of Claremont will kick off its 1976 summer swim program with free swim days at the El Roble Pool Thursday, Friday and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The city Parks and Recreation Department will sponsor morning and afternoon swim lessons at the pool throughout the summer, according to Maia Kinsinger, pool manager.

Lessons at all ability levels, including adult instruction, are $5.50 for each two-week session.

The first session will begin Monday. Five sessions are scheduled during the summer.

Public swim hours beginning Monday will be from 1 to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, and 1 to 5 p.m. Saturday. The pool will be closed Sunday.

Admission will be 25 cents for those 11 years and younger; 50 cents for those 12 and older.

Family passes are available and will admit all members of a family during any public swim hours.

Only family passes are allowed Monday through Friday from 6 to 7 p.m.

Family passes are available at $20 for the entire summer.

Another program available for adults is "Swim for Your Health." That class is especially intended for adults who enjoy swimming for exercise and health.

The program, at a cost of $10 for the entire summer, will begin Monday and continue throughout the summer Monday through Friday from 9 to 10 a.m.

Registration for all programs will be accepted during free swim days. Registration also will be taken during the week before the beginning of a session.

An additional 25 per cent nonresident's fee is charged where applicable.

Miss Kinsinger, new pool manager this year, is a student at Cal State Northridge. She has worked for the past three years as instructor-guard for the La Verne Parks and Recreation Department.

Further information on the swim program may be obtained by phoning 624-4531.

DODGER TRIP — The Claremont Parks and Recreation Department will sponsor a bus trip to the Dodgers-Giants baseball game June 26.

The cost is $5.50 a person ($6.25 for non-Claremont residents).

The bus will leave Memorial Park at 5 p.m. More information may be obtained by phoning 624-4531.

L.V. BIKE EVENT — The La Verne Parks and Recreation Department will conduct its fourth annual bike roadeo and watermelon feed June 25 at the Roynon Elementary School.

Each boy and girl is requested to bring decorated bikes at 1 p.m. to compete for prizes and ribbons. All participants will take part in a watermelon feed.

Some of the tests for bicycles will include mechanical inspections, slow speed, figure eight, the slalom, board balance, and the stop and signals.

The event is the first of 14 programs scheduled for the summer.

AIRPORT SOARS — Ontario International Airport handled 114,728 passengers and 574,218 pounds of air cargo during May, marking a continuing upward trend in airport activity.

These figures represented a 13.9 per cent gain in passengers and an 18.9 per cent hike in air cargo above the previous month. John Dickinson, airport manager, said these increases plus the addition of a new airline service are indicators the airport will set new summer peak records this year.

Airport officials counted 14,004 flight operations during May, a 10.9 per cent increase over 12,632 recorded during May 1975.

NEW ASSIGNMENT — San Bernardino County Supervisor Robert Townsend has been appointed to represent the county on a Southern California Association of Governments committee formed to study waste water management.

The study area will involve San Bernardino, Riverside, and Orange counties and a part of Los Angeles County.

The committee will review the waste water treatment management, water quality, solid waste and the administration of these functions.

CERTIFIED CLERK De Loris E. Arterburn, Ontario city clerk, has been awarded the designation of certified municipal clerk for her achievement of high educational, experience and service requirements established by the International Institute of Municipal Clerks.

Mrs. Arterburn started with the city in 1965 as deputy city clerk and deputy city treasurer and was appointed city clerk in 1973. She was elected to a four-year term in 1976.

She has completed the three-year educational program for professional clerks at UC Santa Cruz. This involved 100 student-instructor contact hours of courses in public administration, social and interpersonal concerns and functionally related subjects.

OFFICE ON AGING — San Bernardino County supervisors have approved five positions for a new office on aging being formed in the county's human resources agency.

Positions are for a director, planner, community coordinator, secretary and clerk.

The program will receive $287,215 in state funds and $15,000 in county funds, said Supervisor Robert Townsend of Chino.

The San Bernardino County Council of Human Services had administered the program last year but did not apply for funds until this year, he added.

HIRE YOUTHS — Ontario Mayor Paul Treadway has proclaimed June as "Hire a Youth Month" in that city.

In his proclamation, he noted that summer employment is of utmost concern to many youths and the experiences gained from work is an invaluable opportunity to learn responsibility and a sense of accomplishment.

Treadway urged residents, organizations and businesses to consider hiring youths during the summer.

Claremont principal takes counseling job

The man who has been principal at San Antonio Continuation High at Claremont for the school's first 10 years is getting ready to change desks and jobs.

Norm Taylor, who was assigned to the job when the Claremont Unified School District started the school in two rooms on the Claremont High campus in September 1965, has been assigned at his request as counselor at Claremont High.

"Psychologists say you ought to move every seven years, and I've been here 10," Taylor commented. "It's like rotating the crops."

"I've exerted as much influence as I can at that school, and I've received similar influence."

The first graduating class had four members in 1966.

Graduation requirements are the same at San Antonio as at Claremont High, except that physical education is not required at the continuation school.

Taylor said the most striking difference between the schools is the size. San Antonio is limited by size of its campus to 125. Claremont High has 2,000.

At San Antonio High the principal gets to know the students on a first-name basis.

"They thrive in a personal setting, compared to the impersonal at Claremont High," Taylor said.

At San Antonio there is one teacher to every 15 students.

Air Force needs doctors, dentists

The U.S. Air Force is seeking 500 doctors during the next year, according to Chief M-Sgt. Selectee Headley Chambers in San Bernardino.

Needed are general duty physicians, family physicians, pediatricians, radiologists, psychiatrists, and those in aerospace medicine.

Chambers said that in the dental service, the Air Force needs general dentists, periodontists, prosthodontists and endodontists.

Eligibility requirements for the Air Force medical corps are that a man or woman be less than 57 and in good physical health, and be a graduate of a U.S. medical or osteopathy school, approved by the Air Force surgeon general, or a graduate of a foreign medical school.

The applicant must have completed at least one year of approved post-graduate medical education in the United States.

The applicant should hold a current license to practice in a state or territory of the United States, but that is not required for physicians engaged in full-time training since medical school, such as residents or interns.

For those who are prior-service duty officers, the tour normally is for four years, Chambers said.

He said that assignments for entering medical officers are negotiated prior to appointment, but after a completion application.

Chambers said that the Air Force offers several programs to dental students.

Upon entering active duty as a dentist, students participating in any of the programs receive a captain's commission in the Dental Corps as well as service credit for four years spent in dental school, Chambers said.

Any questions concerning the Air Force medical programs may be directed to Chambers at 568 N. Mt. View Ave., San Bernardino, 92401.

Ferris is purchasing agent in steel operations and Gifford is manager of stores and material control, a newly created position.

Ferris has direct supervision and responsibility of departmental buying for steel operations. Gifford is directing warehousing, purchasing technical services, purchasing analysis and value engineering associated with purchasing.

Rowland appoints principal

Bob Wertz, advanced learner program resource teacher for the Rowland Unified School District, has been named principal of Rowland Elementary School.

Wertz fills the position left vacant by Ed Oulton, who is taking over as principal of Jellick Elementary School. Mal Lifton, Jellick's principal, retired at the end of the school year.

A graduate of Whittier College, Wertz began his teaching career in the Rowland School District at Blanford Elementary School in 1968. He was absent from the district for two years when he completed a tour of duty in Vietnam. Wertz also holds a master's degree from Whittier.

Oulton, former principal of Yorbita Elementary School before going to Rowland Elementary School, has been with the district for 12 years. He received his bachelor of science degree from New York State University and his master's degree from Cal State Fullerton. Active in several community organizations, Oulton is a member of the Diamond Bar Jaycees and has coached Little League for two years.

The appointments become effective on July 1.

have rebelled against the big organizational thing" he said. "A large social group is intimidating. They're able, but often unwilling.

Some graduates go on to college, but the school can't carry a curriculum that is college-oriented.

Taylor said he has been blessed with "superb teachers in the area of motivation. They have the needed skill to communicate, and they must keep at it continually."

He said a principal's job at San Antonio is primarily counselling the students, not so much administration.

"One must walk on the line between parents and students," he commented. "Some parents care, some don't."

Taylor has been with the Claremont School District 22 years, and has had a variety of jobs, including welfare and attendance supervisor, director of student activities, English, math and algebra teacher.

In his spare time he likes to fly, ski, sail or backpack. He owns part interest in a Cessna Skyline, a four-seater, which he flies out of Cable Airport.

At Cable he also uses his flight instructor's license.

Taylor has taken San Antonio students on flights, just for the fun of it, or on field trips.

Fire restrictions imposed for forest

Smoking is prohibited and permits are required for all camp fires in the Angeles National Forest.

Forest Supervisor William T. Dresser said these restrictions are issued annually as a fire prevention and public safety measure.

"With the delayed winter season and limited rainfall this year, the moisture content in the brush is already far below normal, increasing the potential fire hazard," said Dresser.

"Through public cooperation and adherence to these fire prevention measures, it is hoped that the disastrous fires of last year will not re-occur."

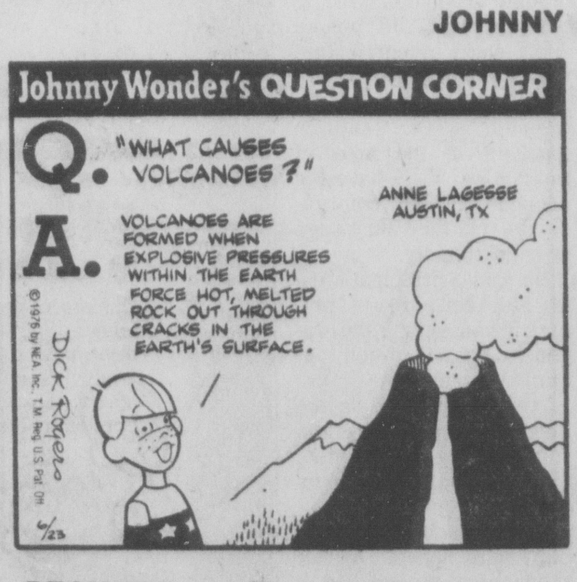
JOHNNY WONDER

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER



A volcano is a hole, or vent, in the earth's crust through which lava and gases are thrown out in eruptions.

The earth's seemingly rigid crust actually consists of several giant pieces, called plates, which make up the continents and ocean floors.

Underneath the rocky plates, in the earth's mantle, is a layer of hot, melted rock. As they slowly slide around on top of the hot, syrupy mantle, the plates grind and crush together.

Friction from the grinding plates causes heat, which adds to the heat of the molten rock below.

The heat builds up until pressure forces gases and fiery lava out through cracks in the earth's surface. As the hot materials escape from the earth, they may build up a cone-shaped mountain around the hole.

Many volcanoes do not throw lava high into the air, but push it out in a quiet lava flow.

As the lava cools and hardens, it turns into the rocky stuff we see in lava beds.

A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

Assembly passes Campbell proposal on adoption info

Proposed legislation that would help adult adoptees and their natural parents to locate each other has been passed by the state Assembly.

Assemblyman William Campbell, R-64th Dist., said his measure provides the mechanism for such meetings provided there is mutual consent.

Under present law, all records regarding adopted children are sealed and can only be released by order of the Superior Court, he said. "These court orders are extremely rare so as not to invade the privacy of the parties involved."

Campbell said his measure would change that system. It would, however, allow for an additional mechanism where the person adopted and the natural parents may request to meet each other.

"Without a request by both parties, the Department of Health would be authorized to take no action. If, however, a request is initiated by both the parent and the child, the department will then contact both parties to verify that, in fact, a meeting is desired.

"Should either party change their mind at this point, the department would cease all action on the request. If a meeting is mutually desired, the department will make arrangements for such a meeting to take place," he added.

"No information as to the identity of either party or any other information contained in the sealed records will be made available by this bill.

"The purpose of this bill is to provide adopted adults and their natural parents their inherent right to learn about their own life. By providing the safe deposit box type mechanism (two keys are required to work the lock) we have insured that we would not infringe upon the rights or privacy of any of the parties concerned.

"Additionally, the meeting and the requests are kept strictly confidential," said Campbell.

The legislator, whose district includes Walnut, Diamond Bar and Hacienda Heights, said he hoped the state Senate would join the Assembly in passing the bill so it can be enacted into law.

Deboning stretches meat

The U. S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has proposed to specifically define and standardize various classes of meat — excluding poultry — used in processed meat products.

The proposal to amend the Federal Meat Inspection Regulations would enable processors to utilize new equipment and technologies to recover additional meat from carcasses which are now lost to the human food chain, according to Dr. Francis J. Mulhern, Administrator of USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS).

"The proposal would not affect the labeling of steaks, roasts, chops, and other traditional fresh meat cuts available to consumers at retail meat counters," Dr. Mulhern said.

A series of consumer meetings — the first of which was held prior to issuance of the proposal — will be conducted in various cities around the country in order to give consumers an opportunity to learn in detail about the proposal and to give their comments to USDA officials.

APHIS meat inspection officials said the amendment was proposed in recognition of the increasing concern over the potential world wide food shortage and resulting pressures on the food industry to find additional sources of protein, and utilize existing sources more efficiently.

Concurrent with official publication of the proposal to redefine and standardize the various classes of meat, APHIS officials also published interim rules to permit production of mechanically deboned and low temperature rendered meats.

According to Dr. Mulhern, production of these products under such interim rules will enable USDA to gather additional data to aid in deciding upon ultimate limits for protein, fat and bone quantity, and protein quality, that would be appropriate and acceptable in various formulated products. Processors choosing to produce products under these interim rules will be required to obtain USDA approval for their equipment, processing procedures, product labels and a quality control system to ensure compliance with the interim standards. The interim rules will remain in effect pending a final decision on the general revision of the regulations to redefine meat, unless rescinded earlier.

Nearly one billion additional pounds of meat could be added to the nation's food supply through the mechanical deboning process. APHIS said recent technological improvements in this type of processing equipment have made it possible to recover up to 13 to 16 additional pounds of meat per beef carcass and up to 3 to 4 pounds per pork carcass.

Under traditional hand deboning methods, loss of meat typically occurs when packing house employees attempt to cut the meat away from neck bones, ribs, and back bones. Mechanical deboning machines can strip such bones clean of all meat that otherwise would not be gotten by hand deboning.

In the mechanical deboning process, a small amount of very finely ground bone is retained in the meat. These particles would be so fine that they would not be detectable by sight, taste, or feel to people eating meat products containing mechanically deboned meat.

The proposal would help to correct inconsistencies in the existing definitions of meat contained in the present regulations, which contribute to the loss of valuable food products.

Persons wishing to comment on the proposal should file their written comments in duplicate with the Hearing Clerk, Room 112-A, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250, before Aug. 25, 1976. To present oral comments, persons should contact the Product Labels, Packaging, and Standards, Staff, Scientific and Technical Servides, Meat and Poultry Inspection Program, APHIS-USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250. Copies of the proposal, which will be published in the April 27 Federal Register, may be obtained from APHIS, Room 1166-South Building, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250. All comments will be available for inspection.

A fitting finale for any occasion

Of the mature homemakers interviewed in focus group sessions in Chicago recently, most eat dessert regularly. And, poundcake appears to be popular with this 45-65 year old set. One woman interviewed said, "I buy frozen poundcake whenever I want dessert, which is just about all the time."

The Individual Raspberry Trifles are layers of poundcake cubes laced with sherry, bright raspberry sauce and whipped topping. It can be made simply, anytime of the year, with the aid of items from the freezer like frozen raspberries, whipped topping and poundcake. The frozen raspberries have been fully ripened and packaged at the peak of perfection throughout the year. For an attractive presentation, serve in a crystal bowl or in individual parfait glasses.

A fitting finale for any occasion, the Individual Raspberry Trifles can also be served at card games, family gatherings, club meetings or whatever form of entertainment fits your style.

Try the Individual Raspberry Trifles this evening with a dinner that is easy to fix right from the freezer. Serve frozen salisbury steaks with 2 tablespoons of Burgundy added to the gravy prior to cooking. Pop a frozen spinach souffle in the oven, too. Heat a frozen rice pilaf, toss together a green salad and the meal is ready in minutes.

INDIVIDUAL RASPBERRY TRIFLES

- 1 (10 ounce) package frozen raspberries, thawed
- 2 teaspoons cornstarch
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- ½ an 11½ ounce frozen pound cake, thawed
- ¼ cup sherry
- 1 (4½ ounce) container frozen non-dairy whipped topping, thawed

Stir undrained raspberries together with cornstarch in a small saucepan. Cook over moderate heat, stirring until mixture thickens and clears. Remove from heat. Stir in lemon juice and cool.

Cut pound cake into small cubes. Sprinkle with sherry. Let stand several minutes.

In 5-ounce dessert dishes, alternate layers of whipped topping, cake cubes, and raspberry mixture ending with a swirl of whipped topping. Chill. Makes 4 servings.

Sandwich idea for a picnic

Americans love picnics. A popular pastime in the summer and early fall is toting a basket picnic supper to an outdoor concert. Whether it's rock, jazz or Beethoven's Fifth, people of all ages can be found in the local parks listening to music and eating sandwich.

Another favorite is the tailgate picnic — so called because a station wagon's tailgate when lowered makes an ideal picnic table. This modern version of chuck wagon meal is a great way to picnic before a baseball or football game.

The best part of any picnic is the food. Make sure you have plenty of it; you'll work up an appetite just being outdoors. Select foods that suit the weather, the group and the picnic site. In general picnic foods should be quick to make, simple to carry and easy to eat. Finger foods (crackers, peanuts, raw vegetables, pickles), cold cooked meats, hearty salads (potato, macaroni, rice, coleslaw), hot and cold thermos drinks and uncut fruit travel well.

Sandwiches are always popular for picnics. Make them ahead and wrap individually or carry different fillings in plastic containers along with a variety of bread and rolls. Suggested here is Curried Shrimp Salad for sandwichs. The surprise ingredients in this crunchy sandwich spread is cocktail peanuts which give flavor and texture as well as nourishment. Peanut supply large amounts of protein, niacin, riboflavin and other important food elements.

CURRIED SHRIMP SALAD

Makes 6 sandwiches

- 2 cups chopped cooked shrimp
- 1 cup finely chopped celery
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¾ teaspoon curry powder
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 2 tablespoon chopped parsley
- ½ cup mayonnaise
- ½ cup chopped cocktail peanuts
- 6 hard rolls

Combine shrimp and celery in a large bowl. Mix together onion, salt, curry, lemon juice, parsley and mayonnaise. Blend into shrimp mixture. Chill.

Add peanuts. Cut ½-inch slice from top of each roll, then scoop out soft center. Fill below of each roll with shrimp mixture.

Not too long

It's thrifty to save hearts and gizzards from chickens and freeze them, but don't store them more than 3 months. When enough have accumulated, use them to make broth.

Fish, vegetables in 2 easy dishes

Whet your family's seafood appetite with two new, low-cost entrees that combine the best of fish and vegetables in one easy dish.

Families looking for low-calorie meals will find this crustless quiche ideal for quick dinners. It's a healthful blend of frozen chopped spinach and any frozen white fish, be it haddock, cod, sole, turbot or perch. This flexible recipe lets you take advantage of the frozen fish specials at your local supermarket.

FISH AND SPINACH QUICHE

1 (one-pound) package frozen white fish fillets
2 eggs, lightly beaten
1 (10-ounce) package frozen chopped spinach, defrosted
2 tablespoons grated parmesan cheese
1 tablespoon chives or chopped green onion
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
salt, pepper, nutmeg to taste

In a saucepan simmer frozen fish in saltwater for 10 minutes, or until fish flakes easily with fork. Flake fish into nine-inch pie dish. Separately combine eggs, spinach and all seasonings. Pour over flaked fish, then dot with butter or margarine. Bake for 20 minutes in preheated 400-degree oven. Serve hot, or cut into wedges and serve cold with green goddess dressing. Yields four to six servings.

For a more elegant main dish, here's another combination of fish and vegetables, this time featuring frozen sole and zucchini. The lowcost ingredients in this recipe bake up into a rich, bubbling casserole that has great eye appeal and color.

SOLE ZUCCHINI CASSEROLE

1 (one-pound)package frozen sole, thawed
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ teaspoon salt
1 (10-ounce)package frozen zucchini slices, thawed
½ cup frozen chopped green pepper
¼ cup frozen chopped onion
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 (10¾-ounce) can cream of mushroom soup
1 (2¼-ounce) can sliced ripe olives, drained
2 tablespoons white wine
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1 tablespoon chopped pimiento
½ teaspoon dill weed

Sprinkle fish with lemon juice and salt. Roll up each fillet, then cut in halves. Place rolls in shallow 1½-quart baking dish.

Saute zucchini, green pepper and onion lightly in butter or margarine, cooking until dry. Stir in undiluted soup, olives, wine, parsley, pimiento and dill weed. Heat together just to boiling, then pour over fish rolls.

Bake in 350-degree oven for 15 to 20 minutes, or until fish flakes easily. Makes 4 servings.

Have a feast with freezer jams

The peach was reportedly born in China long before history was written. During the eighth century the poets of the land celebrated its' season with an annual "Feast of Peaches" which was actually a banquet resplendent with exotic delicacies. The glory of the meal, however, was peaches.

Today everyone celebrates peach season, and many peach lovers extend the season by freezing peaches or turning them into fresh-tasting, easy-to-make freezer jams.

The three recipes that follow all boast the special flavor of fresh ripe fruit that is the wonder of freezer jams. The fruit isn't cooked, but is merely crushed and mixed with a 2 ounce package of powdered jam and jelly pectin, light corn syrup and sugar. The 2 ounce size jam and jelly pectin is essential to this technique, and corn syrup is added to prevent crystallization while contributing to the good jam consistency. When directions are carefully followed, the freezer jam is amazingly easy to make. It needs no processing, no boiling, no special canning jars, nor paraffin seal. It is as inviting for the first-time jam-maker as for the old hand. Any family, anywhere, can celebrate "The Feast of Peaches" this year, all year.

Orange Peach Freezer Jam

3 pounds (about) fully ripe peaches
¼ cup of lemon juice
2 medium oranges
1 package (2 oz) powdered jam and jelly pectin
1 cup light corn syrup
4½ cups sugar

Rinse, peel, pit and fully crush peaches. Measure 2 cups. In large bowl or saucepan, stir together peaches and lemon juice. Rinse oranges and grate enough orange rind to measure 1 teaspoon. Reserve. Peel, section and finely chop oranges. Measure 1¼ cups. In large bowl or saucepan, stir together fruits and grated orange rind. Slowly sift in jam and jelly pectin, stirring vigorously. Set aside 30 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add corn syrup, stirring well. Gradually stir in sugar. To hasten sugar dissolving, jam mixture may be heated very slightly, but do not heat to more than 100 degrees (lukewarm). Ladle into washed and scalded freezer containers leaving ½-inch headspace. Cover at once with tight lids (no paraffin needed). Label all containers. Store in freezer and transfer to refrigerator as needed. Makes 7 (½-pint) containers.

Spiced Peach Freezer Jam

2½ pounds fully ripe peaches
¼ cup lemon juice
½ teaspoon ground ginger
½ teaspoon ground nutmeg
1 package (2 oz.) powdered jam and jelly pectin
1 cup light corn syrup
4½ cups sugar

Rinse, peel, pit and fully crush peaches. Measure 3¼ cups. In large bowl or saucepan, stir together peaches and lemon juice. Add ginger and nutmeg; mix well. Slowly sift in jam and jelly pectin, stirring vigorously. Set aside 30 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add corn syrup, stirring well. Gradually stir in sugar. To hasten sugar dissolving, jam mixture may be heated very slightly, but do not heat to more than 100 degrees (lukewarm). Ladle into washed and scalded ½ to 1-pint freezer containers leaving ½-inch headspace. Cover at once with tight lids (no paraffin needed). Label all containers. Store in freezer and transfer to refrigerator as needed. Makes 7 (½-pint) containers.

Peach Pineapple Freezer Jam

1½ pounds fully ripe peaches
1 cup undrained crushed canned pineapple, packed in its own juice
¼ cup lemon juice
1 package (2 oz) powdered jam and jelly pectin
1 cup light corn syrup
4½ cups sugar

Rinse, peel, pit and fully crush peaches. Measure 2¼ cups. In large bowl or saucepan, stir together fruits and lemon juice. Slowly sift in jam and jelly pectin, stirring vigorously. Set aside 30 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add corn syrup, stirring well. Gradually stir in sugar. To hasten sugar disolving, jam mixture may be heated very slightly, but do not heat to more than 100 degrees (lukewarm). Ladle into washed and scalded ½ to 1-pint freezer containers leaving ½-inch headspace. Cover at once with tight lids (no paraffin needed). Label all containers. Store in freezer and transfer to refrigerator as needed. Makes about 8 (½-pint) containers.

Canned beans make delicious casseroles

Did you know that the covered dish or pot luck supper where each family brings a favorite dish to share at the church, school or civic meeting goes back to the earliest days of America?

It's an interesting story. The Puritans were very pious people and they believed it was a sin to do any work after sundown Saturday and all day Sunday. This was the Lord's time in their lives. This concern extended even to the preparation of food but the Puritans got around this in a clever way. On Fridays they soaked dried beans. On Saturdays they added brown sugar and mustard, pork and water, and took the beans in their big crocks to the baker who used his brick ovens to bake the beans all day. Thus, they had a delicious Saturday night supper, and good provisions for the Sunday meal without doing any work on the Sabbath. Before the people went in for the long sermon, they set their bean pots to warm by the open hearth where they would meet to eat at "nooning time."

Beans are still being baked the brick oven way in New England today. Church suppers are still being given, too, and the favorite contri-bution to a pot luck affair is a piping hot crock of beans made the convenient way with perhaps a touch or two of your own such as a dash of onion or molasses.

If you want to make a showpiece baked bean casserole, try Lattice Top Bean and Beef Casserole. It looks so attractive, everyone will gravitate toward it at the covered dish supper, and the dish will soon be empty, a sign of popularity well known to experienced pot-luckers. Canned baked beans can also serve as a hearty and well-loved side dish. Sweet and Sour Beans are a delightful variation using canned brick oven baked beans. Your family will enjoy this — as well as your fellow guests at the pot luck supper.

Lattice Top Bean and Beef Casserole

1/3 cup chopped onion
1/3 cup chopped green pepper
1 tablespoon oil
¾ pound ground beef
¼ cup catsup
1 28-ounce can brick oven baked beans
1 cup buttermilk baking mix
5 tablespoons corn meal
6 tablespoons milk

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. In a large frying pan, saute onion and green pepper in oil for 3 minutes. Add ground beef and cook until meat is browned. Mix in cat-sup and beans. Place in 1½-quart casserole. Bake for 15 minutes. Meanwhile, in a small bowl, combine baking mix and corn meal. Add milk all at once; stir with fork into a soft dough. Beat vigorously 20 strokes, until dough is fairly free from the sides of the bowl. Turn dough onto cloth covered board, lightly dusted with flour. Knead gently 8 to 10 times. Roll dough out to ¼-inch thickness. Cut into ½-inch strips. Remove casserole from oven; arrange strips on mixture to make a lattice top. Return to oven and bake 10 to 15 minutes longer until top is golden.

Makes: 6-8 servings.

Sweet and Sour Beans

1 28-ounce can brick oven baked beans
2 tablespoons cider vinegar
¼ cup packed brown sugar
1/3 cup diced green pepper
½ teaspoon soy sauce
1 8-ounce can pineapple chunks, drained

In a 2-quart saucepan, combine all ingredients and cook over medium heat for 10-15 minutes or until piping hot.

Makes: 6 servings.

The origin of oranges

Tracing the historical origin of oranges is much like following the cultural mainstreams of mankind, for this popular fruit has evidently been around in one form or another since the Garden of Eden or its historical equivalent.

Our navel oranges are the direct descendants of two navel trees from the Brazilian state of Bahia that were imported by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (with the aid of a missionary) in 1870 and then transported overland from Washington, D.C. to Riverside, Calif., in 1873 where they were used as the source of extensive plantings.

Long before Leland Stanford drove the golden spike to complete the transcontinental railroad and, incidentally, started oranges rolling eastward, Fra Junipero Serra had, quite literally, planted the seed in the orange orchards that were a fundamental part of each of the missions strung along the California coast more than 200 years ago.

Father Serra's valencia orange seeds were the product of rootstock developed in Central America, Mexico and Florida from orange seeds that Christopher Columbus brought to the New World in his second voyage. And Columbus probably got his seeds from the already-established orange groves of Seville and other parts of southern Europe.

It was the Moors who introduced the orange to the Iberian peninsula, having brought it with them in their westward migration from Arabia. Yet there is historical evidence that it was the Genoese and Portuguese traders who brought the sweet orange from China where it had been cultivated for many centuries to the Mediterranean and that what the Moors brought was the sour orange. In any case, it was the Arabic name "naranj" which stuck.

Cranberry ideas to appease hungry snackers

A snack is described in Webster's Dictionary as a "light lunch," but snacking as such has turned into more than a once-a-day mini repast. There's morning pick-me-up snacking, afternoon snacking, cocktail hour and party snacking, before bedtime snacking and generally, anytime of the day "I'm in the mood for a tidbit" snacking.

These days, keeping a house stocked with snacks for a variety of tastes can put quite a dent in a food budget. Candy bars alone seem to be almost worth their weight in gold! So it's a wise housewife who can prepare tasty snacks that are "cents-ible" as well as nutritionally good.

The sweet 'n tart flavor of cranberries is a favorite of tots, teens and grownups alike and can be used in preparing a variety of snackster delights.

"Cranberry Circus Sandwiches" will please your youngsters. They are prepared open face on whole wheat bread, with a spread made from cream cheese, orange marmalade and chopped nuts. Using cookie cutters, slices of tangy, jellied cranberry sauce are cut into tiny animal shapes. These would be nice to serve children on a rainy day, or after school, or even for a party.

For any day snacking treat, "Redberry Relish Hot Dogs" will be enjoyed by all the family. A spicy mixture is made by combining jellied cranberry sauce, catsup, and pickle relish which is spooned on franks in toasted buns. A strip of bacon is an added tasty touch.

For the kids anytime of the day, or to serve along with cocktails if friends pop in, make batches of "Cranapple Crunch" and "Cranberry Crackle." For the crunch wheat bits are glazed with a mixture of cranberry apple drink, corn syrup, sugar, salt and butter, and the crackle is a combination of cranberry juice cocktail, popped corn, peanuts, corn syrup, brown sugar, salt, butter, baking soda, and vanilla. Both can be stored for long periods in airtight containers and kept on hand for nibbling.

No snacking would be complete without a refreshing sipper, and "Cranberry Super Shake" will become a family favorite. It combines vanilla ice cream, jellied cranberry sauce, milk, nonfat milk crystals, almond and vanilla extracts. This pretty, pink and foamy drink can be mixed ahead of time and kept conveniently in the refrigerator. It's also delicious served along with any of the other snacks.

This collection of snacks is sure to appease the appetites of the hungriest snacksters in your house.

CRANBERRY CIRCUS SANDWICHES
(Makes 8 sandwiches)

- 1 package (8 ounces) cream cheese, at room temperature
- 1/3 cup orange marmalade
- 1/3 cup chopped walnuts or pecans
- 8 slices whole wheat bread
- 1 can (16 ounces) jellied cranberry sauce

In a bowl with fork beat cream cheese until fluffy. Beat in marmalade and nuts. Spread mixture on slices of bread. With a sharp knife cut jellied cranberry sauce into ½ inch thick lengthwise slices. Place slices on paper toweling to absorb excess mixture. Using cookie cutters, cut animals out of sauce. Place animals on top of sandwiches. Chill until ready to serve.

Redberry Relish Hot Dogs
(Serves 8)

- ½ cup jellied cranberry sauce
- ½ cup catsup
- ¼ cup well drained pickle relish
- 8 frankfurters
- 8 frankfurter buns, split
- 8 slices crisp bacon

In a bowl, mix cranberry sauce, catsup and pickle relish until well blended. Grill frankfurters until brown on all sides in a broiler or skillet. Toast buns. Place cooked frank in each. Spoon relish over franks. Top each with bacon slices. Serve at once.

Cranapple Crunch
(Makes 16 cups)

- 2/3 cup cranberry apple drink
- 2 cups sugar
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- 2/3 cup light corn syrup
- ½ cup butter or margarine
- 2 packages (12 ounces each) bite-size shredded wheat

In a large saucepan, combine cranberry apple drink, sugar, salt and corn syrup. Add butter and bring mixture to a boil. Boil hard, stirring occasionally, until the temperature on a candy thermometer registers 270 degrees. Place shredded wheat into a large greased bowl. Slowly pour hot syrup over shredded wheat while stirring with a greased long spoon until all pieces are coated. Spread shredded wheat in a thin layer on two greased large cookie sheets. Let stand at room temperature until syrup hardens. Store in an airtight container in a cool dry place until ready to serve.

Cranberry Crackle
(Makes 18 cups)

- 1 cup cranberry juice cocktail
- 2/3 cup light corn syrup
- 1 cup firmly packed dark brown sugar
- 2 cups sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ cup butter or margarine
- ½ teaspoon baking soda
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 16 cups popped corn
- 2 cups Spanish peanuts

In a large saucepan, combine cranberry juice, syrup, brown sugar, sugar, salt and butter. Bring to a boil and boil hard until the temperature on a candy thermometer registers 290 degrees. Remove from heat and stir in baking soda and vanilla. Place corn and peanuts into a large greased bowl. Slowly pour syrup over popcorn while stirring with a greased long spoon until all particles are coated. Press crackle mixture thinly and evenly onto two greased large cookie sheets. Let stand at room temperature until syrup hardens. Store in an airtight container in a cool dry place until ready to serve.

Cranberry Super Shake
(Serves 6)

- 1 can (16 ounces) jellied cranberry sauce
- 1 quart vanilla ice cream, slightly softened
- 2 cups milk
- 1 cup nonfat dry milk crystals
- 1 teaspoon almond extract
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract

In a blender, combine cranberry sauce and ice cream. Whirl until smooth. Pour mixture into a large bowl. In blender, combine milk, milk crystals, almond and vanilla extracts and whirl until smooth. Combine milk and cranberry mixture in a bowl and beat until smooth and well blended. Pour into glasses and serve with large straws. Serve at once.

Papaya is mini feast in itself

Papaya, the tropical fruit from Hawaii, is a mini feast in itself. One average papaya, about a pound, makes two generous servings, eminently practical for us Mainlanders who live alone or have small families. And it's one soft-fleshed fruit we can enjoy at every season of the year.

Papayas are easy to select at the market. Look for a somewhat pear-shaped fruit, 5 to 6 inches long, green-colored with a touch of yellow showing through. Papayas will ripen in a couple of days at room temperature to a bright half yellow, half green to over-all yellow-orange. Once ripe, papayas should be refrigerated to stay fresh for up to a week. Never squeeze this delicate fruit to determine ripeness because papayas bruise easily. Color is the best guide.

Sweet and refreshing, Hawaiian papaya is a "regular" in the Islander's diet. Hawaiians start their day off with juicy golden papaya, halved and seeded with a splash of lime or lemon juice. The papaya is an excellent breakfast fruit. In addition to its marvelous tropical flavor, it has only 78 calories per half and is rich in vitamins C and A and potassium.

Papaya Kebobs

Cubes of Hawaiian papaya, alternating with other attractive foods on a stick, make easy, elegant appetizers for summer entertaining. Papaya will not turn dark after cutting so the kebobs can be prepared ahead of all the last-minute rush. Mix and match these kebob ideas:

—Papaya with ham cubes; with small prawns or crab legs and a cocktail sauce for dipping; with chunks of fresh summer fruits, such as strawberries, peaches, grapes, plums or pineapple; with chicken or beef teriyaki or with bite-sized barbecued pork.

Wow of a Luau Appetizer

Win the praises at your next party by serving big chunks of fresh fruit in a large glass bowl with toothpicks for spearing and a sour cream sauce for dipping. With the wonderful variety of summer fruits starting to appear in markets, the possibilities are endless. Hawaiian papaya is at its peak season during May and June and blends beautifully with other traditional summer fruits — peaches, grapes, strawberries and plums. The fruit bowl is pretty enough to serve as the centerpiece at the table. Each guest should have a small bowl of sour cream — grated orange rind-ginger dressing for dipping speared fruit.

Blend A Papaya

The electric blender and Hawaiian papaya make delicious, refreshing spoon drinks in minutes. For starters, try these two exotic, nourishing drinks:

—Chop one peeled and seeded papaya and one peeled banana into the blender container; add ¼ cup lemon juice and puree. Pour into two glasses and freeze an hour or so until mushy. Garnish with a fresh strawberry, pineapple spear or sprinkling of nutmeg.

—Peel and seed one papaya; chop into the blender container. Add one cup plain yogurt or ice cream and 3 tablespoons honey; puree until smooth. Pour into two mugs and top with a nutty granola.

Pottery bowl

A pottery bowl with a cover, designed for a single serving of French onion soup, makes a good store-and-serve container for homemade pate.

SUKIYAKI

The onion, to its many enthusiasts, is more than a vegetable. It's a spice, a flavoring, a song in the stew. It's even been hailed as a nostrum, a cure-all and a good-luck charm. General Ulysses S. Grant thought them indispensable and refused to move his Union troops without them.

Of course, there's a more mundane reason why some people become seemingly emotional about onions: freshly sliced onions make them cry. There are as many popular ways to avoid tears over onions as there are tales about onions themselves, but one that many people think works is to hold the onion under running water as you are slicing it.

Onion enthusiasts, including those who brave the tears, should be glad to know that late spring onions are now coming on the market in large volumes, and that prices should be lower, according to market reporters.

To get the most out of the onions you buy, select only those that are bright, clean, hard, well shaped, and mature with dry skins.

To keep these high-quality onions fresh and ready to use, store them in a dry place, with a temperature of 32 to 36 degrees and a humidity of 60 to 70 percent or lower. However, if these onions are stored wet, high temperatures, lower humidity, and good air movement are recommended.

For "out-of-the ordinary" dishes using tasty onions try . . .

SWEET — SOUR CARROTS AND ONIONS

Place 1 pound each cooked whole carrots and onions in a baking pan and pour a sweet-sour sauce over them. Heat at 350 degrees for 20 minutes. To prepare sauce: Brown ¼ cup butter, blend in ¼ cup cornstarch and continue browning. Salt and pepper to taste. Combine ¼ cup each sugar and vinegar with 2 cups hot water and gradually stir into butter. Cook slowly until thickened, stirring constantly.

PEAS AND ONIONS NAPOLI

Cook 1 clove garlic, minced, and 1 large onion cut into rings, in 3 tablespoons butter until tender but not brown. Drain a 16 to 17 ounce can of peas; add ¼ cup of the drained liquid and the peas to onions and garlic; heat. Serve sprinkled with Parmesan cheese. Serves four.

Japanese dish goes American

Along with technology and science, the Japanese have absorbed some of the culinary habits of the Western World — especially the eating of meat. Formerly, Buddhist regulations forbade meat consumption but gradually this concept was abandoned and beef, pork and chicken were added to Japanese cuisine. Beef, in particular, has become a staple of the Japanese diet. It is the principal ingredient in the most internationally famous dish Japanese cuisine — Sukiyaki.

The Japanese cook and serve Sukiyaki at the table for all to see. This custom can easily be carried on in the American home with the help of an electric frypan or heavy skillet over a hot plate. (Or just prepare the dish in the kitchen and serve with fluffy white rice.)

Before cooking Sukiyaki, assemble all the ingredients on a platter — strips of beef sirloin; thin slices of onion; fresh mushrooms, celery, water chestnuts and scallions; bean sprouts and fresh spinach. Combine cornstarch, sugar and soy sauce and set aside. At mealtime, heat peanut oil in a skillet and brown the meat quickly on both sides.

(Japanese cooks perfer peanut oil because it can be heated to the very high temperatures necessary to cook foods quickly without smoking or burning.) Next add all the vegetables except spinach and cook for three minutes; pack spinach into skillet and cook three minutes longer. Pour soy sauce mixture into skillet, cook until thickened and serve immediately with hot cooked rice. In just a matter of minutes you can cook a Japanese meal for the whole family to enjoy.

SUKIYAKI

Makes 4 servings

1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 tablespoon sugar
1/3 cup soy sauce
1/3 cup peanut oil
1 pound beef sirloin cut in thin strips
1 medium onion, thinly sliced
½ pound sliced fresh mushrooms
1 can (16-ounce) bean sprouts, drained
½ cup diagonally sliced celery
¼ cup sliced water chestnuts
¼ cup sliced scallions
1 package (10-ounce) fresh spinach, washed and trimmed
Hot cooked rice

Combine cornstarch, sugar and soy suace; set aside.

In electric skillet, heat peannut oil. Quickly brown meat on both sides, Stir in onion, mushrooms, bean sprouts, celery, water chestnuts and scallions; cook for 3 minutes, stirring constantly. Pack spinach into skillet. Cover; cook 3 minutes longer. Stir to mix well. Pour soy sauce mixture into skillet. Cook and stir until sauce is thickened. Serve immediately with hot cooked rice and additional soy sauce, if desired.

Roast pork, corn stuffing are nutritional old favorites

Two long-time country favorites, roast pork and corn bread stuffing, offer good taste and convenience for modern menus. Corn bread stuffing seasoned with sage and thyme is baked in the same pan as the roast. The pork roast drippings flavor the corn bread enhancing the old-fashioned goodness of the easy one-pan entree.

A tender, lean fresh ham roast is a good choice for economy-conscious consumers. Select a boneless roast so there is no waste in bones.

Nutritionally, pork is a good source of niacin, riboflavin and thiamine — all nutrients essential to good health. A 4.8 ounce serving of lean pork contains about 250 calories and 40 grams of protein. According to Recommended Dietary Allowances established by the National Academy of Sciences, an adult male weighing 154 pounds needs about 55 grams of protein per day. To establish the protein need for each family member multiply the weight in pounds by the factor 0.36. This calculation is based on the technical rule that about a third of a gram of protein is recommended for each pound you weigh.

Pork Roast and Herbed Corn Bread Stuffing

Makes 7 to 8 servings

5 to 6 pound pork leg (fresh ham) boneless roast

Place roast on rack in shallow pan. Insert roast meat thermometer. Roast in 325 degree F. oven, until internal temperature reaches 185 degrees F. or about 4 hours. During the last hour of cooking remove roast from oven and add Herbed Corn Bread Stuffing to the pan. Return to oven for one hour or until pork is done.

Herbed Corn Bread Stuffing

6 cups coarsely crumbled corn bread
1 stick (½ cup) butter or margarine
1 cup chopped celery
½ cup chopped onion
1 cup sliced mushrooms
1 cup chicken broth or 1 chicken bouillon cube dissolved in 1 cup boiling water
2 eggs, beaten
1 teaspoon leaf thyme
½ teaspoon leaf sage
1 teaspoon salt

Place corn bread in large mixing bowl. Melt butter in small skillet. Add celery, onion and mushrooms. Saute about 5 minutes then add to corn bread. Add remaining ingredients and mix well. Bake with pork roast according to above.

SPICE CAKE

Here's a little different cake

Are you looking for a back-to-basics cake recipe, but you don't want to cover yourself completely with flour? Do you want a healthy dessert to eat along with your evening coffee? Do you like carrot cake, but you just don't happen to have any carrots handy? And, most importantly, are you ready for the unusual?

Well, look no further. Because there's a Very Special Spice Cake recipe that just fits the bill. It's made with tomato sauce.

VERY SPECIAL SPICE CAKE

- 3 cups sifted flour
- 1½ cups sugar
- 1½ teasp. baking powder
- 1½ teasp. cinnamon
- ¾ teasp. nutmeg
- ¾ teasp. cloves
- ¾ teasp. allspice
- ¾ teasp. salt
- 1 (8-oz./226 grams) can tomato sauce
- 1½ teasp. baking soda
- 2 eggs, beaten
- ¾ cup pure vegetable oil
- 1 cup chopped nuts
- 1½ cups golden raisins
- ½ cup orange or pineapple juice

In large mixing bowl, combine flour, sugar, baking powder, spices and salt. Thoroughly mix sauce and soda in small bowl; add to flour mixture. Stir in eggs, oil, nuts, raisins & fruits juice; mix well. Pour into greased 10-inch (25 centimeter) bundt or tube pan. Bake at 350 degrees (175 c) 45 to 55 minutes. Cool in pan 15 minutes before turning out on serving plate. Dust top with powdered sugar. Makes one 10-inch (25 centimeters) cake.

CURRY TOMATOES

- 4 medium-large tomatoes, about 1½ pounds
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, softened
- 1 tablespoon dark brown sugar
- 1 teaspoon curry powder
- ¼ teaspoon salt

Rinse tomatoes and cut out stem ends; slice each in half crosswise; if any of the halves do not stand straight when placed cut-side up, cut a very thin slice from the bottom. Place well apart on a foil-lined, for easy cleanup, shallow baking pan. Stir together the remaining ingredients; top tomatoes with it. Bake in a pre-heated 400-degree oven just until hot through and sugar has melted — about 10 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

Olympic athletes will snack on raisins

To an Olympic athlete, diet plays a key role in training and competition. A balance of nutrients and an adequate intake of calories is especially important to maintaining strength and endurance.

Water, vitamins, minerals, protein, fats and carbohydrates are the nutrients a competitive athlete, and we all need daily.

The body needs water for energy production, for temperature control, particularly during periods of vigorous exercise, and for the elimination of waste. Depriving the body of water greatly limits strength and endurance.

Vitamins and minerals are necessary for regulating body processes and building body chemicals.

Fats are a concentrated source of food energy. They add flavor to food and have a high satiety value.

Protein is a component of all body tissue and is needed for growth and repair. However, proteins are a less efficient source of energy than carbohydrates and fats.

Carbohydrates are the body's primary source of energy. Sugars and starches are the most efficient and readily available source of energy, and generally the most inexpensive. Carbohydrate foods should contribute well over 50 per cent of an athlete's total caloric intake.

Bread, pasta, rice, vegetable starch as in potatoes and dry beans, fresh fruits and raisins are examples of carbohydrate-rich foods. These foods may be consumed at meals and as snacks.

Raisins are an ideal snack food for athletes because they're lightweight, portable and easy to handle, and because they don't add a lot of bulk to the diet.

This summer 68,000 raisin snack packs will help feed more than 8,000 athletes from 131 countries during the game. The raisins will be used on a cold buffet table available three times a day and will be packed in box lunches for the athletes competing outside of the Olympic Village.

For your own summer snacking fun, try these Olympic Raisin Oatcakes. They're a cinch to make, and like rainsins, these bar cookies are portable, packable and light-weight — perfect for camping, hiking or biking.

For another quick summer snack, make Volley Ball Gorp. Simply mix together raisins, minature marshmallows and animal crackers for a fun, high-energy snack.

OLYMPIC RAISIN OATCAKES

- ½ cup butter or margarine
- 1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1 cup raisins
- 2 cups oats
- ¼ cup chopped nuts
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- ¼ teaspoon salt

In saucepan, melt butter. Stir in sugar and cinnamon until smooth. In bowl, mix remaining ingredients. Add butter mixture. Blend ingredients thoroughly with fingers. Press in greased 8-inch square pan. Bake in preheated 350 degree-oven, 25 minutes. (It will look soft in middle but golden around edges.) Sprinkle with powdered sugar if desired. Cool until firm, about 1 hour. Cut into squares.

Makes 25 1½-inch squares

VOLLEY BALL GORP

Mix 1 cup raisins with 1 cup miniature marshmallows and 1 package (2 ounces) animal crackers.

Makes about 2½ cups.

Peanuts give salad spread surprise flavor

If you are the type of person who is happiest when busy, you probably enjoy taking on as much PTA, church and political campaign work as you can handle. Besides hard work, these jobs usually mean lots of fun and friends and the personal satisfaction of doing something for others.

With political campaign work you are doing a job that benefits your country. Candidates depend upon campaign workers to raise funds, urge people to vote and acquaint community members with political issues. Extensive planning and preparation are needed for this work . . . and many meetings.

Don't forget refreshments when you are having a business meeting or work session. Even volunteers work better on full stomachs.

Plan snacks that are light and quick to serve so that you do not have to interrupt your participation in the meeting to fuss with the food. Confetti Egg Salad Spread can be prepared in advance and refrigerated until serving time. It is a colorful blend of eggs, peanuts, pimiento, ripe olives and parsley that is all nourishment and no empty calories. The surprise ingredient in this delicious spread is peanuts which give flavor and texture as well as nutrients. Peanuts supply large amounts of protein, niacin, riboflavin and other important food elements.

CONFETTI EGG SALAD SPREAD

- 6 finely chopped hard-cooked eggs
- ½ cup finely chopped peanuts
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped pimiento
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped ripe olives

- ½ teaspoon white pepper
- ¼ cup mayonnaise
- 1 tablespoon milk

Rich potato soups perk up summer picnics

When a picnic is "in the soup" it means that it's the latest style. People are taking homemade soups to picnics and enjoying them a lot. Soups go great with sandwiches, hot dogs or hamburgers and they fill in the corners created by outdoor hunger.

Picnic soups may be piping hot or chilled. Both travel well in a vacuum bottle. Some of the most appealing picnic soup ideas are coming out of Idaho. Many early settlers of Idaho were Germans, and the Germans make marvelous potato soups with rich, thick texture and earthy flavor. Potato and Cheese Soup is great eating served hot at a picnic or cook out, and it has a built-in convenience factor for the cook. It's made with packaged hash brown potatoes. They are just stirred into the creamy soup mixture and cook covered for 10 minutes. It's that simple.

A Cold Potato and Cucumber Soup adds a touch of elegance to a picnic, and it's very easy to make despite its gourmet character. The easy part comes by using instant mashed potatoes for the soup base, and quickly buzzing it up in an electric blender. This is a wonderful soup to tote to picnics, and a favorite, too, for luncheons and suppers when the weather has gotten very hot.

Summer is the time to make the most of convenience products to get out of the kitchen fast, and packaged instant potato products are one of the best friends a cook can find at the supermarket. Use them often to cut down work in the summer kitchen.

High quality apples ready this summ.

Apples made news last fall when the biggest crop on record nationwide was harvested. Now, through the wonder of "controlled atmosphere" storage, high quality apples will be good consumer news this summer.

Right now, fresh apple supplies are over 60 per cent higher than in recent years. Last spring, 9,745,844 forty-two pound bushels of apples were in storage on May 1. This year's supply on that date was 16,301,206 bushels.

Major retail chains are planning apple specials in the coming weeks, reflecting lower wholesale prices.

"Harvesting apples at just the right stage of maturity and cooling them immediately are the keys to successful long term storage," according to Joe Brownlow, Manager of the Washington State Apple Commission. "Temperature and oxygen content of the storage rooms are controlled to slow down the breathing rate of apples. The fruit is actually 'lulled to sleep'," Brownlow adds.

Many people rate the flavor of apples from storage better than that of those right off the tree.

Consumers can benefit from this unprecedented summer apple situation by using the fruit in a variety of easy ways.

— Green salads can include apple chunks or wedges. Golden Delicious apples keep their color longer than others after cutting, but a squeeze of fresh lemon juice will retard discoloration of any apple.

— Add apple chunks to chicken or seafood salads, potato salad, and cole slaw.

— Include thinly sliced apple on meat sandwiches.

— Spread peanut butter or cheese spread on apple wedges for snacks.

— Carry apples to picnics along with other summer fruits. Apples eaten out of hand act as "nature's toothbrush," helping to clean other food particles from between teeth.

The average apple has just 90 calories, and one milligram sodium per hundred grams, making it suitable for low-sodium diets. So plan to take advantage of the current price advantage available now. The United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association recommends selecting firm, unbruised apples that are of good color for their variety. Refrigerate at home to maintain crispness and flavor.

Tomato paste

Often recipes call for as little as a tablespoon or two of tomato paste and you have a good deal left over in a can you have opened. Store the remaining tomato paste in the freezer and it will keep well.

Preserve pickled peppers now for winter snacks

"Peter Piper picked a peck of pickled peppers. How many pickled peppers did Peter Piper pick?" So goes the renowned tongue twister. But the untwisted fact remains that Peter couldn't possibly have picked pickled peppers. Most probably he picked peppers for pickling, because they're one of the easiest vegetables to preserve.

A peck of peppers, picked and pickled now, while available, will enliven the "football-watchers sandwich snack" in fall.

But however you plan to use your pickled product, now is the time to get ready, set and start pickling.

To help you pack perfect peppers, here are some hints.

—Select fresh, firm, well-shaped peppers with a uniform glossy color.

—Use distilled white or apple cider vinegar with consistent acidity to ensure proper preservation.

—Follow the recipe directions exactly; make small batches; never increase the recipe by doubling, tripling, etc.

—Do not use jars and lids from commercially-packed foods — they are not suitable for home preserving.

The following recipes use fresh green peppers as a major ingredient.

PICKLED GREEN PEPPERS

- 3 pounds green peppers (7-9 large)
- Boiling water
- 2½ cups distilled white vinegar
- 2½ cups water
- 1¼ cups granulated sugar
- 8 cloves garlic
- 4 teaspoons salad oil
- 2 teaspoons salt

Remove seed pods and white "seams." Cut lengthwise into ¾-inch strips. Place pepper strips in bowl; cover with boiling water. Let stand 5 minutes; drain. Combine vinegar, water and sugar in saucepan; simmer 5 minutes. Pack peppers in clean, hot jars. To each jar add 2 cloves garlic, 1 teaspoon oil and ½ teaspoon salt. Pour hot liquid over peppers to within ½ inch of top making sure vinegar solution covers peppers. Cap each jar at once. Process 5 minutes in boiling-water bath. Makes 4 pints.

When made from tender young peppers, the following recipe for PEPPER RELISH will retain a fresh flavor longer. To enjoy the fullest flavor, it is recommended that the relish be used within 6 months.

PEPPER RELISH

- 4 pounds green peppers (18-20 medium)
- 1 pound onions (3-4 large)
- 2 cups distilled white vinegar
- 1¼ cups granulated sugar
- 2 tablespoons salt
- 1 teaspoon mustard seed
- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- ½ teaspoon ground allspice
- ½ teaspoon ground ginger
- ½ teaspoon ground cloves

Wash, trim and quarter peppers and onions. Put vegetables through food grinder, using coarse blade; drain, discarding liquid. Combine vinegar and remaining ingredients in saucepot; heat to boiling. Add vegeatables; simmer 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Continue simmering while quickly packing one clean, hot jar at a time. Fill to within ½ inch of top making sure vinegar solution covers vegetables. Cap each jar at once. Process 5 minutes in boiling-water bath. Makes 4 pints.

A tasty Hawaiian refresher

Almost every mainlander who visits the Hawaiian Islands returns home a devoted fan of Hawaii's favorite tropical fruit, the papaya. Halved or quartered and served with a wedge of lime, the papaya is de rigeur at breakfast everywhere on the Islands, and is a mainstay in Hawaiian cookery at other times of the day.

A chilled, ripe golden-yellow papaya has a fragrant, delicately-sweet flavor reminiscent of the warm tropical sunshine. Fortunately, you don't have to trek to Hawaii to discover this wonderful flavor for yourself. Papaya is now readily available in many mainland markets, including our own, all year long. The papaya is in especially good supply making this a good time to try this exotic fruit.

Unknown to many, the papaya is one of the most healthful of all fresh fruits. One seven-ounce half provides almost twice the vitamin C and over two-thirds the vitamin A recommended daily, as well as other important nutrients, including potassium. Yet, papayas are surprisingly low in calories — a mere 78 per half.

Papayas may be underripe, primarily green with just a touch of yellow, when purchased. But they'll ripen beautifully to a half green, half yellow or over-all yellow-orange in a couple of days at room temperature. Ripe papayas should be stored in the refrigerator where they'll stay fresh for up to a week.

The papaya has a unique pear-like shape and hollowed cavity that makes it a perfect "bowl" for serving main dish and fruit salads, cottage cheese, sherbet or ice cream. For a spectacular brunch or luncheon salad, for example, fill papaya halves with this lime-marinaded fruit. It's served with a spicy cream dressing and brings the taste and look of the Islands right to your home.

PAPAYA SALAD BANANA SPLIT

- 2 Hawaiian papayas
- Lime-Rum Marinade (recipe follows)
- 1 red apple, diced
- ½ pound fresh grapes,
- 2 tablespoons chopped walnuts
- Creamy Dressing (recipe follows)
- 2 bananas
- Lettuce leaves
- Nutmeg

Halve and seed papayas; refrigerate. Prepare Lime-Rum Marinade (recipe follows). In mixing bowl, toss apples, grapes and walnuts together; combine with marinade. Cover and refrigerate. Meanwhile, prepare Creamy Dressing (recipe follows); chill. At serving time, fill papaya halves with drained, marinaded fruit mixture. Arrange on lettuce-lined salad plate. Garnish with banana half, split lengthwise. Place a scoop of Creamy Dressing alongside. Sprinkle with nutmeg.

Make 4 servings.

LIME - RUM MARINADE: In saucepan, combine ¼ cup sugar and 2 tablespoons water; bring to boil. Reduce heat; simmer until sugar dissolves, about 3 minutes. Remove from heat; add ¼ cup lime juice and 2 tablespoons light rum. Makes ½ cup.

CREAMY DRESSING: Into 1 cup whipping cream, whipped stiff, stir 2 tablespoons chopped walnuts, 1 tablespoon sugar and 1 teaspoon each grated lemon rind and lemon juice. Chill. Makes about 1½ cups.

Growing pains

With the exception of Miami, the nation's largest metropolitan areas have almost stopped growing, The Conference Board observes. Migration from the other 15 biggest urban centers nearly offset their natural increase in population between 1970 and 1974; and this trend is expected to continue. Many people are vacationing and retiring in the sun belt — Miami, Tampa-St. Petersburg, Phoenix and Orlando — and business is following them there. Also, population is shifting to the smaller urban areas, which offer most big city advantages without the same scarcity of space.

Wheat bran treats are great lunch box fillers

Filling a lunch box with a variety of tastes and nutrition is one of the biggest problems for the sandwich-maker. For inspiration, take a cue from medical experts concerned with the decrease of fiber in the American diet and add bran to your children's lunches. Wheat bran is one of the best sources of dietary fiber.

It's been known for years that fiber helps regulate elimination, but now it is theorized that it may play a role in preventing cancer of the colon and rectum, diverticulitis, heart disease and obesity, too.

Studies by British researchers show that rural Africans rarely have these diseases until they go to cities and eat modern Western foods as a steady diet. Their native high fiber diet results in moving possibly harmful wastes through the alimentary canal more quickly than is usual in Westerners, and it is believed by some researchers that this helps keep them relatively free of cancer of the colon and rectum.

The modern American diet is low in fiber compared to that of 19th century Americans, but putting roughage back into your diet is as easy as using bran cereal. Sprinkle it on other cereals and other foods, substitute it for nuts in cookies, or use it as a ground meat stretcher. With wheat bran cereal as an ingredient of No-Knead Raisin Bread, Applesauce Cake or Chocolate Branana Bars, you'll give your brown-baggers the fiber needed in a day, and some wholesome new lunch treats.

No-Knead Raisin Bread

- 3 cups unsifted regular all-purpose flour
- ½ cup instant nonfat dry milk (in dry form)
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ½ teaspoon cinnamon
- 2 packages active dry yeast
- ¼ cup sugar
- 1½ cups warm water
- 2 cups bran cereal
- 1 egg
- 1/3 cup regular margarine or butter, softened
- 1 cup seedless raisins
- 1 tablespoon regular margarine or butter, melted
- ½ teaspoon cinnamon
- 2 tablespoons sugar

Stir together flour, nonfat dry milk, salt and ½ teaspoon of the cinnamon. Set aside. Combine yeast, the ¼ cup sugar and the warm water in large mixing bowl. Stir in bran cereal. Let stand about 2 minutes or until cereal is softened. Add egg, margarine and about half of the flour mixture. Beat at medium speed on electric mixer for about 2 mintues or about 200 strokes by hand. Mix in remaining flour mixture by hand to form a stiff, sticky dough. Cover bowl lightly. Let stand in warm place (80 to 85 degrees) until doubled in volume, about 1 hour. Then add raisins, stirring dough down to original volume. Spoon into well-greased 8x5x3-inch loaf pan. Brush top of dough with melted margarine. Sprinkle with a mixture of ½ teaspoon cinnamon and the 2 tablespoons sugar. Bake in 375 degrees oven about 45 minutes or until loaf is golden brown. Remove from baking pan. Cool on wire rack. Yields one loaf.

Applesauce Cake

- 1¾ cups unsifted regular all-purpose flour
- 1½ teaspoons baking power
- ¾ teaspoon baking soda
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1½ cups sugar
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- ¼ teaspoon ground cloves
- ⅛ teaspoon ginger
- ⅛ teaspoon allspice
- 3 eggs
- 2 cups applesauce
- ½ cup vegetable oil
- 1½ cups bran cereal
- ¾ cup coarsely chopped nuts

Stir together flour, baking powder, soda, salt, sugar and spices. Set aside. Beat eggs in large mixing bowl until foamy. Add applesauce, oil and bran cereal. Mix well. Add dry ingredients, mixing until well combined. Stir in nuts. Pour into greased 13x9x2-inch baking pan. Bake in 350 degrees oven about 45 minutes or until wooden pick inserted near center comes out clean. Cool. Dust with confectioners' sugar, if desired. Makes 12 to 16 servings.

Chocolate Branana Bars

- 1 cup unsifted regular all-purpose flour
- ½ teaspoon baking powder
- ¼ teaspoon baking soda
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon cinnamon
- ¼ cup regular margarine or butter, softened
- ¾ cup sugar
- 1 cup mashed, fully ripe bananas (about 3 medium)
- 1 egg
- ¼ cup milk
- 1 cup bran cereal
- 1 package (6 ounces, 1 cup) semi-sweet chocolate pieces, melted
- 1 cup chopped nuts

Stir together flour, baking powder, soda, salt and cinnamon. Set aside. Measure margarine, sugar, bananas, egg, milk, bran cereal and chocolate into large mixing bowl. Beat well. Add flour mixture and nuts. Beat until well combined. Spread mixture in greased and floured 13x9x2-inch baking pan. Bake in 350 degrees oven about 30 minutes or until wooden pick inserted near center comes out clean. Cool. Frost with Chocolate Velvet Frosting. Cut into bars. Makes 32 2 and 1½ inch bars.

Chocolate Velvet Frosting

- 1 package (6 ounces, 1 cup) semi-sweet chocolate pieces
- 2 tablespoons shortening
- 1 cup sifted confectioners' sugar
- ¼ cup milk
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon vanilla flavoring

Melt chocolate with shortening in medium-size saucepan over very low heat, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Add sugar, milk, salt and vanilla, mixing until smooth. Spread over cooled Chocolate Branana Bars.

Old-time conserve worthwhile

By Cecily Brownstone
Associated Press
Food Editor

This is the time of year, before summer's full quota of fruit appears in abundance, to consider "putting up" an old-fashioned conserve made with fresh rhubarb and canned pineapple. It's a delicious spread for toast, biscuits, muffins and other hot breads.

RHUBARB-PINEAPPLE CONSERVE

- 4 cups sliced (1-inch pieces) rhubarb, about
- 1½ pounds 20-ounce can crushed pineapple, drained
- 1½ cups sugar
- ¾ cup light corn syrup
- 1 tablespoon coarsely grated orange rind
- ¼ cup orange juice
- ½ cup coarsely chopped walnuts.

In a heavy 5-quart saucepot stir together the rhubarb, pineapple, sugar, corn syrup, orange rind and orange juice. Cook over low heat, stirring often, until sugar is dissolved. Increase heat and boil, stirring often, until thick — about 45 minutes; temperature, if tested with a candy thermometer, should reach 220 degrees. Stir in walnuts.

Ladle into clean, hot, dry half-pint wide-mouth jars leaving ¼-inch headspace. Wipe top edge of jars with a damp cloth. Seal according to jar manufacturer's directions.

Process in a boiling water bath for 10 minutes after boiling temperature is reached. Remove and cool on a wire rack or a folded towel. Label, date and store in a cool, dry place. For best flavor, use within 1 year.

Makes five ½-pint jars.

There really is some good news

Claremont-Mudd's football fortunes appear to be on the upswing.

Coach John Zinda says he has the best group of freshmen he's had at the Claremont Colleges.

Topping them is running back Rickey Maddox of Pacific Palisades. He has been one of the best in Los Angeles City football the last two years.

At Cleveland High (San Fernando Valley) in 1974, the 5-8, 177-pound Maddox earned second team All-City honors. Last year he moved to Pacific Palisades where he earned co-Player of the Year honors with quarterback Mike Stennis in the Western League.

Maddox gained 1,254 yards in 11 games and averaged 5.47 yards per carry. He caught 11 passes for 87 yards and scored 19 touchdowns rushing.

A versatile ball player, Maddox kicked 31 points-after-touchdowns and five of 10 field goal attempts. He personally outscored nine of the 11 teams he faced and had a total of 160 points in regular season play.

His career total of 349 points broke the record previously held by Anthony Davis.

Things are also looking up for this year's California 500 at Ontario Motor Speedway, Sept. 5.

Advance sales up

General manager Ray Smartis reports advance ticket sales have been best since 1972, the track's second year of operation. Smartis says for the first time ever, Victory Circle seats will be sold out.

Another result of moving the race back to its original day-before-Labor Day running is Smartis' prediction that the California 500 will have as many entries this year as the Indy 500.

There were so few entries last year, if you remember, that in order to fill the 33-car field, two cars that hadn't even qualified were admitted to the race.

Smartis, who said he always felt ticket prices were too high, has reduced them nearly 40 percent on the average.

The current price range is from $8.00 to $30 for reserved seats. General Admission is $6.00. Top price formerly was $55. Seats that formerly cost $30 are $20. Seats formerly costing $25 are $15.

In this day of high inflation and skyrocketing prices, Smartis is doing the unheard of. Wish others would follow.

This year the entire schedule will be compressed into eight busy days, actually seven days of track activity.

OMS will open Sunday, August 29. Practice will be Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. Qualifications will be Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 1 and 2

The track will be open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday through Thursday. Admission will be $1.00 on practice days and $2.00 during qualifications.

Final day of pre-race track action will be Friday, Sept. 3. The course will be open to the 33 qualifiers for final tuneup or carburation runs and pit stop practice.

Twin 100s out

Along with returning to the original Sept. running date, Smartis is also going back to the four-lap qualification run. The first-day qualifiers get the top positions with the fastest car on the pole.

Eliminated are the twin 100-mile qualifying races of the past two years. While interesting, they didn't prove successful financially and were not overwhelmingly popular with the drivers.

Another new daredevil is on the scene. He's "Captain Rollerball" who is really Curt Michaelson of Bloomington, Minn.

Michaelson, or Capt. Rollerball if you prefer, has an act that includes a backpack type, hydrogen peroxide rocket (200 lbs. thrust) and a pair of roller skates.

The rocket gives "Rollerball" enough thrust to attain speeds of 80 mph on rollerskates! He'll be appearing (for awhile at least) at the Nitro Championships at Orange County International Raceway in East Irvine Saturday.

According to the San Francisco Chronicle, Rollie Fingers has revealed that he would have lowered his asking price to remain in Oakland with the Athletics.

"I would have settled for a little less to stay here, but it never came up," Fingers is quoted as saying.

For awhile at least, Bowie Kuhn has put Rollie back in the A's uniform.

STRUGGLE

Claremont High's Dave Brigante of the North team and Garey's Stan Webster of the South vie for control of ball during La Verne Rotary's third annual Pomona Valley All-Star Game Tuesday night at La Verne College's Supertent. North won the game, 92-85.

North cagers are too 'Sly'

By MIKE BROSSART
PB Staff Writer

The North, led by the domineering play of Bonita High's Steve Sly in the second half and Claremont's Rob Fossum in the first, won La Verne Rotary's Pomona Valley All-Star Basketball Game Tuesday night for the first time in the three-year history of the game.

Record-setting performances by Sly and Claremont's Dave Brigante lifted the North to a 92-85 victory before a full house in the La Verne College Supertent.

Sly grabbed 24 rebounds, three more than Cleve Porter's record set in 1974, while the speedy Brigante came up with a record five steals and tied the mark held by Ganesha's Donald Barnes and Claremont's Todd Ervin for the most assists — nine — in the La Verne Rotary game.

Brigante also scored six of his 12 points in the final quarter while the North was stretching its lead from two points to seven over the final 12 minutes. During that fourth quarter Sly scored eight points, Damien's Mike Wetenkamp added seven and Pomona's James Knight tossed in five.

Sly, who had just seven points and six rebounds in the first half, scored 14 points and grabbed 18 caroms in the second half to finish the game as the leading scorer with 21 as well as the leading rebounder.

While Sly was relatively quiet in the first half, Fossum scored 10 of his 13 points and caught 13 of his 21 rebounds — a figure that would have tied Porter's old record.

Those two leapers were primarily responsible for North's 86-70 rebounding advantage in the game — a figure surprising in the light of South's slight height advantage under the boards.

The South was certainly not without its stars. Rowland's Rusty Owens, at 6-foot-6 the tallest player in the game, scored 14 points and gathered in 18 rebounds while Garey's Gary Carpenter scored 14 and caught 14 caroms and Chaffey's Mark McQuaid added 10 points and 17 rebounds. George Terry of Ganesha scored 12 points for the South.

The North trailed, 78-76, with under six minutes to go before Fossum made a free throw and Sly hit a basket to give the Yankees the lead for good, 79-78 with 4:55 remaining.

Knight then scored on an impressive follow shot and Brigante made a pair of free throws for an 83-78 North advantage. After Garey's Stan Webster scored a free throw for the South, the North reeled off six straight points on a tipin by Sly of a Wetenkamp shot and two baskets by Wetenkamp. That gave the North a 10-point lead with under three minutes to go and the victors had no trouble holding the advantage.

"There wasn't really a turning point," said North head coach Remi Tremblay of Bonita after the game. "It was a back-and-forth game and we just had the lead when the clock ran out." The lead changed hands nine times and the score was tied on 12 occasions.

In the first two All-Star games, the scores were somewhat higher: 104-102 and 130-109.

"We slowed the pace down deliberately," said Tremblay. "We didn't want to try to run with them because we knew they'd blow us out."

It looked briefly as if the South might do just that in the first quarter. After the score was tied 2-2, Terry quickly scored four of the next five baskets and McQuaid added another to give the South a sudden 12-4 lead.

The North chipped that margin down to 15-13 but the South shot out to a six-point edge, 19-13. But four free throws by the North in the last minute of the quarter made the score 21-17 after the first 12-minute period.

Alta Loma's Jamie Eagle hit two quick baskets to open the second half, tying the score at 21, and Charter Oak's Mike Moses scored on a follow shot for North's first lead, 23-21, with 10:04 remaining in the half.

The lead bounced back and forth until Brigante hit three straight shots and Royal Oak's Brian Kelly added one for a 40-35 North advantage.

Dodgers fall behind Pads

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers are slowly sinking in the National League West, torpedoed by another June swoon.

"We're not trying to make everybody look like Cy Young or Grover Cleveland Alexander, but that's what we're doing," said Sutton after the Cincinnati Reds swept a two-game series Tuesday night with back to back 4-hitters to drop the Dodgers into third, 5½ games behind.

The Reds 6-0 victory and Randy Jones' 13th victory put San Diego in second place.

It capped another nightmarish June for the Dodgers.

A year ago they entered June leading Cincinnati by a game and a half. A month later they trailed by eight.

"If they don't close the season next week, we'll be okay," said Manager Walter Alston, trying to find some humor in the midst of a four-game losing streak.

Cincinnati's Fred Norman, squeezed out of the rotation earlier this month, made a bid to reclaim a starting spot with his first shutout since April 18.

The 33-year-old lefthander ran his lifetime record at Riverfront Stadium to 28-6, but not without some shaky moments.

"When I warmed up I was skeptical. I didn't get it together until the last couple minutes. I didn't think I'd last the first inning," said Norman, who upped his record to 5-1.

Once he settled down, "it was like sitting in a rocking chair," said batterymate Johnny Bench, who broke out of an 0-for-16 slump with three hits to spark three uprisings. "All he threw were strikes."

Hot-hitting Doug Flynn drove in three runs as the Reds threaten a repeat of their runaway a year ago when they buried the Dodgers by 20 games in the most lopsided division race ever.

An injury siege—and a Cincinnati rampage—scuttled the Dodgers last year. Injuries are taking their toll again for the Dodgers.

Los Angeles has lost speedster Dave Lopes and RBI man Ron Cey to injuries recently.

Alston said the skid "is nothing that we can't overcome with some hitting. We haven't scored any runs in a week."

"You take Cey out of the lineup and it's hard to sccre runs," said Alston.

Reds Manager Sparky Anderson has his doubts about the Dodgers.

Bell's slam leads Chisox

KANSAS CITY — Ex-Mt. San Antonio College star Kevin Bell slammed his first major league home run in rather unusual fashion Tuesday.

Bell cracked an inside-the-park grand slam homer to lead the Chicago White Sox to a 14-8 slugfest win over the Kansas City Royals. He had been recently promoted from the minors by the Chisox.

While chasing Bell's third-inning blast, Royals' leftfielder Tom Poquette crashed head-first into the wall and was knocked unconscious. Before the Royals could retrieve the ball, Bell and three of his mates had circled the sacks for the grand slammer.

Poquette suffered a fracture of his left cheekbone and other facial injuries on the play and will be out of action for at least three weeks.

Bell, who prepped at Northview High in Covina, finished the biggest night of his young major league career with three hits. Jim Spencer and Jorge Orta also homered for the Sox in the win.

Angels had a rough day

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

ANAHEIM — The Oakland A's — or what's left of the A's — will be visiting Anaheim Stadium tonight to open a two-game series to close the Angels' 10-game homestand.

Noland Ryan, who has put together two outstanding performances back-to-back with a two-hit shutout over Milwaukee and a 15-strikeout show against Boston, will try to even his season record at 7-7 against the A's Mike Norris.

The lack of hitting has been the major reason why the Angels are again in the basement of the American League West but pitching was the main culprit Tuesday afternoon when the Minnesota Twins pounded out 17 hits in a 10-6 win over the Halos.

But the umpires also had something to do with it if you listen to Angels' manager Dick Williams, who was ejected from the game early with catcher Andy Etchebarren and coach Billy Muffett.

Plate umpire Bill Kunkel gave the trio the afternoon off with Muffett leaving in the third inning and the other two in the fourth.

"He (Kunkel) was trying to provoke things," Williams argued. "He was looking for people to throw out. He agitated Etchebarren who wasn't doing anything and he threw Muffett out for nothing."

Muffett was excused early when he complained about no interference call on Minnesota first baseman Rod Carew after he bumped Dave Chalk when he doubled in the third.

Etchebarren and Williams got the afternoon off when they argued about third base umpire Lou DiMuro calling Dan Ford safe at third base when Chalk threw to third baseman Ron Jackson on Lyman Bostock's grounder.

The game was still close at that point but Minnesota erupted for three runs in the fifth inning and two more in the sixth to break it open.

Minnesota enjoyed the lead throughout after scoring three runs on Carew's homer in the first inning before starter Don Kirkwood (2-7) could retire a batter.

Ford belted his 10th homer of the season — a two-run shot — off of Mickey Scott to give Minnesota a comfortable lead.

Carew, rookie catcher Butch Wynegar and second baseman Bob Randall led the parade with three hits apiece.

The Angels' attack was highlighted by a three-run homer by catcher Terry Humphrey, who replaced Etchebarren, in the bottom of the fourth.

Twins' starter Jim Hughes (3-8) picked up the win even though he struggled throughout. Pomona product Bill Campbell blanked the Angels in the final 2 2/3 innings to preserve Hughes' victory.

ANGEL ANGLES — Frank Tanana, who has already missed two starts, was given permission to throw on the sidelines Friday in Kansas City and if all goes well, he will start next Tuesday in Chicago. Dr. Frank Jobe said X rays showed no calcium deposits in Tanana's sore left elbow.

Palomino can build his house

WEMBLEY, England (AP) — Carlos Palomino, the new world welterweight boxing champion, is tired of sharing a bedroom with his three brothers and plans to build a house with a room of his own.

"Now I'm world champion I guess I can afford it," the 26-year-old Mexican-American said after hammering Britain's John Stracey to defeat in 12 furious rounds at London's Wembley Empire pool Tuesday night.

Palomino left Mexico when he was 10 and lives in a suburban house at Westminster, near Los Angeles, with his parents, 10 brothers and sisters and his 5-year-old son, Carlos Jr. His marriage ended in divorce four years ago.

The bedroom is a converted garage with four beds in it.

"We live as one big happy family," Palomino said. "My folks have all helped me a lot, and now I hope I shall be in a position to do something for them."

Palomino never had previously boxed outside California.

Stracey, 25, one of Britain's sporting heroes, had been world champion since beating Jose Napoles in Mexico last December. He lost his crown to Palomino after a barrage of body punches had sent him to the canvas twice for counts of eight.

When he got up the second time, British referee Sid Nathan stopped the bout at 1:35 of the 12th round.

Palomino followed a plan set up by his manager, Jack McCoy and attacked Stracey's body.

"I could see from the start my body punches were hurting him, and I kept working at them," Palomino said. "He hit me with some good punches, but they lacked power. I didn't expect the fight to end as quickly as it did."

Palomino, three-quarters of a pound lighter than Stracey at 145¼ pounds, had a longer reach and made good use of it. He was on top from the start.

This was Palomino's 20th victory in 24 pro fights, with one defeat and three draws. Stracey now has won 44 fights, lost four and drawn one.

Palomino is studying for a master's degree in recreation management at Long Beach State University. But he said he plans to continue fighting and will defend his title as often as he can.

"I would like to remain world champion until I'm 30," he said.

He may not be the last of the fighting Palominos. His 14-year-old brother Paul is a junior Golden Gloves champion.

"He's going to be a much better boxer than I am," Palomino said.

Vault mark to Roberts

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Dave Roberts regained the world pole vault record with a mark of 18 feet 8¼ inches and promptly declared it "will take at least the same height or better to win" an Olympic gold medal.

But the 24-year-old medical student's record-shattering vault was only one of the highlights of a big day at the U.S. Olympic track and field trials Tuesday:

—Marathon champion Frank Shorter, Craig Virgin and Garry Bjorklund finished 1-2-3 in a 10,000-meter final that produced four of the fastest times ever in the U.S.

—Millard Hampton, a powerfully built 19-year-old headed for UCLA next fall, won the 200-meter dash as the top three finishers ran the fastest races of their lives.

—Jane Frederick, a top prospect for a medal at Montreal, won the women's pentathlon and missed her American record by only 110 points.

—Madeline Manning Jackson, 28, earned a third trip to the Olympics, becoming the first American woman to run 800 meters in less than two minutes.

Roberts borrowed a pole from Arkansas State's Earl Bell, the man who took the world record from him in late May, after breaking his own pole on his first try at 18-8¼. He was given three attempts at that height, clearing it on the final try.

He missed twice at 19-0¼, then ran under the crossbar onto the landing pit because of poor pole placement on his final attempt.

"I touched the bar going up, but I didn't touch it very hard," Roberts, a second-year student at the University of Florida Medical School, said of his record vault.

Roberts,

It's a Racquet

Expressions of tennis players

EYE SEES TENNIS BALL. Signal goes to arm, which swings racquet, which whacks ball. Textbook simplicity. A routine physiological process. Easy for anyone, all the way down to the most myopic hacker. Right?

Well, maybe not. The expressions shown in the photos at right seem to indicate that hitting a tennis ball can involve a lot of concentration, determination and contortion, and sometimes a touch of anguish as well. The six players — from left, Stan Clark, Sharon Bregman, Margi Sullivan, Don Cromer, Frank Martinez and Gloria Jones — were caught in the middle of a stroke during the Pomona Valley Closed Championships last weekend at the Claremont Tennis Club.

When the two days of serving, ground stroking and volleying were over, the happy faces belonged to those who had advanced into next weekend's semi-finals matches in five open events. The not-so-happy crowd was left to ponder the disappointments, particularly in the men's events, where half the seeded players stumbled and near miss losses abounded.

Claremont Tennis Club champ Rick Roper, seeded No. 2 in men's singles in this tournament, was ousted by unseeded Olarn Isarra, the Claremont High student from Thailand, 6-4, 7-6, in a quarter-finals match Sunday. Another unseeded player, Dave Click, eliminated fourth-seeded Stan Clark, 6-4, 6-2, after Clark had battled through a dozen deuces before losing his serve and surrendering the first set. Veteran Pete Welsh extended top-seeded Dave Waterhouse to three sets before succumbing in the quarters, 5-7, 6-2, 6-4. And for the near miss of the tournament, nothing was the equal of Hank Krieger's second round loss to Jim Lucke by only two points — the ninth point of a tie-breaker in each of two sets. So in Saturday's semis Waterhouse will test Click at 9 a.m. and Isarra will challenge Geoff Clark at 10:30.

Third-seeded Geoff Clark won his quarters match from Lucke, 4-6, 6-1, 6-1, to give the seedings committee a .500 batting average, but the upsets binge continued in men's doubles, sidelining two of the four seeded pairs. The pick-up team of Don Cromer and Carl Skvarna dumped their fellow Claremont Tennis Club members, third-seeded Lucke and Charles Zetterberg, 2-6, 6-3, 7-6, in the quarters. And the fourth-seeded twosome, Click and Ray Reinhard, lost their opening match 7-5, 1-6, 6-3, to Isarra and Mike Bechard, who then lost, 7-5, 6-4, in the quarters, to another unseeded tandem, Dale Geiger and Gary Kreff. Top-seeded Chuck Anderson and Stan Clark made the semis with a 6-3, 6-1 triumph over Jim Rees and Paul Schoenlaub, while second-seeded Waterhouse and Bill Geary survived a first set scare against Paul Skvarna and Roger Skinner, to advance, 4-6, 6-4, 6-1.

It's Anderson-Clark vs. Gelger-Kreff and Waterhouse-Geary vs. Cromer-Skvarna at 2 p.m. Saturday.

No surprises were in store for Doris Clark, who's in the semis in all three events in which she's top seeded. Mrs. Clark defeated Peggy Rees, 6-1, 6-2, in the women's quarters and teamed with Chuck Anderson in a 6-1, 6-2 win over Pat Parsons and Dave Griffin in the mixed doubles. She and Donna Dickenson had a bye into the final four in women's doubles.

Mrs. Clark's opponent in a semis match Friday will be Tracy Senior, the No. 3 seed, who moved up with a 6-1, 6-0 victory over Donna Watson, Dickenson reached the singles semis with a 7-6, 6-0 conquest of Gloria Jones and at 10:30 Saturday will play the winner of today's match between second-seeded Christy Stafford and Pat Parsons.

Other women's doubles semi-finalists are the No. 2 team, Margaret Overin and Karen Lucke, 6-4, 6-0, over Parsons and Karen Berry; Cathie Headley and Doris Cromer, 6-1, 6-2, over Betty DiCarlo and Enid Douglas; and Jones and Laila Low, 6-3, 6-3, over Lucille Pearsall and Evelyn Walker.

SAYS BILLIE JEAN KING (sitting in retirement from singles play at Wimbledon): "Wimbledon belongs to me. I love that center court. I think I could do well this year if I did play singles, but I have not given it much thought thus far. I'll possibly know in two weeks how sitting in the stands and watching will affect me."

Her prediction on her successor as women's champ: Evonne Goolagong.

NBC-TV will present two 90-minute telecasts from the hallowed grounds this weekend. One will be at 2 p.m. Saturday, the other at 12:30 p.m. Sunday, both on Channel 4. Wimbledon closes down on Sundays, but tapes of early round matches are to be shown.

NEW YORK (AP) — The Ringling Bros. and Barnum and Bailey Circus didn't have to take a spring breather for hockey and basketball this time in Madison Square Garden. Both the Rangers in the National Hockey League and the Knicks in the National Basketball Association failed to make the playoffs in their respective sports.

Big win for North

Owens made three buckets in the final two minutes to cut the North lead to 45-43 at the buzzer. Owens led the first-half scoring with 12, but added only two more in the second half.

The North stretched its lead to as much as six in the opening minutes of the second half, but a slam dunk (a legal maneuver in the All-Star game) by Carpenter tied the score at 55-55 and drew a roar of approval from the crowd with 4:25 left in the third quarter.

But two minutes later Fossum, who blocked three shots in the game, stole the ball and dribbled half the length of the court before planting another slam shot, drawing another roar and giving the North a 61-57 edge.

Carpenter's fourth basket of the quarter tied the score at 63 with 31 seconds to go, but Sly connected with eight seconds left for a two-point North lead after three periods.

South reeled off the first six points of the final period but a steal and jump shot by Brigante, his second basket in a row, pulled the North within a point and Knight tied it at 72 with a free throw at 7:17. The score was knotted again at 74 and 76 before the North made its final move.

The North also won the halftime competition, 9-8, in a cheerleaders' free throw contest.

Jones ties 63-year-old record

By Associated Press

"As soon as I let it go, I knew it was a ball," he said.

With the slip of that pitch, the San Diego left-hander let a National League record fall out of his grasp—Christy Mathewson's monumental no-walk record established 63 years ago.

The free pass to Marc Hill leading off the eighth inning of Tuesday night's 4-2 victory over the San Francisco Giants stopped Jones' streak at 68 walkless innings.

A few moments before, he had pulled into a tie with the great Mathewson of the New York Giants by striking out Darrell Evans to close out the seventh inning. But the streak had been weighing heavily on his broad shoulders.

"I fought off the pressure for a long time but about the fifth inning it caught up with me," said Jones. "Subconsciously I'm sure it affected me. It's kind of disappointing to go that long and then end up walking the guy."

The pressure was nearly palpable in the Padres' stadium, too. When Jones struck out Evans, he received a standing ovation from the crowd of 29,940.

Then in the eighth, Jones went to a 3-2 count on Hill. The batter fouled off two straight pitches, then walked. An audible sigh of disappointment from the fans filled the stadium. Jones disgustedly kicked the dirt, let his head flap down.

"I just tried to relax and throw strikes but I kept missing low with my sinker and got behind," Jones said irritably, tugging at his cap.

Jones, who had faced 296 batters before the pass to Hill, then lost all control by walking his second batter of the inning, Larry Herdnon. Luckily it came after a double play had wiped out Hill and caused Jones no trouble.

Pirates 10, Cubs 7

Rennie Stennett smashed five hits and Al Oliver and Richie Zisk each had three, leading Pittsburgh over Chicago. With the Pirates trailing 5-0 going into the fifth inning, Stennett singled home two runs. The Pirates then took the lead with four runs in the seventh and added four more in the eighth.

Willie Stargell, Zisk and Bill Robinson each singled home a run in the seventh. Robinson drove in the tying run, and when relief pitcher Oscar Zamora took a cutoff throw and threw wildly past third base, Zisk scored the run which put the Pirates ahead to stay 6-5.

Expos 8, Phillies 3

Gary Roenicke's two-run double and solo home runs by Mike Jorgenson and Pat Scanlon helped Montreal beat Philadelphia. Right-hander Clay Kirby, who pitched hitless ball for 5 1-3 innings, earned his first victory of the season against five losses with the aid of three hitless relief innings by Dale Murray. They combined on a three-hitter.

Cardinals 3, Mets 0

St. Louis right-hander John Denny continued his mastery over New York, pitching a three-hitter over the Mets. Denny, 3-4, registered his fourth career triumph over the Mets without a loss in two seasons. He struck out four batters without issuing a walk.

A four-hit first inning ignited by Bake McBride's single gave the Cardinals a 2-0 lead and all the offense they needed. Lou Brock and Ted Simmons drove in the runs.

Astros 9, Braves 7

Bob Watson keyed a four-run rally with a two-run double in the eighth inning, leading Houston over Atlanta. Atlanta's Rowland Office extended his hitting streak to 27 games with a run-scoring double in the sixth.

Walks by Ken Boswell and Greg Gross off Frank LaCorte, 0-1, got the Houston rally started in the eighth. Cesar Cedeno drove in Boswell with a single before Watson's double scored Gross and Cedeno. Watson later scored on Enos Cabell's hit.

LV midget racer stands second

CORONA — USRC point leader Roy Cook Jr. of Mentone has four feature wins and three runnerup finishes but still can't shake La Verne's Danny McKnight in the title chase.

After his second place finish to Buddy Irwin at Santa Maria on June 5, Cook leads McKnight by 63 tallies. Both will be in the field at Corona Saturday night at 8 as the USRC midgets make their third appearance of the season here. Cook drives the Clancy Wright VW and McKnight will be be in the seat of the RIMCO Miller VW.

Cook and McKnight have each garnered six main event wins on the Corona half-mile dirt since USRC started competing here in 1972. McKnight is the all-time USRC feature winner with 33 and Cook follows the late Lowell Sachs (21) and Bobby Olivero (17) with his 16 victories. Cook is currently one of the hottest midget drivers in the nation. In his last two main events (two with BCRA in northern California), he has four wins and five second place spots.

Blind draw angers some Pocono drivers

MOUNT POCONO, Pa. (AP) — "Due to a rain-out..."

The words have been written many times in the short history of Pocono International Raceway, a one-time spinach farm that was well-watered if not successful.

The words appeared again on Monday on an emergency news release about qualifying for Sunday's $400,000 Schaefer 500 being washed out.

A blind draw was held instead—a draw that put young charger Johnny Parsons on the pole position, Janet Guthrie in 22nd spot, and five drivers on the hot seat.

PIR Owner Dr. Joseph Mattioli and the sanctioning U.S. Auto Club had decided one day of qualifying, Sunday, would be enough to fill the 33-car field, though it had never been done before.

Only two cars qualified Sunday, those of Dick Simon and Al Loquasto. Bob Harkey spun out trying to become the third as the rains started. Miss Guthrie passed up her attempt before the skies opened, and moved to the back of the line where her chances seemed finished.

It upset more than a few people when she lucked out on the draw.

"What it means is, you've got her car in there, which has no business being in the field, and two guys who deserve to be in the field who aren't going to make it," growled one competitor.

Miss Guthrie said she didn't care how she made the field, but she didn't want anyone just to arbitrarily put her in.

The complex draw, and the even more complex rules behind it, marked the first time the rain-plagued second-richest auto race in the world had its field filled in that way. In fact, all other USAC Indianapolis car 500-milers have been filled on performance.

Why couldn't qualifying have been extended?

"Well there's three or four reasons for that," Mattioli explained. "One is, all of our people here who work here are part-timers.

"Our firemen all have regular jobs, our clean up crews, our medical people. They work all over the country. They're racing fans basically. They make their plans on our schedule, and once we deviate from that it's very hard for them."

The participants—the drivers, mechanics, owners, entrants— didn't really care about the loss of qualifying. They would have been satisfied if Mattioli had decided to start all 35, meaning no one would get the axe.

Petitions were circulated to that effect. And Mattioli said that if all 35 entrants or their representatives agreed and signed liability releases, he would permit it.

That was stymied by Loquasto's crew chief Clint Brawner, who refused to sign because "nobody helped us in 1974 at Indy when it rained and we were left in the qualifying line."

"I wanted to see everyone sign the petition," said three-car entrant Doris King. "It would have been the first time in USAC that everybody had agreed on anything.

"That would have meant more to me than anything that we might have done in the race."

Without the releases, Mattioli wouldn't go along. He is very wary of lawsuits, as well he should be, for just one probably would destroy the track's delicate financial situation.

So a complex plan was devised from the rule book, a compendium of clauses and counter-clauses that really left Mattioli with the freedom to do anything he wanted.

Claremont cyclist injured

"I'm going to try it again in 1977," reported Nick Quackenbos of Claremont as he made his way around his Quackenbos Co. office on crutches, after crashing his 250cc Yamaha 22 miles into the recent Baja 500.

Quackenbos said the accident occurred when his bike hit a wet spot and a cloud of dust created by bikes ahead prevented him from seeing it.

Quackenbos was able to get back on the Yamaha and made the official checkpoint 2 at the 135-mile mark by 7 p.m. Friday night, and checkpoint 3 on the San Felipe Highway by 1 a.m. Saturday.

Volunteer paramedics from San Diego County gave him emergency treatment at checkpoint 3 for a cracked ankle bone and a cracked wrist bone.

Part of Quackenbos' pit crew, Frank Hungerford and Bob Olin, took him to El Centro hospital where a splint was put on the wrist, and a cast on the ankle.

Quackenbos discovered that his Yamaha had blown the front fork seals during the accident, and he had only the springs under him.

"The paramedics were super. So was my pit crew," Quackenbos said.

Believes it will hurt case against Harrises

Lawyer quizzes jury on bulletproof glass

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "I felt like I was being protected from something out there."

Questioned behind a bulletproof shield Tuesday, prospective juror Karen Turtle told the court trying Symbionese Liberation Army members William and Emily Harris that extraordinary courtroom security measures do have her a bit worried.

Defense attorneys have argued the wall-to-wall bulletproof glass separating the spectators from the participants would prejudice jurors against their clients, the former fugitive traveling companions of Patricia Hearst.

Defense attorney Leonard Weinglass questioned 12 prospective jurors about how the security courtroom was affecting their views of the case.

"I just wondered about it. What the reason was," Albert Jaramillo said, describing his initial reaction to the glass shield. "I was scared to ask why."

Superior Court Judge Mark Brandler has refused to move the proceedings to a conventional courtroom, citing a threat to kidnap Los Angeles Police Chief Edward M. Davis unless the Harrises are freed.

The Harrises, avowed members of the SLA, are on trial with the newspaper heiress on charges of kidnaping, robbery and assault, but their part of the case has been severed from hers because she is undergoing presentencing psychiatric testing ordered in her federal bank robbery trial in San Francisco.

The grand jury indictment stems from a May 1974 incident at an Inglewood, Calif., sporting goods store during which Miss Hearst is alleged to have fired a gun at the building while Harris struggled with a clerk over a pair of allegedly shoplifted socks.

By and large, the courtroom barrier confused the potential jurors. A few said they felt it wasn't necessary.

Weinglass questioned George Fields, an elderly letter carrier, about the security.

Weinglass: "Do you think you are in personal danger here."

Fields: "There is less danger with the glass here."

Q: "If the glass was removed would it be more dangerous."

A: "It would have to be."

Q: "On what do you base that."

A: "The fact that it's there."

Only one prospective juror, Sarah Miller, a former federal security employe, said she felt glad that the shield protected her. "I feel security is a good thing," she said. "Whether it's necessary or not is not for me to say."

PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE INVITING BIDS FOR CASH CONTRACT NO. 4593 VALLEY BOULEVARD LANDSCAPING (Walnut Area)

Notice is hereby given that sealed bids will be received by the Road Commissioner of the County of Los Angeles, in Room 180, 1540 Alcazar Street, Los Angeles, California 90033, until 9:30 a.m. on June 29, 1976; and then will be publicly opened and read in Room 193 at the above address for the installation of polyethylene film, sprinkler system, landscaping and other incidental and appurtenant work estimated to cost less than $10,000, all in accordance with the provisions of the Plans, Specifications, Notices and Instructions to Bidders therefor which are on file and open for inspection at the offices of the Board of Supervisors and the County Road Department.

The Engineer may, from time to time and without Board approval, issue addenda to the contract documents during the period of advertising for bids for the following purposes: (a) revising Prevailing Wage Scales, (b) clarifying or correcting special provisions, plans or bid proposal; provided, however, that any such addenda shall not change the original scope and intent of the project.

Purchasers of contract documents shall be notified of and furnished with copies of such addenda, either by certified mail or personal delivery, during the period of advertising.

Proposal must be submitted on forms prepared and furnished for the purpose, which may be obtained at the Information Desk in the lobby of the Los Angeles County Road Department Administration Building, 1540 Alcazar Street, Los Angeles, California 90033 at which office bidders may also purchase copies of the Plans and Specifications for the contemplated work for the price of $7.08 plus Sales Tax per set, not refundable. A mail address and a phone number must be left at the aforementioned office which the prospective bidder agrees is sufficient to reach him.

Each submitted proposal must be accompanied by a certified or cashier's check, or a surety bond, payable to the County of Los Angeles in an amount equivalent to at least ten (10) percent of the total aggregate bid price of such proposal, as a guaranty that the bidder, if his proposal be accepted, will enter into and execute the awarded contract, and furnish the required bonds in connection therewith, in accordance with the terms of the aforementioned Specifications and Instructions to Bidders. In the event that a surety bond is submitted in lieu of a check, it shall be subject to the condition that the surety thereon be approved by the County Auditor and County Counsel.

The Board of Supervisors reserves the right to reject any or all bids, and to waive technical errors and discrepancies, if to do so seems to best serve the interests of the County.

Pursuant to the provisions of Sections 1770 to 1777, inclusive, of the Labor Code of the State of California, the Board of Supervisors has ascertained the general prevailing rate of per diem wages for each craft or type of workman needed to execute the proposed contract, and it will be required that not less than said rates be paid to all such workmen employed or engaged on the work. Complete wage rate schedules are on file at the office of the Board of Supervisors and the County Road Department.

The rate of compensation for any classification not listed in the schedule, but which may be required to execute the proposed contract, shall be commensurate and in accord with the rates specified for similar or comparable classifications or for those performing similar or comparable duties.

SPECIAL INSTRUCTIONS TO BIDDERS: Bidders must satisfy themselves by personal examination of location of the proposed work and by such other means as they may prefer as to the actual conditions and requirements of the work, and shall not at any time after submission of the bid dispute, complain, or assert that there was any misunderstanding in regard to the nature or amount of work to be done.

The contractor to whom this contract is awarded will be required, before execution of the contract by the County Board of Supervisors, to file with the County Board of Supervisors surety bonds as follows:

A "Faithful Performance Bond" amounting to 100% of the total contract price is required for all contracts.

A "Payment Bond" (labor and material) amounting to 50% of the total contract price is required for all contracts which have a total contract price in excess of $10,000.

Almanac

Today is Wednesday, June 23rd, the 175th day of 1976. There are 191 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1683, William Penn signed a friendship treaty with Indians in the Pennsylvania region. The agreement was faithfully kept by both sides for more than 60 years.

On this date

In 1713, Charleston, S.C., was incorporated.

In 1722, England's Queen Anne ordered the French people in Nova Scotia to take an oath of allegiance to her government within one year or leave.

In 1836, there was a surplus in the U.S. Treasury and the $28 million was divided among 26 states.

In 1938, Congress created the Civil Aeronautics Authority to regulate air traffic.

In 1967, President Lyndon Johnson and Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin held a summit meeting in Glasboro, N.J.

Also in 1967, the Senate voted to censure Democratic Senator Thomas Dodd of Connecticut for allegedly using campaign funds for his personal benefit.

Five years ago: President Richard Nixon announced he would make the disputed Pentagon papers available to Congressional committees but with a top-secret label.

Today's birthdays: Former Secretary of State William Rogers is 63 years old. Movie and stage director and choreographer Bob Fosse is 49.

Thought for today: The best doctor in the world is the Veterinarian. He can't ask his patients what's the matter he's just got to know — humorist Will Rogers, 1879-1935.

Bicentennial footnote: The Provincial conference of committees, meeting in Philadelphia, called for the election of deputies to a Provincial Convention on July 8th.

Tests of swine flu vaccine satisfactory

WASHINGTON (AP) — The basic vaccines for the national effort to guard against swine flu came through their initial human tests with promising results and few side effects.

Scientists reported that tests with 5,186 persons indicate one standard vaccine won't do the whole job. There could be several different vaccines or combinations used to innoculate all 215 million Americans if the federal plan is completed.

"The results show it's remarkably easy to immunize people above 24 years of age," said Dr. Harry Meyer, of the Food and Drug Administration's Bureau of Biologics. "However, the results reinforce the attitude that children have to be dealt with more cautiously concerning influenza than adults."

He noted that persons 24 years or older make up two-thirds of the population.

The apprehension about innoculating children arose when test results with hundreds of youngsters 3 years and older showed that the kind of vaccine that stimulated the best reaction against flu virus also caused the most severe side effects.

Dr. David Karzon of Vanderbilt University, summarizing the tests on children, cited uncomfortable side effects such as mild fever, headache and general malaise. None of the side effects was life-threatening, he said.

"We had no dangerous reactions occur at all," Karzon stressed, "and the general acceptance of all products was good."

While saying there were no more side effects with children than with other flu vaccines, researchers said they wanted better than this average performance because of the numbers that are to be innoculated this time.

Karzon said another type of vaccine resulted in fewer side effects but wasn't as effective in generating antibodies against swine flu-like virus.

To overcome the side-effect problem, Karzon said scientists would begin testing the idea of giving booster shots of this vaccine three to four weeks after the first innocation in hopes of building up a better immune response.

With reduced doses of the more effective vaccine or a doubledose of the other, Karzon said he was "optimistic" that a good vaccine regimen for chilren would be developed before flu season next winter.

Advises delay, however, for children

U.S. panel urges 'go-ahead' for adult swine flu shots

WASHINGTON (AP) — Enough swine flu vaccine will be ready this summer to begin inoculating millions of adults shortly after Labor Day, U.S. health officials say. But vaccination of younger Americans will likely be delayed pending further studies of side effects.

Dr. Saul Krugman of New York University said Tuesday that dose and composition standards for the adult vaccines should be ready within two weeks so manufacturers can go into full production.

"We know now that in the age group of 25 or so and above it will be possible to recommend a dose that can be well tolerated," said Krugman, member of a Center for Disease Control advisory committee.

Federal health advisory committees recommended Tuesday that the $135-million vaccination program move ahead to immunize the nation's adults as soon as possible, but they advised delaying shots for children and young people until more studies are made.

Dr. David J. Sencer, director of the U.S. Center for Disease Control (CDC) in Atlanta, said vaccination of the young should begin by late fall or early winter following studies of what type of vaccine at what doses should be used.

The bodies recommending a go-ahead with the adult part of the program were the Advisory Committee on Influenza Protection to the CDC, and the Panel on Viral and Rickettsial Diseases of the Food and Drug Administration's Bureau of Biologics.

Both committees' recommendations will go to Dr. Theodore Cooper, assistant secretary for health of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Cooper can order implementation of the vaccination program after it is set up.

In their deliberations, the committees considered results released Monday of the first human trials of swine flu vaccines.

Those studies with more than 5,000 persons concluded that the vaccines appeared safe and effective in adults. However, they showed side effects in children were higher than expected with the most effective vaccines.

While these side effects — including mild fever, general malaise and headache — were no more severe than with other flu vaccines and showed in only a small percentage of children, researchers said a mass-immunization program would leave too many youngsters affected.

If there were an emergency situation with swine flu spreading rapidly, then the side effects would be considered low enough to vaccinate all children, researchers said. But since the anticipated disease has not yet appeared, there is time to pursue a better vaccine program, they said.

Further tests with children will be completed in August, the committees said, and then a program for younger Americans can be put together.

An A-strain of influenza virus — dubbed swine flu — surfaced at Ft. Dix, N.J., last winter and scientists say it could reoccur in the general population in future flu seasons. This flu is similar to one that in 1918 killed 20 millions persons throughout the world.

Kidnaping, conspiracy to murder

Indict Teamsters boss, 4 others

WASHINGTON (AP) — A New Jersey Teamsters union leader, Anthony "Tony Pro" Provenzano, and three other men have been indicted on federal charges of kidnaping and conspiring to murder another New Jersey Teamsters leader 15 years ago, the Justice Department announced today.

The four men were charged in the disappearance and death of Anthony Castellito, who was secretary treasurer of Teamsters Local 560 at the time of his death in 1961.

Provenzano, 59, now is secretary treasurer of the teamsters local. He also has been a focus of investigators' interest in connection with the disappearance and apparent death of former Teamsters president James R. Hoffa.

The sealed indictment was returned in U.S. District Court in New York on Tuesday and opened today.

Provenzano and two of the other men also were indicted by a county grand jury for murdering Castellito.

The others indicted along with Provenzano are Salvatore Briguglio, 46, business agent for Local 560; Harold Konigsberg, 47, currently jailed at the Clinton Correctional Institution in Dannemora, N.Y., and George Vangelakos, 47, an employe of a Bayonne, N.J., trucking firm.

Provenzano, Briguglio and Konigsberg also were named defendants in the murder indictment returned in Ulster County, N.Y.

The department said Provenzano and Briguglio were arrested today by FBI agents.

The indictment charged that the four men conspired from Jan. 1, 1961, to Sept. 30, 1961, to kidnap Castellito "for the purpose of murdering" him.

The defendants, along with two unindicted coconspirators, agreed to lure Castellito from New Jersey to his farm in Ulster County where he was murdered by Briguglio, Konigsberg and the unindicted coconspirators, the indictment said.

The unindicted coconspirators are Salvatore Sinno and Edward Skowron.

While Castellito was being killed Vangelakos dug a grave for the body, the indictment said. But the burial plan was changed and the body was taken back to New Jersey and buried there, the indictment said.

Provenzano arranged the scheme and paid Konigsberg $15,000 for his participation in the murder, the government charged.

Provenzano appointed Bruguglio as business agent for the Teamsters local as his reward for joining in the scheme, the indictment said.

And Provenzano arranged "to be in Florida during the time when Anthony Castellito was to be murdered."

The murder was committed on June 5, 1961, the indictment said.

Each of the two counts of the federal indictment carries a maximum penalty of life imprisonment.

Hoffa has been missing since July 30, 1975, but his body has never been discovered and no one has been charged in connection with the disappearance.

The federal investigation of Hoffa's disappearance focused on Provenzano who served prison time with Hoffa and reportedly opposed his attempt to regain the union presidency.

Law enforcement authorities in New Jersey have said Provenzano has had a long-time connection with organized crime.

Before his disappearance, Hoffa told his wife he was planning to meet Provenzano and Anthony Giacalone, a long time gangster in Detroit, at a restaurant in a Detroit suburb. Hoffa was last seen in the restaurant parking lot.

4 valley men, woman booked in slaying of Mira Loma man

Four men and a woman are in custody on murder charges in connection with the slaying of a Mira Loma man, whose body was found Saturday in La Verne.

Chino police, who arrested the suspects Tuesday, said the victim was believed to have been shot in that city in what may have been a drug-related incident.

The body of Edward Lorenzo Gonzales, 30, of Mira Loma was found in the back seat of his car parked on the railroad tracks west of D Street and south of Arrow Highway in LaVerne. Gonzales had been shot twice.

Los Angeles sheriff's deputies assisting La Verne police in the investigation at the time were uncertain if Gonzales had been killed in La Verne or elsewhere. Deputies also suspected that Gonzales had been killed sometime Friday night.

On Monday, sheriff's deputies contacted Chino police when they learned that Gonzales had been shot on 12th Street near Edison Street in Chino on Friday night.

A joint investigation by Chino officers, La Verne police and Los Angeles deputies led to the arrest Tuesday of Florentina "Tina" Meza Roybal, 30, of 6374 Mann St., Mira Loma; Pete Ballesteros, 32, of 13240 Fourth St., Chino; Dennis La Crosse, 38, of Ontario; Ronnie Abilez Loza, 28, of 10775 Vernon St., Ontario; and Robert Fajardo, 28, of 13011 Carillo St., Chino.

The five suspects were arrested on warrants charging murder. Bail was set at $100,000 each. The woman was booked in West End Jail and the men in Chino Jail.

Chino Police Chief Jerry Doyle said this morning that the motive for the murder "may have been drug-related, but we are not certain yet," Doyle said that the shooting death of Gonzales, "as far as we know is not related to the slaying of two members of an anti-vandalism patrol at Our Lady of Guadalupe Church in Chino last month. But we are asking questions."

Doyle said the alleged murder weapon that may have been used to kill Gonzales had not been found. He said the search for the weapon would continue today.

Doyle said that further information about the slaying may be released later today, following a conference with West Valley Deputy Dist. Atty. Mary Fuller.

Doyle said jurisdiction of the case more than likely would be in Chino, but said that the other agencies involved could bring related charges.

Ventura County blaze still out of control

THOUSAND OAKS (AP) — Nearly 300 firemen from three counties battled a 600-acre brush fire burning out of control in hilly terrain early today and feared weather forecasts of strong winds might push the blaze into new areas.

Ventura County Fire Department Capt. Audie Callaway said predicted strong northeasterly winds this morning will mean the fire may spread more.

"We're hoping to hold it through the night," Callaway reported near midnight Tuesday, "but if that weather forecast happens, we'll be out there all day tomorrow."

Callaway said no structures were in danger and no injuries have been reported from the fire. But, he said, combined units from the state and three counties have been unable to contain the blaze.

In another major fire, Los Angeles County fire officials said a 125-acre brush fire which blackened a canyon area near the Saugus housing development of Friendly Valley was contained late Tuesday.

The roof of one house was damaged and one fireman injured in that blaze, county fire spokesmen said. At the fire's peak, 400 men were on the lines protecting the housing development, officials said.

About 10 county fire units also tackled a 25-acre blaze in the Agoura area. The fire broke out in a brushy area off Lost Hill Road, just north of the Ventura Freeway, shortly after midnight.

Fire officials said no structures were threatened.

Mars landing site photos pouring in

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Photos of the Martian site chosen for Viking 1's July 4 landing streamed in from space to the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, where scientists will study them closely to make sure the area is safe for the rocket's landing.

The 58 photos were taken in about six minutes Tuesday by Viking's twin cameras from its newly established orbit. They came to earth late Tuesday and early today via radio transmission.

"We've made a lot of estimates (of the nature of the surface) from what little evidence we have, and the proof of the pudding is starting to come in today," said Dr. Harold Masursky. He is a member of the Viking orbiter photography team and is a U.S. Geological Survey scientist.

The landing site is called Chryse. It's a basin area at the mouth of a huge valley where water may have flowed at one time.

Pieced together in a photo mosaic, the pictures will be studied by geologists to determine what the surface is made of and whether boulders, potholes or soft sand pose any hazards for the three-legged Viking lander, which will separate from the mother ship.

For the rest of June, the spacecraft will circle the planet — and pass the landing area — once a day. Mars is about half the size of earth but its day, called a "sol" by scientists, is slightly longer than earth's: 24.6 hours.

Another earthquake in Soviet republic

MOSCOW (AP) — Another earthquake in the Soviet Asian republic of Uzbek on Monday caused no injuries but much damage, a Soviet newspaper said today.

The trade union newspaper Trud said the new shock damaged homes, schools and businesses and temporarily cut off natural gas supplies from the Gazli fields, largest in the Soviet Union.

ROVIGO, Italy (AP) — An Italian air force F104 Starfighter jet crashed near this north Italian town Tuesday night. The pilot, Fulvio Croci, 24, who was on a training flight, was killed.

He was the 45th victim of Italian Starfighter crashes since 1963, when the Italian air force started using the model built by a European consortium on a Lockheed patent.

Chino awarded second $474,000 federal grant

Congressman Jim Lloyd, D-35th Dist., announced today that the City of Chino has been awarded a federal grant totaling $474,000 to finance community improvement projects ranging from park construction to sewer line replacements.

"This is an extremely significant grant from the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD)," Lloyd said.

"The grant and the improvement-type projects that will result represent the major emphasis of my work in Congress which is local control to address the needs of the community," Lloyd said.

The valley lawmaker, a former West Covina mayor and city councilman, said local government officials and citizens are in a better position to define local problems and determine solutions.

"Last year under this same program, Chino received the identical amount of $474,000 and the total for the three-year program will be $1.9 million," Lloyd said.

The congressman indicated the Community Block Grant Program involved the planning of local officials and a citizens' committee representative of all segments of the community.

"This grant is a total community effort and we all can take pride in it," Lloyd said.

Open space project up for Walnut vote

Action on a landscape and open space maintenance district, protested earlier this month by 200 of the residents it would affect, is scheduled tonight at a Walnut City Council meeting.

If the council establishes the district, homeowners in the Vracin, Grant and La Solana tracts must pay for landscaping and open space maintenance.

Councilmen had continued public hearings on the district from June 9.

Also scheduled tonight is an appeal hearing on a tentative tract map of 10 acres north of Carrey Road and west of Lemon Avenue.

Daniel Vracin owns the property. There are plans to build 38 homes on it.

Like the landscaping and open space maintenance district hearing, the tract map hearing was continued from June 9.

The Vracin property lies within Walnut Civic Center overlay zone.

Councilman William Wentworth appealed a favorable Planning Commission decision on the residential tract map submitted by the Vracin Co. He contends the firm's plans are not consistent with the city's general plan.

At the last meeting councilmen received petitions with approximately 700 names protesting plans to buy the other 9.44 acres lying within the civic center overlay zone.

They objected to the city's offer of $110,575 the council planned to make for the acreage, part of the Woods estate.

Since then the property reportedly has been sold to a private party for $160,000, eliminating any plans for a civic center in that zone.

Hearing slated in shooting

Victor Lee Denham, 30-year-old off-duty Los Angeles police officer accused of shooting his girl friend's male companion May 10, faces preliminary hearing June 28 in Citrus Municipal Court, West Covina.

Denham, an eight-year veteran of LAPD, shot private detective Robert Lee Petrasich, 26, of Monterey Park, when he found Petrasich with Sandra Broussard, 26, in her home at 19381 Springport St., Rowland Heights, sheriff's investigators said.

The victim was shot in the lower chest and is recovering. The woman was not injured.

$364,000 is voted for renewal unit in Pomona

A $364,000 budget for the city's redevelopment effort has been approved by the Pomona City Council.

The budget includes $250,000 in working capital for redevelopment projects and $30,000 for the hiring of a redevelopment director.

The council approved the budget unanimously Monday. Most of the funds are contingent upon the continuation of the federal revenue sharing program.

Charles Stillinger, chairman of the city's Redevelopment Commission, told the council the commission would like to begin work of a redevelopment handbook, establish minimum criteria for redevelopment projects and promote redevelopment as its goals this year.

The council unanimously approved the suggested goals.

In other business Monday, the council approved a request by Gene Stallians, owner of Paul's Yellow Cab Co. in Pomona, for a fare increase. The new rate will be 80 cents for the first one eighth of a mile and 20 cents for each additional one fifth of a mile. The present fare is 80 cents for the first one eighth and 20 cents for each additional one fourth mile.

Assemblymen reject Brown's budget in farm labor dispute

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Despite Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s new farm labor board appointments, the Assembly has refused to approve a $12.8 billion state budget containing money for the board.

The 46-28 vote Tuesday night, eight short of the needed two-thirds, was a setback for the Democratic governor and Assembly leaders who had hoped the appointments would end the nearly five-month-old deadlock.

The budget drawn up by a two-house conference committee for the year starting July 1 includes $6.6 million to revive the Agricultural Labor Relations Board, which has been dormant since Feb. 6.

Assembly Speaker Leo McCarthy said another vote could come Thursday or Friday, the last day before the legislature's scheduled five-week recess. The Senate is to take up the budget Thursday.

The ALRB, Brown's proudest achievement in office, stopped holding elections when its funding was held up by growers' legislative allies, who claimed the board was biased in favor of Cesar Chavez' United Farm Workers.

Brown filled three vacancies on the five-member board Sunday. That gave rural Democrats, who had been caught in the middle on the issue, a chance to support ALRB funding as an alternative to a UFW-backed initiative on the November state ballot.

But most major growers continue to oppose revival of the board, saying changes in the law are needed first — particularly severe restrictions on union organizers' right to enter farms.

"A bad law, no matter who you choose to administer it, is still a bad law," said Assemblyman Ken Maddy, R-Fresno, a principal spokesman for farm-area Republicans.

All 25 Republicans refused to vote for the budget. They were joined by eight of the 54 Democrats — several over farm labor, the others over omissions of such spending programs as research into the little known killer disease lupus erethymetosis.

Though farm labor was at the center of the budget dispute, such issues as school finance, postcard voter registration and cash supplies to local governments and mental hospitals surfaced Tuesday night as both parties sought a way out.

Assembly GOP leader Paul Priolo of Pacific Palisades, who was to present his party's demands to McCarthy today, wouldn't spell them out Tuesday night.

MOMENT OF SILENT PRAYER

First Lady Betty Ford asks audience at a bicentennial dinner for the Jewish National Fund of America to observe a moment of silent prayer for Maurice S. Sage, president of the fund, as Secret Service men try to revive Sage who collapsed and died Tuesday.

Leads group in prayer as Zionist leader on dais collapses and dies

NEW YORK (AP) — A gala affair to raise funds for an American Bicentennial Park in Israel ended in tragedy when a Zionist leader on the dais with First Lady Betty Ford collapsed and died.

As policemen tried in vain Tuesday night to save the life of Dr. Maurice S. Sage, Mrs. Ford led the 2,500 guests in prayer.

"Dear Father in Heaven," the First Lady began, her voice trembling. "We ask thy blessing on this magnificent man. We know you can take care of him. ..."

Sage, 56-year-old head of Sage Laboratories, Inc., and the recently elected president of the Jewish National Fund of America, which was sponsoring the event, was pronounced dead at Polyclinic Hospital less than an hour later.

Sage had finished speaking and was standing beside Mrs. Ford on the dais as she accepted from another official a decorated Bible from Israel.

As Sage slumped to the floor, Secret Service agents guarding the First Lady rushed to his side and began efforts to revive him. He was later taken by ambulance to the hospital.

Mrs. Ford turned pale and took her seat when Sage collapsed. Moments later, she stood and stepped to the microphone.

"Can we all bow our heads for a moment," she said, "and say a prayer for Rabbi Sage. He is going to the hospital and needs our prayers. Would you rise and bow your heads."

As the shaken audience rose, Mrs. Ford paused, then continued.

"I'll have to say it in my own words," she said, and began her prayer, which lasted about two minutes.

Mrs. Ford then said to the audience, "Thank you very much. I know it will mean a great deal to him and I know it means a great deal to me. Thank you."

The First Lady's press secretary said Mrs. Ford's erroneous reference to Sage as a rabbi resulted from an impression she received during a meeting with Sage at a Zionist function about a year ago.

Sage was the son of a former chief rabbi of Paris and fled France during World War II.

He began his chemical and pharmaceutical firm in 1944 and later operated a brokerage business. But his real love was Zionism, and at one time he served as president of the Religious Zionists of America.

Survivors include Sage's widow, Lillian, two sons and a daughter.

Carter calls for partnership between U.S., other nations

NEW YORK (AP) — Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter said today the United States must abandon what he called its "Lone Ranger" foreign policy and organize free nations to share responsibility for "a just and stable world order."

Carter, the Democrats' probable nominee, called for collective action by the world's democracies in "creative alliances" to help stabilize world prices, ease military tensions and combat hunger and poverty.

Carter painted his concept of "creative alliances" in broad strokes, giving few specific details.

He said it is time to form a partnership between North America, Western Europe and Japan, and that there is a need for increased unity and consultation with Israel, Australia, New Zealand and other democratic societies.

Carter also said in a speech prepared for the Foreign Policy Association that:

—NATO forces must be re-equipped with up-to-date weapons to balance modernized Warsaw Pact forces, but he said the costs must be shared by NATO partners, not borne solely by the United States, and that no effort should be spared to seek a balanced reduction of forces on both sides.

—Increased cooperation between East and West is desirable "but we will never seek accommodation at the expense of our own national interests or the interests of our allies."

Carter has said previously that the United States "has gone overboard in detente" with the Soviet Union and the results, including the U.S.-Soviet joint manned space flight, wheat deals and strategic arms limitations talk (SALT) agreements, have been basically negative for this country.

—He is "particularly concerned" by the nation's "role as the world's leading arms salesman" and that the United States and its allies must work to reduce the flow of arms into developing nations.

—It will be possible to withdraw U.S. forces from South Korea over a time span to be determined after consultation with both South Korea and Japan, but the United States should make clear that "internal oppression" in South Korea is "repugnant to our people."

The Foreign Policy Association is composed of academicians and others who meet periodically for seminars.

Hahn fails to halt spread of freeway carpool lanes

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An attempt to halt the spread of buscarpool lanes to freeways other than the Santa Monica Freeway — where the notorious Diamond Lanes debuted — has been spurned by the Board of Supervisors.

By a 3-2 vote Tuesday the board rejected Supervisor Kenneth Hahn's attempt to have the county adopt an anti-Diamond Lane policy. Hahn sought to head off tentative plans by the state Department of Transportation to inaugurate a bus and carpool lane system on a 10-mile stretch of the San Diego Freeway.

Speaking for the majority, Supervisor James Hayes conceded that the Diamond Lane is "poorly put together." However, Hayes insisted that the experimental transportation project deserves more proving time.

Supervisors freeze pay of top officials

The supervisors' action Tuesday in effect froze the salaries of Sheriff Peter J. Pitchess, Dist. Atty. John Van de Kamp, Assessor Philip Watson and Chief Administrative Officer Harry L. Hufford.

The freeze also left top-level county salaries well below the pay of comparative Los Angeles city officials, such as Police Chief Edward M. Davis, whose pay will be hiked to $69,760 annually under a 11.5 per cent increase.

Schabaraum opposed setting a salary ceiling and contended it would make the county's top officials "scapegoats" for the county's tight fiscal situation.

Supervisor Ed Edelman conceded a ceiling would hinder efforts to entice the best talent into county service, but in the end he backed the board's action.

The board also voted an 8¼ per cent raise for county department heads not at top-scale and a 5 per cent boost for management employes below the level of department heads.

Five management employes, however, were barred from the 5 per cent salary hike because it would put them within $100 of the $49,500 earned by the heads of their departments.

The board's action represented approval of the salary proposals negotiated with 45 bargaining units whose contracts expire July 1, when the salary hikes become effective.

Plan for wealthy to pay some tax near OK

WASHINGTON (AP) — A plan to require wealthy Americans to pay some income tax no matter how many tax loopholes they use is nearing approval in the Senate.

The plan, approved earlier by the Senate Finance Committee, would cost the wealthy $1 billion a year. A bloc of liberal senators is seeking to raise that figure by $200 million and apply the tougher provisions to corporations as well as individuals.

Strengthening this "minimum tax" is a key element of the big tax bill being debated by the Senate.

The minimum tax was enacted in 1969 in an effort to assure that persons using such shelters would pay some income tax. Despite this, it was disclosed earlier this year that 244 Americans earning more than $200,000 paid no income tax in 1974 because of large deductions.

Making the minimum tax even tougher than the committee wants is the most important part of a package of tax amendments offered by the liberals. They were beaten Tuesday in most efforts to eliminate tax shelters for high-income investors.

On a 53-40 vote, the Senate indicated it prefers the milder tax-shelter crackdown approved by the Finance Committee, which would raise investors' taxes by $165 million in 1977, a figure that would drop gradually to $126 million by 1981.

The plan advocated by Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and other liberals would have meant a $200-million increase in taxes in 1977 and gradual increases over the next five years.

Kennedy's proposal would have wiped out tax shelters gained through investment in farming, commercial real estate, equipment leasing and movies. The restrictions would have applied only to investments in obvious tax-avoidance schemes, not to those persons already involved in those businesses.

Driver held in hit-run; boy injured

A young Pomona man was arrested and accused of leaving the scene of a traffic accident in which a 9-year-old Los Angeles boy was injured Tuesday evening.

The suspect, Edward Lee Singleton, 20, of 936 E. La Verne Ave., was booked on suspicion of felonious hit-run driving after he turned himself in to Police Sgt. Richard Hannibal at Garey Avenue and Willow Street later.

Police reported that Singleton and the boy, who was riding a bike, collided as Singleton was turning at Ashfield and Asbury avenues. Witnesses said the driver sped away, and as he did the muffler and tailpipe fell from his car. The car was found a few minutes later parked in the 2100 block of Stocker Street. A few minutes after that, Singleton hailed Hannibal and turned himself in.

The boy, Michael Walker, 9, was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital and transferred to County-USC Medical Center. He was reported in fair condition there today. He was under observation after complaining of stomach pains, a spokeswoman said.

Spotlight on area crime

Man beaten, stabbed in park

A Pomona man told police late Tuesday night that he was beaten and stabbed by a group of young men in Sharkie Park who told him the park was theirs and ordered him out.

They also took his pickup truck, he said.

The victim, Richard Jay Johnston, 24, was taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital where physicians removed a broken, five-inch knife blade from his right arm. He was treated for several other puncture wounds in his arms plus bruises and released.

Johnston said he was at the park alone when he was confronted by the group. He said he agreed to leave, but was attacked anyway. During the beating someone went through his pockets and took the keys to his pickup truck. The vehicle was found abandoned in an alley nearby later.

Johnston walked home, despite his injuries. Relatives summoned police.

Vandals in museum

UPLAND police this morning continued their search for vandals who broke into the Chaffey Community Cultural Center at 525 W. 18th St. Monday night and sprayed several museum displays with a fire extinguisher, causing considerable damage.

The vandalism was discovered early Tuesday morning when Mrs. Bea Riggs, volunteer director of the museum, walked through the broken down doors of the building and found a youth spraying some of the displays.

Mrs. Riggs asked the youth what he was doing and he replied "just looking around." The director picked up the telephone to call police to report she had the youth in custody, but carbon dioxide from the fire extinguisher that looked like smoke distracted her. She told the dispatcher she had better call the Fire Department. Meanwhile the youth fled.

Museum spokesmen said that the dollar amount of damage would be difficult to determine, but that some of the objects were damaged to the point where they would have to be repaired by experts.

Police found that about $4 worth of goods possibly were stolen by the vandals.

DNA research rules set

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Institutes of Health today issued long-awaited guidelines for a controversial type of genetic research. They include a ban on some experiments considered too dangerous to perform.

The new rules for recombinant DNA are designed to control what some see as the almost God-like potential of science to create new forms of life.

Critics fear the research could create super disease organisms not found naturally and immune to all defenses against them.

Supporters say the research has vast scientific potential. They envision turning bacteria into little generators of valuable proteins and hormones, such as insulin and blood clotting factor.

Dr. Donald S. Fredrickson, NIH director, said the guidelines for recombinant DNA molecule research are effective immediately at NIH laboratories and those of its contractors and grantees.

NIH said the guidelines are more stringent than proposals it circulated at the first of the year, and stricter than recommendations by an international meeting of scientists issued in 1975.

DNA — deoxyribonucleic acid — is the chemical that forms genes, the basic units of heredity. Recombinant DNA molecules result from recombining in a test tube DNA from different species of life.

Genes for specific inherited traits taken from one species are combined with those of another, usually by removing a gene from a higher organism and putting it into bacteria.

When the modified bacteria reproduces, the offspring contain characteristics of the new gene.

The new guidelines prohibit combining genes from certain risky disease organisms into others; transfering drug-resistant traits to microorganisms that could compromise use of a drug to control disease; and forming recombinants with genes that can synthesize potent poisons. The new directions also prohibit large-scale experiments — those with more than 10 liters of culture — with recombinants known to make harmful products.

However, NIH said specific large-scale experiments that could directly benefit society may be allowed if done under special conditions with specifical approval from NIH.

The guidelines list four classes of laboratories in which the research can be done. Depending upon the experiment and genetic material involved, the laboratories range from common college labs to ones with elaborate systems of airlocks and filters resembling space capsules.

The Recombinant Advisory Committee at NIH, which helped put together the guidelines after conducting public hearings, will remain in existence to interpret the guidelines and answer questions that may arise, Fredrickson said.

It is unknown how much recombinant DNA research is going on, Fredrickson said, "but there are indications that industry already is involved in this research to a wide extent."

Fredrickson said private industry isn't required to report on what kind of research it is doing, nor are the guidelines mandatory for research outside NIH. "It is our hope that they will be effective as guidelines with voluntary compliance," he said.

Several international health and scientific organizations have indicated they plan to adopt the guidelines for research abroad.

Concern about recombinant DNA research has grown as scientific advances pushed its potential from the possible to the probable.

In February, 1975, scientists from around the world gathered at the Asilomar Conference Center in Pacific Grove, California. In an unprecedented move, they agreed that certain DNA experiments should not be performed now.

Court arbitration system to begin statewide

A greater role arbitration in disposing of Los Angeles County Superior Court civil cases seems probable beginning July 1 as a new state-wide system of arbitration replaces the successful voluntary arbitration program which was a model for the state plan, Frank S. Zolin, the court executive officer said.

"Thousands of court trial days have been saved in the nearly five years that the voluntary plan of this court has been in effect, Presiding Judge Robert A. Wenke said.

Wenke explained that an Arbitration Administrative Committee, as required by the new law, has been established by the court. Judge John A. Loomis is chairman.

The original arbitration program disposed of more than 2,000 cases after being put into effect in November 1971. It made unnecessary trials which would have taken 9,500 days — the equivalent of the work of 38 full-time judges for one year.

Three hundred lawyers served as arbitrators without pay under that original program. Court facilities and court staff were utilized, however.

Loomis said that arbitration offers a much quicker and less expensive way to handle Superior Court cases. It is particularly suited for cases where the potential recovery amount indicates that it is in the best interests of all parties to avoid the time and expense of a trial.

Loomis explained that major changes resulting from the plan are that the plaintiff can invoke arbitration if he limits his recovery to $7,500, and that if any party is dissatisfied with the result, he can demand a trial in the Superior Court. However, if the party demanding the trial does not improve his position, that party must pay the costs of the trial.

Another difference is that arbitrators will be paid by the state for each proceeding. The minimum fee is $150. The hearings will be in the central courthouse in Los Angeles.

The committee recommends that both sides agree to a $15,000 limit for recovery attempts, but both sides may agree to a higher limit if they wish.

Demos ask debates for regional races

Area Democrats have asked local Republicans to jointly sponsor a debate for party candidates seeking election to the Assembly, state Senate and Congress.

Darlene Pritchard, co-chairman of the Democratic Party for the 25th Senatorial District, has written to Dr. Walter Buerger, chairman of the Los Angeles County Republican Central Committee, in seeking the debate.

"It is important that nominees of our political parties set an example in discussing the critical choices confronting America. In this Bicentennial year, I can conceive of no greater service on behalf of our American system than an old-fashioned political debate on the issues," she wrote.

Copies of the latter were sent to Rep. Jim Lloyd, Democrat and Louis Brutocao, Republican, candidates in the 35th Congressional District; state Sen. H. L. Richardson, R-19th Dist., and Ron Barbatoe, Democrat, candidates in the 25th Senatorial District; and Assemblyman William Lancaster, Republican, and Sandy Baldonado, Democrat, candidates in the 62nd Assembly District.

She reported initial response to her inquiry has prompted her to believe that local Democratic Party candidates are "very likely" to participate in the debate.

Convalescent wins environmental award

A child care center would be operated by Walnut High School students under a plan submitted to the Walnut school board.

If plans are adopted at a future meeting, a day care center would be initiated in 1976-77 to handle some 20 to 24 preschool students.

They would be selected on the basis of need from working mothers within the Walnut school district.

The center would accept the children beginning at 6:30 a.m. and keep them until 5 p.m. A lunch would be served. A nominal fee would be charged the mothers.

High school students would be trained by a certificated teacher as child care aides. Students completing the program would be qualified to work in private schools.

The day care center would be used for observation by child care, management and nutrition classes.

Such a program can be developed in cooperation with the La Puente Valley Regional Occupational Program.

In other action Monday, board members adopted a tentative 1976-77 budget of $14,595,259 for the school district.

The budget calls for a 19-cent increase in the tax rate per $100 assessed valuation.

Significant expenditure increases anticipated for 1976-77 are connected with opening, staffing and operating Chaparral Intermediate School in Diamond Bar, the new swimming pool at Walnut High School, the new Cyrus G. Morris Elementary School for a full year and the new Walnut Elementary School, now under construction, for half a year.

The Southern Chapter of the California Environmental Health Association honored Country House resident Victor Jennings for his interests and efforts to improve the environmental health conditions in his surroundings.

John Porter of the Southern Chapter of CEHA presented the youth, a student at Danbury School in Claremont, a plaque for his special interest in safety and fire prevention.

At the presentation ceremony were Joseph Salazar, Los Angeles County Licensing Department; Raquel Casillas, Eidth Keim and Luke Franck, Los Angeles Continuing Care Services Section; James Otto, owner of Country House; Dorothy Broadway, administrator of Country House; Mrs. Joan Gottuso, director of nurses; Kathy Lemly, program director, and all the Country House program staff, nurses aides, and residents.

Country House is a convalescent home at 1041 S. White Ave. in Pomona.

Overtime pay okayed

LOS ANGELES (AP)— Los Angeles' police commission has approved $25,000 in overtime pay for policing the July 4 Bicentennial parade down Wilshire Blvd., but parade organizers say the other two cities that share Wilshire — Beverly Hills and Santa Monica — are balking at providing police manpower to patrol their share of the 18-mile route.

Parade Chairman James R. McFaden says the parade is being billed as the longest in the United States

"I hate to ask the governor to call out the National Guard for the Beverly Hills and Santa Monica portions of the parade," says McFaden, "but if it stops at the (Los Angeles) city line it won't be the longest."

Lloyd doing a flip-flop on Congress pay—Brutocao

LOUIS BRUTOCAO, Republican candidate in the 35th Congressional District, said a recent statement by Rep. Jim Lloyd, D-35th Dist., that he is co-sponsoring legislation to repeal the cost-of-living increase approved for legislators last year doesn't begin to explain Lloyd's record in the pay matter.

"The pay measure which has already netted congressmen a $2,100 salary boost contains a clause granting Congress automatic permanent cost-of-living pay increases. Lloyd voted last July in favor of the hotly debated salary issue which passed the House by one vote — Loyd's vote," he charged.

On Sept. 4, Rep. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, introduced a bill to repeal the pay raise, Brutocao continued. "At that time Lloyd stuck by his earlier statement that Congress deserved the raise and said that although some of his colleagues 'haven't got the guts,' he would stand by his vote in favor of the pay increases."

"Now, nearly a year since the pay raise passed and 10 months after the bill to nullify it was introduced, Lloyd has announced he will cosponsor Grassley's bill to repeal the salary increase."

REP. JIM LLOYD, D-35th Dist., has demanded that governments of Southeast Asia make a full accounting to the United States on Americans missing in action from the Vietnam War.

"As a member of the House Select Committee on Missing Persons in Southeast Asia, it is evident to me the communist regimes of Southeast Asia could supply substantial information on the fates of the 809 persons listed as missing in action," he said.

irresponsible and only add to the suffering of families and friends of missing persons, both military and civilian," he added.

The Assembly has approved legislation by ASSEMBLYMAN BILL McVITTIE, D-65th Dist., which prevents the sale of drug contaminated meat to consumers.

The measure would tighten control of substances used as livestock remedies and prohibit the sale of animals which may still be contaminated.

"Residues from medication given to livestock can be dangerous to humans who eat the meat. This bill would require the owner of such treated animals to notify the buyer that the meat being purchased may still be contaminated by medication," he said.

The bill next goes to the state Senate for approval.

DMV enlisting public to serve as advisers

Volunteers to make up a Department of Motor Vehicles "Backseat Driver" public panel are being sought by Lloyd F. Souders, manager of the DMV Pomona office.

The panel will become part of a network of 89 community advisory bodies statewide.

Souders said the program is to enable people who seek services from the state government "to have some participatory input as to the quality of the service rendered them and to have some say on the policies and programs of DMV."

The Pomona public panel will include 10 to 15 members and will reflect the interest and backgrounds of the community, the DMV manager said.

"We're looking for people who don't normally have access to the policy makers, people who haven't been consulted much by the government in the past but should have been contacted as a matter of course," he said.

Applications and more information about the program can be obtained at the DMV office at 211 Erie St., Pomona, or can be mailed to interested parties who phone the office at 629-3055.

Volunteers will be sought from among high school students, senior citizens, homemakers, salaried workers and members of social or cultural organizations.

Panels are expected to start functioning in July so those interested in serving are urged by the DMV to contact the local office soon.

Meeting monthly, the panels will require two or three hours a month of each member's time, the manager estimated. Participants will receive no remuneration for their service

Medicare insurance rate to rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Millions of Social Security recipients will soon find their benefit checks a little smaller as the cost of Medicare insurance rises by 50 cents a month.

The government is raising the monthly premium for Medicare's "Part B" coverage to $7.20 from $6.70 starting July 1. Some 24.6 million elderly and disabled Americans are covered under Part B, which pays doctors' bill and other out-of-hospital medical costs.

The government deducts the Medicare premium automatically from the monthly checks of many persons drawing Social Security. State Medicaid agencies pay the premiums for more than 3 million persons, and the government bills others quarterly.

A legislative quirk prevented the government from raising the premiums since July 1, 1974. The increase would have been much larger if Congress had not imposed a lid on premium hikes, according to the Social Security Administration.

Without the lid, which is tied to the cost-of-living, Part B premiums would have jumped to $10.70 a month to keep pace with rising medical costs, a spokesman said.

The increase is meant to put Medicare's supplementary medical insurance program on a sounder financial footing next year.

Part A of Medicare covers hospital and nursing home bills. It is automatic for Social Security beneficiaries and requires no premiums. Part B, which requires premiums, is optional.

The premium increase is expected to bring in an additional $149 million during the 12 months beginning July 1.

The program had total income of $4.9 billion in the fiscal year ending June 30, including $1.9 billion from premiums and the rest from the federal treasury and trust fund interest. Total expenditures were $5.2 billion.

In fiscal year 1977 beginning Oct. 1, the government anticipates total income of $7.3 billion, including $2.2 billion from premiums, and total expenditures of $6.5 billion.

The SSA said that Part B coverage will be extended to 22.4 million aged persons and 2.2 million disabled persons under the age of 65 years. An estimated 12.5 million aged and 1.7 million disabled persons are expected to submit medical claims next year.

Decorating—a crisis?

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: We recently bought a home and ever since we started decorating it we've been teetering on the brink of divorce. Never in our married life have we had so many quarrels. I never knew how difficult my wife was and, apparently, she feels the same about me. What happened? — F.E.

Dear F.E.: What has happened is that you both are showing feelings that you may not have even known existed. Decorating a house is such a personal thing and it often brings anxieties and fears to the surface. Sometimes women who have weathered many major crises in life are shattered by the experience of getting a house together in the way they like it.

There is no time when a woman is more apt to go to pieces than when she is engaged in decorating a home. Because a home is like an extension of herself, her choices of color, furniture and design are determined by an unconscious image of what she is, or dreds to be. This can also be true of a man.

Regardless of sex, the home does expose many of the innermost feelings of its owners, and it is on display for everyone to see. Very few people are so secure that they can expose themselves without some anxieties and doubts.

No two human beings are exactly alike and husband and wife are not apt to see eye to eye on color or even furniture choices. Some men may be content to leave all this up to their wives but most men today are almost as concerned as their wives are about these matters.

Decorating a home is much more than meets the eye. It moves into our innermost being and uncovers buried feelings. Use this experience to learn more about each other and your marriage will be enriched, rather than marred.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: Having come from large families, my wife and I have always hoped that our children would also have large families. We're disappointed because none of them has more than two children and after a lengthy family discussion, we were told in no uncertain terms that this is it. We respect and love all of them but we think they're a bit too concerned about overpopulation. Aren't children from small families more spoiled than those from the old-fashioned kind of home we had? — H.R.

Dear H.R.: I know that, as parents, you realize that family size is something each couple must determine for themselves. Pressure on this subject, even when it's meant to be helpful, is almost always unwelcome.

I should think as grandparents you might be more pleased with fewer grandchildren because you have a better chance to get to know each child in greater depth. When there are too many grandchildren, grandparents often end up feeling that they're being used and they, like the parents, begin to lose sight of the children as individuals and tend to view them more as a unit or a group.

Studies have indicated that children in two-child families have many advantages over those from large families. They tend to be brighter, bigger, more creative and more vigorous. The parents of two-child families are happier, more emotionally stable and better off financially. They are able to give their children better educations and health care. One study showed that the number of children in the family affects intelligence. Children from small families consistently outscored those from big families. Enjoy your grandchildren and celebrate their advantages.

Chorus, band set for Starlite

The Pomona Community Chorus, directed by Ray Woods, and the Nightblooming Jazzmen, conducted by Chet Jaeger, will present a concert at the Starlite Patio Theater, Montclair civic center, at 8 p.m. Tuesday. Admission is free.

The chorus, formed in 1972, has performed widely throughout Southern California. Twice it has sponsored the Pomona Valley Festival of Choruses in which massed choral groups were conducted by Roger Wagner, director of the Los Angeles Master Chorale.

The Nightblooming Jazzmen is a seven-piece Dixieland band drawn from the Society for the Preservation of Dixieland Jazz. The group received a standing ovation after its performance recently at the Sacramento Dixieland Jubilee.

The summer program at the Starlite Patio Theater is a series presented free of charge by the Montclair Parks and Recreation Department. Harve Edwards is director.

Chino to give drama classes

The Chino Recreation and Parks Department will present a series of 10-week classes in acting, stage design, makeup and other theater techniques, starting July 12.

Called the Chino Theatrical Production Company, the classes are open to all children, teen-agers and adults in the valley area. They will be held from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the multipurpose room of the Riverside Drive Elementary School, Sixth Street and Riverside Drive.

On Monday nights classes will be held in scenic design and lighting; on Tuesdays the classes will be in acting and mime; and on Thursdays the topic will be costume and makeup.

The fees are $10 for one workshop, $15 for two and $20 for all three.

Registration can be made at the Chino Recreation and Parks Department starting July 6 or at the first meeting of the class.

Rooney to star in film

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mickey Rooney has been signed as one of the stars of "Pete's Dragon," the biggest project of Walt Disney Productions since "Mary Poppins."

Rooney will star as Lampie, a bibulous lighthouse keeper and father of Helen Reddy. In the script Miss Reddy befriends a 9-year-old orphan and his companion, a dragon named Elliott.

Jerome Courtland is producing "Pete's Dragon" with Don Chaffey as director.

The tadpoles that hatch out of frogs' eggs live in water less than a year.

Bonita singers at Kennedy

The Bonita High School Chamber Singers, conducted by Tom Antel, will present a prelude concert in the grand foyer of the Kennedy Center Concert Hall, Washington, D.C. at 4:15 p.m. Monday as the National Music Council salutes California composers and musicians in the Bicentennial Parade of Music.

The 21-voice group was named best high school choral ensemble in California in competition at the Music Educators National Conference earlier this year.

Among the selections to be performed at the Bicentennial Parade of Music is "Divertimento No. 5, Theatrical Sketches," by Gail Kubik, award-winning composer-in-residence at Scripps College. The work will be performed by Diana Steiner, violin; Frances Steiner, cello, and David Berfield, piano.

The program will also include Frederick Lesemann's "Fantasy for Solo Piano," Suite for Solo Violin" by Halsey Stevens, "Songs of Affirmation" by William Grant Still, Marshall Bialosky's "Fantasy for Solo Cello" and "Tawny and Heather" by Elinor Remick Warren.

Suit is filed against studio

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Attorney General's office has filed a consumer suit againt Maurice Kosloff and his Hollywood Theatrical Studios.

The suit, filed in Superior Court on Monday, claims that advertising lured persons to the studio on the pretext that jobs were available, but job seekers were actually solicited to pay for acting lessons.

Career criminals target of organization

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Its name sounds like a project to train future Al Capones. But the Career Criminals Program (CCP) is just the opposite — an attempt by law enforcement officials to put away those who have already made a career of crime.

Thirty-seven persons from 11 states met here over the weekend to discuss the progress of the program designed to target and prosecute cases involving habitual offenders.

Each area has its own definition of career criminal, with the CCP being a special unit in the district attorney's office set up to deal solely with those repeat offenders.

In Boston, Houston and New Orleans, for example, members of the special unit are on 24-hour call. When a person categorized as a career criminal is arrested, the unit is notified and one of its members is assigned the case.

In Houston, the unit stays with a case until it goes to trial, when it's turned over to a regular prosecutor. In New Orleans, the assistant district attorney notified by the police follows the case through to trial.

"A minority of criminals commit the majority of the crime and this program identifies that minority," says Philip Cohen of the National Legal Data Center, which coordinates the various cities' programs.

"By identifying them, we are able to stop continuances, limit plea bargaining and incarcerate these people as soon as possible."

The idea of program was outlined by President Ford in September 1974. The first program became operational in New Orleans eight months later with funds from the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA).

From an initial LEAA outlay of $4 million to 11 cities, money has spread to 20 jurisdictions from New York to California, with some impressive early results.

"We have cut the average time from arrest to disposition from five months to eight months down to 60 days in cases connected with this program," says Harry Connick, New Orleans district attorney. "I think we have demonstrated effective use of the tax dollar."

Vic Pecorino, the head of the project in Houston, says speed is not the only result of the program.

"Our project concentrates on robberies and they are down 25-30 per cent since we began," he said "We can have a guy on his way to jail before he knows what hit him — and he can't rob the public from there."

Growing Chino mulls parks, water—and tax

By CONRAD CASLER
PB Correspondent

Quadrupling park acreage, Water Department expansion and a $200 tax on new homes are under scrutiny by Chino city councilmen today.

Councilmen heard proposals from city staffers and the Parks Commission at Tuesday night's meeting which would:

— Add five new major parks to Chino's present one large park and five miniparks at a cost of $2.1 million.

— Increase Water Department wells and water mains to meet residential growth at a cost of more than $6 million.

— Tax new homes and trailer sites an additional $200 to bring in an estimated $200,000 annually for general fund use.

Councilmen approved a request by Public Works Director John Gerardi to pursue a study on how to raise funds for proposed expansion of the water program through 1985.

Mushrooming subdivisions require expansion to meet demand, including several new city wells and transmission lines, Gerardi said.

Consultants for the city said several financing alternatives are open including revenue bonds, general obligation bonds and the possibility of obtaining some federal or state funds.

Gerardi said about $3.5 million in expansion is needed by 1980 and $3 to $3.5 million more by 1985.

Jack Anderson, parks and recreation director, outlined plans to quadruple park acreage in a program which would allow voters to ballot on a $2.1 million parks bond issue in 17 months.

Chino now operates the 7.5-acre Villa Park and five miniparks of one acre each. Anderson's plan approved by parks commissioners would add Northside Park with 7.5 acres, Walnut Park with 4.9 acres, Monte Vista Park with 8.7 acres and five acres each Magnolia, Mountain and Norton Parks.

Some of the park land already has been purchased by the city, with help from the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development. Anderson said the bond issue of $2.1 million would allow all new parks to be developed. Tentative date for voter action on the plan is set for November 1977 with a completion date of November 1978 for all park construction.

Councilmen gave Anderson approval to complete the parks planning package.

City Manager Bob Fast and Community Development Director Gale Carr outlined a $200 tax on new homes which would pour $200,000 a year into city coffers to be used for street improvements, parks and other general fund needs.

This tax would be on top of the $245 tax already imposed on new home construction and earmarked specifically for park construction.

Fast won approval to draft a new tax ordinance for later council adoption.

Dennis Chineaeff who left Chino last November as assistant community development director, Carr's assistant, was named to succeed Carr who is leaving city service next month to become a private consultant with a firm in Anaheim. Chineaeff has been a planner with the city of Scott's Valley.

Also appointed by councilmen were Emil Torkar to the Environmental Appeals Board and Betty Cavanagh to the Cultural Center Committee.

Tax break seems sure for Chino School Dist.

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

Residents of the Chino school district apparently will be among the unique this year — they should be getting a tax break.

The school board Tuesday night adopted a $15.9 million tentative budget reflecting an 8½-cent tax increase proposed by administrators. But trustees ordered the staff to make cuts in the budget that would mean a 10-cent drop from the present tax rate.

Board members were unanimous in their resolve to cut the total tax rate to $4.94 per $100 assessed valuation. It would involve reducing the unified tax by 20 cents — which had been proposed to rise by 21 cents. The community service tax still will go up by 10 cents, partly counteracting the unified tax reduction.

"If the tax situation improves, maybe we can add things (programs) to the budget later," said board President Al McCombs. "But I can't see a 31-cent boost (unified tax plus community service) in the tax rate on top of increases in assessments. It would be quite a burden on the taxpayers."

The $15,937,659 tentative budget is about $1 million higher than last year. Of the total, $927,796 is in undistributed reserves. The budget is balanced, and revenues will be about $5,000 more than expenditures.

A 10 per cent increase in assessed valuation was estimated by Asst. Supt. Al Searfoss, but McCombs said it may be 15 per cent or more.

The beginning balances of $530,211 is $200,000 less than last year, said Searfoss.

No salary increases for teachers are included in the budget. However, 5.5 per cent boosts recently awarded to management and confidential employes are reflected in the plan.

Trustees indicated Tuesday they will wait until the new state collective bargaining law takes effect on July 1 before negotiating teacher salaries.

New programs included in the budget — and the main reason for the $1 million increase over last year — are reorganization of the district staff, more vice principals at the elementary level, reading specialists in grades four through six, expansion of health services, a school farm manager program and monies for collective bargaining.

The reading specialists are part of the RISE (Reform of Intermediate and Secondary Education) program approved by the board earlier.

District staff changes include a new director in the instruction department, a director of finance and a data processing programmer.

About five part-time vice principals are recommended at elementary schools.

A special nurses clinic is also proposed, along with a manager to run the student farm.

The proposed programs all were seriously questioned by the board and were ordered to be re-examined.

TIME FOR A TREAT

Carpenter and artist give young patients something to treasure

Young patients at Pomona Valley Community Hospital giggle with delight when they spot the treasure chest and highly imaginative mural just completed in the pediatrics department.

Created by hospital carpenter Walter Knott and retired school art consultant Drew A. Dobosh, the project includes taped music, atmospheric lighting and toys provided by the hospital auxiliary members.

The mural which is painted inside of a three-sided booth depicts a pirate fantasy featuring 50 characters with which children can identify. A variety of colorful birds and animals further enhance the mural which took Dobosh over 500 hours to complete.

Centered within the curved mural is a large wooden treasure chest which Knott made last year. The carpenter constructed the booth and installed the lighting and taped music this spring.

Dobosh, who retired in 1969 as art consultant for the Pomona Unified School District, previously designed a large wall mural which brightens the pediatrics wing recreation room.

While the artist has contributed a number of projects to the hospital, he has yet to match the record of his wife, Goldie, who has logged more than 4,000 hours as a volunteer with the hospital auxiliary.

The gifts in the chest are given to youngsters who are patients at the hospital.

Artists apply for exhibition

Applications are now available at San Dimas City Hall for local artists wishing to exhibit their work during Cultural Day activities July 4 in San Dimas.

The exhibit will be among a host of activities coordinated by the San Dimas Bicentennial Commission to celebrate the nation's 200th birthday July 4 and 5.

S.D. again delays vote on ravine landfill plan

By MAE TATE
PB Staff Writer

The San Dimas City Council once again delayed a "half-million dollar decision" Tuesday night, supposedly to consider other alternatives to a landfill proposal.

Representatives of Crow-Pacific Builders and the Via Verde Development Corp. were noticeably annoyed about the postponement. They have been trying to get a decision from the council on the matter for a month now and quipped about the council dallying over "a half-million dollar decision."

Darrell Wright of Crow-Pacific and Ron Martin, design engineer for the project, explained the proposal in detail to remove 230,000 cubic yards of excess dirt from land north of Via Verde and west of San Dimas Avenue and dump it in a ravine just east of the tract. The excess dirt would be from the grading of the tract area for the residential development.

Mayor Marvin Ersher pushed for delay until a special budget session of the council tonight at City Hall. He said that he wished to explore other alternatives before making any final decision.

Councilman Philip Wax was absent from the council meeting, attending a meeting of the West Covina Plaza Merchants Association. He has frequently joined with Ersher and Councilman Terry Dipple to defeat Councilmen James Lough and James McLean on controversial issues.

Ersher argued for the delay, not because of Wax's absence supposedly, but because he wanted to look at the site again "in light of the new projections presented" by Martin.

Lough objected to the delay, commenting that the council had sufficient information to make a decision at that time and avoid additional holdup on the Crow-Pacific development.

Although Lough did not comment on how he would vote, Dipple said he also felt there was enough evidence to merit an immediate decision but he would undoubtedly vote in the "opposite" direction of Lough. He reiterated his oft-repeated argument about the conservation of the "natural design of the area."

Lough at this point questioned City Atty. George Wakefield on the number of affirmative votes necessary for approval of the grading plan. Wakefield responded that three affirmative votes were needed and that a split vote or 2-1-abstention would not be considered a passing vote.

Although Lough disagreed with the delay, he agreed that he had no choice but to go along with the tabling.

In another matter, the council delayed recommending the award of a construction contract for Pioneer Park until the city receives word that 1976-77 Community Development Act funds have been approved.

The city cannot act on any project under the federally funded act for community improvement until the CDA allocation has been officially approved. Unaware of this regulation during the 1975-76 fiscal year, the city had to pay for the acquisition and demolition costs for San Dimas Elementary School out of general funds because it acted before official notice or receipt of CDA dollars earmarked for this expense.

Bryce Bailey, parks and recreation director, said the council will act on the matter tonight if it receives official notice from the county today.

Historical fete to honor 1926 high graduates

The Historical Society of Pomona Valley will hold its ninth annual barbecue with Cal Poly's Circle K Club Sunday, June 27, from noon to 5 p.m. at the Phillips Mansion in Pomona.

Honored guests at the event will be high school graduates from the year 1926.

A complete dinner will be served and there will be music and entertainment.

Ticket prices are $3.50 for adults, $1.75 for children under 10, which are tax deductible.

Historical unit plans barbecue at mansion

Free entertainment, including a 50-voice barber shop chorus, stagecoach rides, a puppet show, square dancing and music, will highlight the Pomona Historical Society's annual barbecue Sunday at the old Phillips Mansion in Pomona.

The event will also feature a book fair under the direction of Cal Poly history professor Donal H. Pflueger, with a number of local writers on hand to autograph their works. They include humorist Richard Armour, whose "Drug Store Days" is about Pomona more than a half-century ago.

Other writers include William F. King of Mt. San Antonio College, author of "The Vintage Years," Esther Boulton Black with "Rancho Cucamonga and Dona Merced," Maxine Strane with "Tomo of Kukumongo Village," Don Clucas with "Light Over the Mountain," Alta Visnack with Ontario's "A Bicentennial Salute," and Pflueger himself with "Charles C. Chapman — Career of a Creative Californian."

A book entitled "Thirty-two Adobes in California" by Isabel Lopez de Fages of Pomona will also be available.

The barbecue, which is being cosponsored by the Cal Poly Circle K club, will be held from noon to 5 p.m. A deep pit barbecue dinner will be served for a donation of $3.50 per adult and $1.75 for children under 10.

Donations, which are tax deductible, will be used for renovating the Phillips Mansion.

Special guests during the event will be 1926 graduates from valley high schools.

Claremont chamber outlays questioned

PB Staff Writer

The Claremont City Council would like to see what the city will get for the $34,300 it will give to the Claremont Chamber and Convention Bureau during 1976-77 before it signs an agreement for that amount.

Council members Tuesday night delayed the approval of such an agreement until June 29 to allow time to study the goals of the chamber and convention for the next year.

A City Council subcommittee of Eleanor Cohen and Frank Hungerford met twice with chamber representatives and recommended that:

—The city allocate to the chamber $7,000 — $3,500 from the general fund for citywide promotional activities, and $3,500 from the Redevelopment Agency for specific promotion of the Village Redevelopment Project.

— The city allocate to the convention bureau $31,000, which represent approximately the amount collected on a two per cent transient occupancy tax.

—If the transient occupancy tax receipts between July 1, 1976 and June 30, 1977, exceed $120,000, the city pay the convention bureau an additional $3,000.

Deputy City Manager Paul Brotzman stressed that of the $38,500 budgeted for payment next year, $4,200 represents payment to the chamber based on an agreement approved for the chamber's relocation from its city hall site.

Mrs. Cohen said that essentially it was the same contract as in 1975-76.

Councilman Richard Newton said he has serious concerns about the agreement, "because we are paying the chamber more than either Upland or Pomona are paying their chambers."

"Should we be paying that much?" he asked. "I would like to see this tapering off. The bulk of the advantage of the business is to motel owners. How do we compare with other cities?"

Hungerford said that the Claremont motels are anticipating adding an additional 150 rooms. "Should we change the basic agreement?"

"I think it should be eventually capped," said Mayor Bertye Smith. "I would keep the bed tax in for this year next year I would like to see the $7,000 cut."

That the funds would be reduced each year was the idea at first, Councilwoman Claire McDonald said. "The bed tax receipts get to be a healthy sum."

"I want to see what are the benefits to the community," Newton said. "Someone is taking in $1.5 million in business. There are a lot of benefits to a lot of groups. Maybe we should come up with a different formula."

'Wasn't getting anything accomplished'

ROY WARD

Roy E. Ward, a Chino school board member elected a year ago on an anti-year-round school platform, resigned his position Tuesday night.

Ward, whose term still has three years to run, said this morning that he "wasn't getting anything accomplished" on the board.

"I got to the point where I saw I wasn't making any headway. I found myself making political decisions and I'm not a politician."

Ward explained he was "bucking heads" with four board members who usually voted against his proposals. "I'm tired of it. There is too much time involved in this. I'd rather go fishing."

The 50-year-old Ward was elected on a slate with Lyle Briggs in March 1975, backed by Citizens for Improved Education (CIE), anti-YRS group.

He had taken many controversial positions, one of which was a proposal to fire Supt. Royce Lapp. Although he was backed by Briggs in the move, the attempt was defeated by the other three trustees.

Ward had pulled away somewhat from the CIE, sometimes openly fighting the group's proposals. But he said that had little to do with his resignation. "If that was the only reason, I'd have stayed and fought it out."

Board President Al McCombs announced the resignation after a hastily called executive session. There was no comment from the board on Ward's departure.

Trustees voted to appoint a new board member at a July 19 meeting. They will first interview prospective candidates on July 13.

Citizens may file a petition opposing the appointment within 30 days of it being made.

Soviets slip behind West

The Soviet Union is dangerous precisely because it is a second-rate power in everything but military strength. And may be on the downhill road.

Soviet technological advances, the basis for significant economic-industrial growth except in the field of materials production and routine manufactures, cannot match those of the United States or other major Western countries.

The Russians are slipping further and further behind. Soviet agriculture is a shambles despite impressive inputs of capital and heavy thinking on the problem at the Kremlin level.

Soviet management does not seem to do significantly better when complete modern high-technology factories are installed ready to operate down to the last push button, even when fitted with highly redundant backup systems to serve in case of breakdowns.

We are not here talking of economic collapse, rather of Soviet ability to compete economically in an increasingly technological world, where efficiency is a crucial factor. This is not either to belittle Soviet theoretical scientists who can match their abilities with the world's finest. Or Soviet artists. Or writers. Or engineers.

It's rather that the economic system is so tied in with Soviet ideology that it apparently cannot be changed without severely straining the power structure on which the men in the Kremlin depend.

This same fumbling applies to Soviet relationships with other nations, particularly those whose actions the Russians would like to influence. Where there is no mammoth Soviet army on the border, the Soviets almost invariably lose their influence, even in fellow Communist nations. Exceptions, such as Cuba, are infrequent, and occur apparently only when the recipient is deeply in need of continued aid and sees no other open door. Or during limited periods when the objectives of the nation being helped and those of the Soviet Union run parallel.

Combine these failings then with the proven Soviet ability, though at great cost in technical manpower and in rubles, to mount a broad development of its armed forces, both nuclear and conventional.

What then happens as the Soviet Union begins to slip further behind the West in industry, as in agriculture? And when its immediate successes, as in India, Angola, Afghanistan, begin to sour — as has been the case with Egypt and a wide assortment of other nations where Soviet influence once seemed firmly in control?

Here then will be the period of danger. Having a strong military force, knowing that no nation would likely intervene given the danger of nuclear war, and having confidence in its own highly developed civil evacuation system aimed at reducing nuclear casualties, some Soviet ruler could act either in overconfidence or in the belief that action was necessary before the balance of polito-economic power shifted too far against the USSR.

There are, however, strong rays of hope. Historically, even in the midst of its aggressions, the Soviet leaders have been extremely cautious men, leaving themselves wide avenues for silent retort even in the midst of military operations. This was true in the undeclared war with Japan in the 1930s when whole divisions were destroyed — but the actions never publicized at home or abroad. This was true in Soviet excursions into Iran in the World War II era. And in the Cuban missile crisis. The Soviet leaders of this and past eras have been prone to copper their bets. And in all-out war there is no possible way to be smugly secure.

There are also faint signs that some conservative U.S. government analysts interpret as an attempt by the Soviet bureaucracy to bring its more militant members, civilian and military, under tighter control. If this attempt is real, and if it succeeds, the outlook will be improved. True bureaucrats are, by nature, extremely cautious. And caution, of course, makes war less likely.

Aid for ailing sewers

That commercial encouraging housewives to empty a box of bicarbonate of soda down the kitchen drain, after using it to combat odors in the refrigerator, may be more than an ad-man's brainchild.

Chemists with Dwight & Church Co., largest producer of bicarbonate of soda (or baking soda), have discovered that the stuff is good for a lot of the things that ail sewage systems. Because of its ability to absorb either excess acidity or excess alkalinity it's a natural pH control buffer, and also acts like a "vitamin" for busy little crud-digesting bacteria.

A dose of bicarb — 196 pounds a day, to be exact — saved the life of a 37-year-old sewage treatment plant in Hightstown, N.J., the company says, as well as millions of dollars of taxpayer money that would have been necessary to bring the plant into compliance with Environmental Protection Agency standards.

Helicopter intrusion

Dear Editor:

A helicopter flying over your house at 300 feet or at any height without your permission is an intrusion of your privacy.

Flashing a light in your backyard is a denial of your constitutional right to freedom from illegal search and seizure.

Helicopters are the unsafest flying machines ever made. One will definitely crash soon.

Four or five have crashed in Southern California alone in the last eight months. Do you ever wonder where the next one will crash?

I wonder how much insurance the city carries to cover the possibilities of harm or death to the innocent below. Will the city build you a new home or pay the constant cost of medical care if one of your family is maimed?

A helicopter on patrol over the residential area of a town is the beginning of repressive government.

Imagine every police chief of a town with helicopters on patrol getting together and electing a super chief of police.

The history of this country is one of the little people keeping our government on the right track. I believe that this program of helicopter patrol is not in our best interest.

If you and I were watching a TV show and the movie began with pictures of a helicopter flying over a town at night with a light beaming down into backyards, we would assume we were watching a movie about Russia.

Our city is not a slum and the families here are good and fine people. I ask you to call your councilman or mayor if you feel as I do. They tell me that people are in favor of the noise waking up our children night after night. There are old and sick among us, and those that work odd hours and many long hours.

A helicopter on patrol over our town declares to the world that we are a failure as a free people.

Please call them and let them know how you feel.

The CIA's sex shop

WASHINGTON — In contrast to the haphazard sex on Capitol Hill, the Central Intelligence Agency for years has conducted an elaborate and efficient sex operation.

Few national secrets have been more carefully guarded, but the CIA has provided kings, presidents, potentates and magistrates with female companionship. On a lower level, girls have been made available to defectors and the CIA's own agents.

Sometimes, the CIA's guests bring their own partners. More often, the agency selects girls from its vice files according to specification. The agency also provides "Safe houses" where the liaisons can be consummated in protected privacy.

The CIA's sex shop, according to sources in a position to know, is run by the Office of Security. Although this division has many functions, it acts primarily as the CIA's internal police force.

Through field offices scattered around the country, the Office of Security maintains close ties with state and local police forces. In each field office, a "black book" is kept of the males and females who can be safely recruited to entertain the CIA's visitors.

The black books contain names, phone numbers and titillating details, which are gleaned largely from local vice squads. In Washington, for example, CIA agents used to pay regular visits to the police department's vice squad to photograph documents.

The late Deputy Chief Roy E. Blick, who headed the "sex squad" for years, kept exhaustive records on "perverts" and "miscreants" around the country. He had a close, backroom relationship with the CIA, say our sources.

During the 1964-74 period, the sex operation was supervised by security director Harold Osborn. Some of his subordinates, according to our sources, regaled their friends with stories about the sex episodes they were privy to. As they told it, they were called upon to fill some occasional bizarre requests.

Each black book entry, according to sources with access to the files, contains some fascinating vital statistics — physical description, measurements, health status and sexual specialties.

This inside information is used to produce sexual partners for princes and potentates, defectors and agents. The congressional investigations of the CIA, however, skirted the sex operation. The House Intelligence Committee stumbled onto the information that the CIA once provided an unidentified Middle East monarch with female companons. We have learned that the king in question was Jordan's Hussein.

It's the CIA's own foreign agents, coming in from the cold, who make the most use of the "safe house" and a "case officer" is assigned to watch over him.

The officer is supposed to keep his charge happy and to provide for his needs. If occasionally the need should be sexual, the right contact in the Office of Security is called upon, the black book is whipped out and the desired companion is procured.

The CIA uses sex for an even more seamy purpose. As we reported over a year ago, the agency has used prostitutes to lure foreign diplomats into love traps where their sexual antics were filmed through one-way mirrors. The film was later used to blackmail the foreigners into becoming informants.

In New York, the CIA maintained adjoining efficiency apartments on the sixth floor of a high-rise building in Greenwich Village. On the wall of the blackmail apartment was a large painting of two ships. But the painting was actually a one-way mirror.

On the other side of the wall, CIA agents could watch the action through the see-through painting and film the most intimate moments. The painting was strategically placed so that it gave the CIA observers a full view of the sofa, which opened into a bed. A Japanese screen, implanted with microphones, provided the sound for the CIA's blackmail movies.

In San Francisco, the CIA operated a similar apartment equipped only with bugging devices, not observation mirrors. The New York apartment was used from about 1960 to 1966, the San Francisco apartment from the late 1950s to about 1965.

Footnote: We confronted Harold Osborn with the facts about the sex operation. He denied that any such operation was conducted "during my tenure." A CIA spokesman had no comment. Our calls to the Washington police and Jordanian embassy had not been returned at press time.

DOUBLE STANDARD: Solicitor General Robert Bork tried to block Rep. John Dingell, D.- Mich., from submitting a friend-of-the-court brief in an environmental case before the Supreme Court. In a private letter, Bork rejected Dingell's offer to supply information helpful to conservationists.

Then Bork turned around and gave his consent for Carter Oil Company, Utah Power and Light and Western Fuels Association to furnish pro-industry information to the court.

Paul Harvey

Now you understand

Now Washington, D.C. "outsiders" are beginning to understand. For a while you could not imagine why your congressman had so suddenly turned against the FBI. Now you see why.

During his lifetime of selfless service, J. Edgar Hoover was treated with deference and respect by members of Congress. It was difficult to understand why any of them would dance on his grave, why they would suddenly want to disparage him, destroy his files, curtail FBI surveillance.

Now it's easy to understand. The kiss-and-tell girls on Capitol Hill have now involved so many honorables who obviously aren't that Americans may yet reach what Jenk Jones calls "the stomach-turning point."

If so, there's going to be a lot of ticket-splitting this fall. Americans who heretofore have tended to vote the party line, because it was a geographical tradition or because it was easier, will be inclined in November to pick and sort candidates — ignoring party affiliation.

For generations, Southern Democrats voted a "straight party ticket" while holding their noses because they'd been sold the notion that their only clout in Congress derived from perpetuating committee chairmanships.

Now so many of those chairmanships have been disparaged or disgraced that I expect this longtime leverage will be considered less important than a general housecleaning. A vigorous "vote against" would also tend to damage incumbent Ford's chances for election.

At the height of the recent rash of disclosures by the play-for-pay girls in congressional offices, a speaker at the Southern Baptist meeting in Norfolk was heard to say: "The Lord works in mysterious ways Jimmy Carter to elect."

Indeed, Carter does appear to be a political "Mister Clean" least likely to sin, in public or in private.

There is no other explanation for the unprecedented rise of Jimmy Carter from "incredible" to "inevitable" in six months. "God's man of the hours," his disciples insist.

Republicans, in the upcoming campaign, will have to argue that there has already been a White House-cleaning; that what's needed now is to purge the Congress.

They will remind voters that the hankypanky on the Hill has been mostly the doing of the Democrats — if only because there are more of them.

That the ugliest headlines have involved Democrats: Kennedy and Mills, Young and Howe, Hays and Gravel. So this next November, for the first time, an increasing number of voters will take the trouble to split their tickets.

If the national regurgitation — voting the "ins" out — unseats Ford, the same voter revolt could retire the Democrats who have dominated the Senate and House. Be interesting if our nation should owe a renaissance of political righteousness to the "anything for money, honeys" of Washington, D.C.'s bugged bedrooms.

Just in jest

There is a threat of another gasoline shortage this summer and naturally folks are a bit upset. Will we, they wonder, be forced to put up with a proposed 10 gallons per week rationing program? But if you think that's a worry, consider the weeping and wailing and heart rending screaming that would arise throughout the land if the government also decides to ration vodka.

And don't think that it couldn't happen! Didn't we have to import 85 million gallons of the stuff last year? And furthermore, isn't it always true that anything that will create more jobs for bureaucrats is always given favorable consideration by government experts on national economy?

Sacramento scene

Dymally has his dreams

By EARL G. WATERS

Although the disastrous attempt of Governor Jerry Brown to advance himself onto the national scene has ended in shambles, the dreams of Lt. Governor Mervyn Dymally to become California's first black governor are not entirely ended.

It was those dreams which influenced Dymally to actively support Brown's presidential aspirations. Everyone knows he had no other reason. For the governor had studiously ignored Dymally's existence for 14 months even though he sat in an office just across the hall and was always within a heartbeat away from occupying No. 1. chair.

And even though Dymally, a far more realistic politician than Brown, may have known that Brown had no chance of being the Democratic nominee, the hope that a good showing might get him serious consideration for second place on the ticket moved him to forget the past indignities and throw in with Jerry. If it happened and if the Democrats won the in November Dymally would inherit California's top office. From Dymally's point of view it was a bet not to be passed up.

But Brown's persistence in petulantly carrying on his campaign long after everone else in the country knew the race was over and his harsh attacks upon Carter would seem to make certain the VP spot will go to anyone but Brown.

What is reviving Dymally's dreams however is the possibility that Carter might choose California's senior U.S. Senator Alan Cranston as a running mate. If Cranston's seat were to become vacant it would fall upon the governor to name a successor to fill the term which doesn't end until 1980. It might well be that Brown would appoint himself, leaving the governorship to Dymally.

For Brown has reached a pinnacle he will find hard to top. He won the battle but lost the war. Being a loser he has no place to go. He is faced with the necessity of finishing out his term and hoping to retain enough popularity to win re-election to keep his ambitions for higher office alive.

That will be a tough feat to perform if he doesn't improve his 18 month record of non-accomplishment. Having set himself to abandon ship in mid-term he is without any program for the balance of his term. At the moment the future odds for another term must be judged heavily against him. Further, his failure to reward party regulars who helped him into office along with having turned his back on major supporters leaves him without any semblance of a political machine to insure his future. So it could well be that a U.S. Senate seat gained without facing the voters is looking mighty tempting to him.

Conceding Carter's nomination there remain some "ifs" in Dymally's dreams. Would Carter offer Cranston second place? Would Cranston accept? Will the Democrats win in November? Would Brown leave office for a seat in the Senate? As it stands Carter's nomination is certain and chances for his victory in November are bright. The iffiest part depends upon whether Cranston would be the choice and would accept.

Certainly an opportunity to be vice president would be luring but Cranston has moved up rapidly in the Senate and, with the retirement of Mike Mansfield, stands to rise even more. His high regard for the Senate would weigh heavily. For he sees that role as far more substantive than being VP. It is one which he feels can contribute more significantly to meeting the problems of the nation than any other except the presidency.

It seems likely that both the governor and Dymally will have to practice what Brown has been preaching all along and lower their own expectations.

Reader offers advice on coins

I am writing in the hope I may be of help to someone.

There have been several complaints to Action Line from people who have ordered Bicentennial coins by mail and have not been satisfied.

Several local coin retail houses handle these coins, both gold-plated and natural. I remember one specifically, Old School House Coins in Claremont.

The mints have issued so many Bicentennial coins that their value to collectors, if one uses rarity as an index, should not be very great.

Gold-plating any coin is surprisingly cheap to do. For example, I met a traveler who had Roosevelt dimes gold-plated at a cost of three cents each and left them as tips in foreign countries. — P.H., Pomona.

Gerry Nelson of Old School House Coins said the firm didn't have any gold-plated Bicentennial coins at the time we inquired but had them in the past and planned to get more.

Your three-cent figure was around $4 off. Nelson said he could offer a set of three gold-plated Bicentennial coins, a quarter, half dollar and dollar, without a display case, at a "ball park" figure of $6.50.

Gold-plating is expensive, he told us, even though a minute amount of gold is used. Knowledge of coins and the process of cleaning them plus craftsmanship are involved, so gold-platers are highly paid people.

Nelson pointed out the difference between rare coins, no longer in circulation, and commemorative coins now in circulation, like the Bicentennial coins.

Human nature being what it is, Bicentennial coins are being hoarded throughout the world in the hope that they may become rare and more valuable.

He named supply and demand, date and condition as a general factor governing the cost of coins to collectors.

I have a problem with Social Security and I am hoping you can get it straightened out.

Social Security claims there was an overpayment on my account for 1974.

On March 31 I paid the amount said to have been overpaid, $941.60, but my monthly checks for May and June did not arrive. I was notified they were being withheld until the amount of the overpayment was made up.

I have been to the Pomona office three times and have written to the Kansas City payment office but have not heard from either of them. — H.K., Montclair.

A representative of the local Social Security office said the staff had been trying to clear up your problem and you might get word that it had succeeded any day.

Shortly after our talk with the SS representative we received a note from you indicating you had received the hoped-for news and thanking us for our time.

I read the information about weight reduction groups published in answer to a letter from K.G. of Pomona.

Can you give me some specific data about a TOPS (Take Off Pounds Sensibly) group near my home? — Mrs. H.S., La Verne.

We couldn't find a TOPS group in La Verne but there are two nearby in Pomona.

Both meet at the First Christian Church in the corner of the building close to Park Avenue and Artesia Street. One is an evening group Wednesday at 6:30, the other a morning group Friday at 9.

Ann Landers

Concerned, but not too bright

Dear Ann Landers: My father has terminal cancer. We've known about it for several weeks. I can accept this tragic turn of fate, but I CANNOT accept the long, drawn-out, insensitive expressions of "sympathy" from freinds who phone day after day to talk about it. I also find it hard to be civilized to acquaintances I meet on the street who tell me how awful they feel.

It usually goes like this: "I just heard about your father. You have no idea how sick I am over it. Isn't it awful? I am heartbroken about it. He was such a wonderful person. It must be very difficult for you to watch him go a day at a time . . ."

The conversations last anywhere from 10 minutes to half an hour. After four or five "sympathy" chats I feel more depressed than ever.

Another thing: Why in the world do people aks, "Was the tumor malignant?" My father does not want the truth known and we have been abiding by his wishes. What is your opinion of such a question? Also what should I do about the demoralizing calls? — Saddened Not Gladdened

Dear Saddened: In response to the question, "Was the tumor malignant?" It's nobody's business. Only a clod would ask. Simply say, "We hope for the best."

About the phone calls. No one will talk to a dead line for 30 minutes, or even 10. Ring off promptly with the legitimate excuse that you have many things to do and must run — but "thanks for your concern."

Do bear in mind, dear, that most of these people mean well. They just aren't very bright.

Dear Ann Landers: With all the letters you've printed from husbands who complain about unresponsive wives, I decided to describe a recent incident which beats anything I've read so far. It doesn't require an answer — so please don't rack your brain trying to come up with one.

Last week I climbed into bed with my wife after bowling a few more frames than I had planned on. I got home about midnight, kissed the little woman on the forehead (lightly) and accidentally brushed her leg with my hand. She turned over and mumbled, "All right, go ahead — but don't wake me up."

How's that for a commentary on what some wives consider "doing their duty?" I had a good laugh over it — but maybe I should have cried. NO, I did not risk awakening the sleeping beauty. Her terms were not very enticing. — That's The Way It Is At Our House

Dear Friend: Your and lots of others.

Dear Ann Landers: This question may sound dumb, but I need an answer and I don't know who else to ask. Here goes:

I am 11 years old and have not started my period yet. Could I get pregnant? I say yes. A friend of mine says no. The reason I believe I could is because I read in the paper about two years ago that a nine-year-old girl in India had a baby. Thanks for clearing up this matter. Am I — Right Or Wrong?

Dear Wrong: Menstruation begins much earlier in some parts of the world than others. (It also varies greatly with individuals.) That Indian girl who gave birth could not have had a child, if she hadn't started to menstruate.

Do you feel awkward, self-conscious — lonely? Welcome to the club. There's help for you in Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity." Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Humming along with the birds

One of the fringe benefits of summer icumen in is that one moves out to the patio for the cocktail hour and the after-dinner coffee. It is a second living room.

Ours, I discovered, when I dragged the patio furniture up from the cellar, has a new occupant, or occupants, a pair of spritely, buzzing hummingbirds who have moved in without so much as a by-your-leave. Chosing an incredibly fragile tendril behind a sheaf of ivy, the two feathered transients constructed a tiny nest of mud and string well out of reach of the resident cats. The nest is no larger than a golf ball, and so artfully concealed that we wouldn't have seen it at all except for the comings and goings of our little guests.

Hummingbirds are something else, the smallest bird in Mother Nature's aviary. A newborn babe is the size of a bumble bee. Newly hatched hummingbirds are so small that four of them fit into a teaspoon. The eggs,paid two at a time, are the size of navy beans.

So these two tiny beans have been deposited in the little nest on our patio, and now I am in a nervous sweat about the babies' first flight. Do they know how to fly right off the bat? Will they crash to the ground and burst into flame? Will they flop and flutter down, easy prey for predatory felines? I can't spend 24 hours a day out there, playing bodyguard and nursemaid to a couple of thumb-sized fledglings, can I?

Mommy comes buzzing in, darting quick as an eye-lash, hovers challengingly over a sleeping dog, then zooms to her nest where the two little beaks lift importuning.

This is the calliope hummingbird, metallic green in color, the only hummingbird on the West Coast. There are, my research reveals, 400 kinds of hummingbirds, but only 19 types live in the United States. Concerned about "the babies," I might consider the fact that the adult weighs about the same as a penny. Not exactly in the class of California vultures.

The hummingbird can fly forward and backward, up and down. It can hang suspended in the air with its tiny wings flashing 80 times a second. That's awfully fast. Mommy comes whisking into the patio with a goody for the babies, then stops threateningly just in front of me as I am raising my martini to my lips. Delicate, fragile, charismatic, there is nonetheless something alarming about the tiny creature as she eyes my olive and measures me as a possible threat to her miscoscopic family.finally she concludes I am harmless, and zips to the nest with the groceries. (Hummingbirds do not hum, they buzz. They do not chirp, they go "chtttt-chttt".)

So I am spending my evenings on the patio with a fishing net in my hand, waiting for the emergence of our feathered friends. I hope the babies get off safely. As a member of the Man Will Never Fly Society, I hold to the motto, "Birds fly, men drink."

I just hope one of the babies doesn't drop into my drink. He wouldn't be as large as the olive.

Varied diet for vegetarian

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a vegetarian. I've read that even the best of vegetarian diets lack vitamin B-12, but other books say that there is nothing lacking. Would you set the record straight and let us vegetarians know if we're getting all the vitamins and nutrients we need?

DEAR READER — Vitamin B-12 is found in animal products. Strict vegetarians who use no animal protein at all in their diet are consuming a vitamin B-12 deficient diet. Microorganisms do live in the nodules of legumes that synthesize coenzyme B-12 and that delays the manifestations of B-12 deficiency. The strict vegetarians also get plenty of folic acid from leafy vegetables. The folic acid may help to prevent part of the problems of B-12 deficiency but not some of the vital ones.

Vegetarians who use milk, cottage cheese and dry milk powder will get some B-12 from these products. Also, there is an adequate amount of B-12 in egg yolks. But if these items are not in the diet then you should seriously consider adding some B-12 to your daily nutrient intake. I'd recommend that such individuals just take an ordinary daily all-purpose vitamin pill and that will meet the daily needs for B-12.

You can get sufficient amounts of protein in a vegetarian diet that includes plenty of beans, particularly soybeans, plus some wheat in the diet. However, for growing children who need greater amounts of some of the amino acids I think it is wise to also include milk and milk products in the diet.

To give you more information on daily dietary needs I'm sending you The Health Letter number 4-6, Balanced Diet, Recommended Daily Dietary Allowances (RDA). Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Could there be any danger of hemorrhage from taking 10 milligrams of Coumadin as a blood thinner over a period of time?

DEAR READER— It is certainly a warning that you should see a doctor at once and have your blood tested. A dose of 10 milligrams a day is the upper range that is usually given and is likely to be too much over a period of time.

The dose does not have to be regulated for each patient according to how his blood-clotting factors respond. You can only tell this with blood tests. I do not think anyone should be taking Coumadin unless they have fairly regular tests done to be sure the dose is properly regulated.

Individuals taking Coumadin and other medicines to prevent clotting of the blood should be aware that some common medicines can increase their tendency to bleeding. Aspirin is a good example. Aspirin alone can increase the bleeding tendency and has been known to cause hemorrhages in people taking large amounts.

Tylenol will not cuase bleeding when taken alone, but it will increase the action of Coumadin and in this way increase the tendency to hemorrhage. Since people can get aspirin and Tylenol without a prescription the doctor may not know they are taking these medicines and that plays hob with trying to regulate the blood-clotting mechanism.

Opening lead — 4 ♥

I used to write my father in Korea to ask him bridge questions. I remember one bit of advice he stressed. It was to take time as declarer to plan the whole play of the hand before playing the first trick.

He pointed out that a little study then is likely to save a lot of futile struggle later.

Here is a hand that I really went wrong with because I played too fast at trick one. West opened the four of hearts. I called for dummy's six (second-hand low) without any thought at all. East put up his queen and returned the suit to knock out dummy's ace. Later West took the ace of clubs and three more heart tricks to defeat my game.

Today, I know that this was one time for second-hand high. The ace play would insure my contract unless West had led from five to the king-queen-jack. A very unusual lead since it is automatic to lead an honor from that holding.

I might not have worked that out back then, but at least it would have been well worth my while to stop and think.

Ask the Jacobys

Several readers have asked the significance of a three-spade response to partner's opening bid of one in any other suit.

In expert circles it shows either a bad hand that would take six or maybe seven tricks with spades as trump or is some sort of high-level artificial bid depending on partnership understanding. With the Jacobys it is the first meaning.

In other games it usually means that partner has a very big hand and is so excited that he has jumped one trick higher than necessary.

Salesladies on the road

Studies indicate that fewer than two out of 10 manufacturing companies will hire women to sell for them on the road. Too bad. The women who sell are just like the men who sell. There are relatively few strong ones, but those who can cut it, do exceedingly well. Those sales managers, who are always looking for another hotshot, reduce their odds considerably, if they refuse to try out the girls. Post this notice, please.

A. Surfers are said to be more numerous. With maybe 2.2 million of them. As opposed to 2 million scuba divers.

KEEP TALKING

If you want to keep a conversationalist talking to you, you should at 15-second intervals nod your head approvingly, or say "I see," or mumble "hummm." So reports a team of psychologists who made a lengthy study of the matter. Unfortunately, they did not advise a technique to stop said conversationalist. I once asked a high-powered executive, who possessed an uncanny knack of interrupting smoothly to get the floor anytime he so desired, how he did it. He said, "I simply smile and say yes, yes, yes, and start talking."

SWIMMERS NEEDED — Posing beside an empty El Roble swimming pool in Claremont are instructor-guard Chris Martin, city Recreation superintendent Ron Hagan and Maia Kinsinger, new pool manager. The sign they are holding will be installed in front of El Roble pool to let residents know the pool is not restricted to swimming lessons. Families are encouraged to use the pool's facilities during specified hours during the summer.

No pool fees for three days: now that's really free style!

The city of Claremont will kick off its 1976 summer swim program with free swim days at the El Roble Pool Thursday, Friday and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The city Parks and Recreation Department will sponsor morning and afternoon swim lessons at the pool throughout the summer, according to Maia Kinsinger, pool manager.

Lessons at all ability levels, including adult instruction, are $5.50 for each two-week session.

The first session will begin Monday. Five sessions are scheduled during the summer.

Public swim hours beginning Monday will be from 1 to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, and 1 to 5 p.m. Saturday. The pool will be closed Sunday.

Admission will be 25 cents for those 11 years and younger; 50 cents for those 12 and older.

Family passes are available and will admit all members of a family during any public swim hours.

Only family passes are allowed Monday through Friday from 6 to 7 p.m.

Family passes are available at $20 for the entire summer.

Another program available for adults is "Swim for Your Health." That class is especially intended for adults who enjoy swimming for exercise and health.

The program, at a cost of $10 for the entire summer, will begin Monday and continue throughout the summer Monday through Friday from 9 to 10 a.m.

Registration for all programs will be accepted during free swim days. Registration also will be taken during the week before the beginning of a session.

An additional 25 per cent nonresident's fee is charged where applicable.

Miss Kinsinger, new pool manager this year, is a student at Cal State Northridge. She has worked for the past three years as instructor-guard for the La Verne Parks and Recreation Department.

Further information on the swim program may be obtained by phoning 624-4531.

The event is the first of 14 programs scheduled for the summer.

AIRPORT SOARS — Ontario International Airport handled 114,728 passengers and 574,218 pounds of air cargo during May, marking a continuing upward trend in airport activity.

These figures represented a 13.9 per cent gain in passengers and an 18.9 per cent hike in air cargo above the previous month. John Dickinson, airport manager, said these increases plus the addition of a new airline service are indicators the airport will set new summer peak records this year.

Airport officials counted 14,004 flight operations during May, a 10.9 per cent increase over 12,632 recorded during May 1975.

NEW ASSIGNMENT — San Bernardino County Supervisor Robert Townsend has been appointed to represent the county on a Southern California Association of Governments committee formed to study waste water management.

The study area will involve San Bernardino, Riverside, and Orange counties and a part of Los Angeles County.

The committee will review the waste water treatment management, water quality, solid waste and the administration of these functions.

Mrs. Arterburn started with the city in 1965 as deputy city clerk and deputy city treasurer and was appointed city clerk in 1973. She was elected to a four-year term in 1976.

She has completed the three-year educational program for professional clerks at UC Santa Cruz. This involved 100 student-instructor contact hours of courses in public administration, social and interpersonal concerns and functionally related subjects.

OFFICE ON AGING — San Bernardino County supervisors have approved five positions for a new office on aging being formed in the county's human resources agency.

Positions are for a director, planner, community coordinator, secretary and clerk.

The program will receive $287,215 in state funds and $15,000 in county funds, said Supervisor Robert Townsend of Chino.

The San Bernardino County Council of Human Services had administered the program last year but did not apply for funds until this year, he added.

HIRE YOUTHS — Ontario Mayor Paul Treadway has proclaimed June as "Hire a Youth Month" in that city.

In his proclamation, he noted that summer employment is of utmost concern to many youths and the experiences gained from work is an invaluable opportunity to learn responsibility and a sense of accomplishment.

Treadway urged residents, organizations and businesses to consider hiring youths during the summer.

Claremont principal takes counseling job

The man who has been principal at San Antonio Continuation High at Claremont for the school's first 10 years is getting ready to change desks and jobs.

Norm Taylor, who was assigned to the job when the Claremont Unified School District started the school in two rooms on the Claremont High campus in September 1965, has been assigned at his request as counselor at Claremont High.

"Psychologists say you ought to move every seven years, and I've been here 10," Taylor commented. "It's like rotating the crops."

"I've exerted as much influence as I can at that school, and I've received similar influence."

The first graduating class had four members in 1966.

Graduation requirements are the same at San Antonio as at Claremont High, except that physical education is not required at the continuation school.

Taylor said the most striking difference between the schools is the size. San Antonio is limited by size of its campus to 125. Claremont High has 2,000.

At San Antonio High the principal gets to know the students on a first-name basis.

"They thrive in a personal setting, compared to the impersonal at Claremont High," Taylor said.

At San Antonio there is one teacher to every 15 students.

Air Force needs doctors, dentists

The U.S. Air Force is seeking 500 doctors during the next year, according to Chief M-Sgt. Selectee Headley Chambers in San Bernardino.

Needed are general duty physicians, family physicians, pediatricians, radiologists, psychiatrists, and those in aerospace medicine.

Chambers said that in the dental service, the Air Force needs general dentists, periodontists, prosthodontists and endodontists.

Eligibility requirements for the Air Force medical corps are that a man or woman be less than 57 and in good physical health, and be a graduate of a U.S. medical or osteopathy school, approved by the Air Force surgeon general, or a graduate of a foreign medical school.

The applicant must have completed at least one year of approved post-graduate medical education in the United States.

The applicant should hold a current license to practice in a state or territory of the United States, but that is not required for physicians engaged in full-time training since medical school, such as residents or interns.

For those who are prior-service duty officers, the tour normally is for four years, Chambers said.

He said that assignments for entering medical officers are negotiated prior to appointment, but after a completion application.

Chambers said that the Air Force offers several programs to dental students.

Upon entering active duty as a dentist, students participating in any of the programs receive a captain's commission in the Dental Corps as well as service credit for four years spent in dental school, Chambers said.

Any questions concerning the Air Force medical programs may be directed to Chambers at 568 N. Mt. View Ave., San Bernardino, 92401.

Rowland appoints principal

Bob Wertz, advanced learner program resource teacher for the Rowland Unified School District, has been named principal of Rowland Elementary School.

Wertz fills the position left vacant by Ed Oulton, who is taking over as principal of Jellick Elementary School. Mal Lifton, Jellick's principal, retired at the end of the school year.

A graduate of Whittier College, Wertz began his teaching career in the Rowland School District at Blanford Elementary School in 1968. He was absent from the district for two years when he completed a tour of duty in Vietnam. Wertz also holds a master's degree from Whittier.

Oulton, former principal of Yorbita Elementary School before going to Rowland Elementary School, has been with the district for 12 years. He received his bachelor of science degree from New York State University and his master's degree from Cal State Fullerton. Active in several community organizations, Oulton is a member of the Diamond Bar Jaycees and has coached Little League for two years.

The appointments become effective on July 1.

have rebelled against the big organizational thing" he said. "A large social group is intimidating. They're able, but often unwilling.

Some graduates go on to college, but the school can't carry a curriculum that is college-oriented.

Taylor said he has been blessed with "superb teachers in the area of motivation. They have the needed skill to communicate, and they must keep at it continually."

He said a principal's job at San Antonio is primarily counselling the students, not so much administration.

"One must walk on the line between parents and students," he commented. "Some parents care, some don't."

Taylor has been with the Claremont School District 22 years, and has had a variety of jobs, including welfare and attendance supervisor, director of student activities, English, math and algebra teacher.

In his spare time he likes to fly, ski, sail or backpack. He owns part interest in a Cessna Skyline, a four-seater, which he flies out of Cable Airport.

At Cable he also uses his flight instructor's license.

Taylor has taken San Antonio students on flights, just for the fun of it, or on field trips.

Fire restrictions imposed for forest

Smoking is prohibited and permits are required for all camp fires in the Angeles National Forest.

Forest Supervisor William T. Dresser said these restrictions are issued annually as a fire prevention and public safety measure.

"With the delayed winter season and limited rainfall this year, the moisture content in the brush is already far below normal, increasing the potential fire hazard," said Dresser.

"Through public cooperation and adherence to these fire prevention measures, it is hoped that the disastrous fires of last year will not re-occur."

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "WHAT CAUSES VOLCANOES?"

A. VOLCANOES ARE FORMED WHEN EXPLOSIVE PRESSURES WITHIN THE EARTH FORCE HOT, MELTED ROCK OUT THROUGH CRACKS IN THE EARTH'S SURFACE.

ANNE LAGESSE
AUSTIN, TX

Dick Rogers
6/23

A volcano is a hole, or vent, in the earth's crust through which lava and gases are thrown out in eruptions.

The earth's seemingly rigid crust actually consists of several giant pieces, called plates, which make up the continents and ocean floors.

Underneath the rocky plates, in the earth's mantle, is a layer of hot, melted rock. As they slowly slide around on top of the hot, syrupy mantle, the plates grind and crush together.

Friction from the grinding plates causes heat, which adds to the heat of the molten rock below.

The heat builds up until pressure forces gases and fiery lava out through cracks in the earth's surface. As the hot materials escape from the earth, they may build up a cone-shaped mountain around the hole.

Many volcanoes do not throw lava high into the air, but push it out in a quiet lava flow.

As the lava cools and hardens, it turns into the rocky stuff we see in lava beds.

A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

Assembly passes Campbell proposal on adoption info

Proposed legislation that would help adult adoptees and their natural parents to locate each other has been passed by the state Assembly.

Assemblyman William Campbell, R-64th Dist., said his measure provides the mechanism for such meetings provided there is mutual consent.

Under present law, all records regarding adopted children are sealed and can only be released by order of the Superior Court, he said. "These court orders are extremely rare so as not to invade the privacy of the parties involved."

Campbell said his measure would change that system. It would, however, allow for an additional mechanism where the person adopted and the natural parents may request to meet each other.

"Without a request by both parties, the Department of Health would be authorized to take no action. If, however, a request is initiated by both the parent and the child, the department will then contact both parties to verify that, in fact, a meeting is desired.

"Should either party change their mind at this point, the department would cease all action on the request. If a meeting is mutually desired, the department will make arrangements for such a meeting to take place," he added.

"No information as to the identity of either party or any other information contained in the sealed records will be made available by this bill.

"The purpose of this bill is to provide adopted adults and their natural parents their inherent right to learn about their own life. By providing the safe deposit box type mechanism (two keys are required to work the lock) we have insured that we would not infringe upon the rights or privacy of any of the parties concerned.

"Additionally, the meeting and the requests are kept strictly confidential," said Campbell.

The legislator, whose district includes Walnut, Diamond Bar and Hacienda Heights, said he hoped the state Senate would join the Assembly in passing the bill so it can be enacted into law.

RASPBERRY TRIFLES

Deboning stretches meat

The U. S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has proposed to specifically define and standardize various classes of meat — excluding poultry — used in processed meat products.

The proposal to amend the Federal Meat Inspection Regulations would enable processors to utilize new, equipment and technologies to recover additional meat from carcasses which are now lost to the human food chain, according to Dr. Francis J. Mulhern, Administrator of USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS).

"The proposal would not affect the labeling of steaks, roasts, chops, and other traditional fresh meat cuts available to consumers at retail meat counters," Dr. Mulhern said.

A series of consumer meetings — the first of which was held prior to issuance of the proposal — will be conducted in various cities around the country in order to give consumers an opportunity to learn in detail about the proposal and to give their comments to USDA officials.

APHIS meat inspection officials said the amendment was proposed in recognition of the increasing concern over the potential world wide food shortage and resulting pressures on the food industry to find additional sources of protein, and utilize existing sources more efficiently.

Concurrent with official publication of the proposal to redefine and standardize the various classes of meat, APHIS officials also published interim rules to permit production of mechanically deboned and low temperature rendered meats.

According to Dr. Mulhern, production of these products under such interim rules will enable USDA to gather additional data to aid in deciding upon ultimate limits for protein, fat and bone quantity, and protein quality, that would be appropriate and acceptable in various formulated products. Processors choosing to produce products under these interim rules will be required to obtain USDA approval for their equipment, processing procedures, product labels and a quality control system to ensure compliance with the interim standards. The interim rules will remain in effect pending a final decision on the general revision of the regulations to redefine meat, unless rescinded earlier.

Nearly one billion additional pounds of meat could be added to the nation's food supply through the mechanical deboning process. APHIS said recent technological improvements in this type of processing equipment have made it possible to recover up to 13 to 16 additional pounds of meat per beef carcass and up to 3 to 4 pounds per pork carcass.

Under traditional hand deboning methods, loss of meat typically occurs when packing house employees attempt to cut the meat away from neck bones, ribs, and back bones. Mechanical deboning machines can strip such bones clean of all meat that otherwise would not be gotten by hand deboning.

In the mechanical deboning process, a small amount of very finely ground bone is retained in the meat. These particles would be so fine that they would not be detectable by sight, taste, or feel to people eating meat products containing mechanically deboned meat.

The proposal would help to correct inconsistencies in the existing definitions of meat contained in the present regulations, which contribute to the loss of valuable food products.

Persons wishing to comment on the proposal should file their written comments in duplicate with the Hearing Clerk, Room 112-A, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250, before Aug. 25, 1976. To present oral comments, persons should contact the Product Labels, Packaging, and Standards, Staff, Scientific and Technical Servides, Meat and Poultry Inspection Program, APHIS-USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250. Copies of the proposal, which will be published in the April 27 Federal Register, may be obtained from APHIS, Room 1166-South Building, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250. All comments will be available for inspection.

A fitting finale for any occasion

Of the mature homemakers interviewed in focus group sessions in Chicago recently, most eat dessert regularly. And, poundcake appears to be popular with this 45-65 year old set. One woman interviewed said, "I buy frozen poundcake whenever I want dessert, which is just about all the time."

The Individual Raspberry Trifles are layers of poundcake cubes laced with sherry, bright raspberry sauce and whipped topping. It can be made simply, anytime of the year, with the aid of items from the freezer like frozen raspberries, whipped topping and poundcake. The frozen raspberries have been fully ripened and packaged at the peak of perfection throughout the year. For an attractive presentation, serve in a crystal bowl or in individual parfait glasses.

A fitting finale for any occasion, the Individual Raspberry Trifles can also be served at card games, family gatherings, club meetings or whatever form of entertainment fits your style.

Try the Individual Raspberry Trifles this evening with a dinner that is easy to fix right from the freezer. Serve frozen salisbury steaks with 2 tablespoons of Burgundy added to the gravy prior to cooking. Pop a frozen spinach souffle in the oven, too. Heat a frozen rice pilaf, toss together a green salad and the meal is ready in minutes.

INDIVIDUAL RASPBERRY TRIFLES

- 1 (10 ounce) package frozen raspberries, thawed
- 2 teaspoons cornstarch
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- ½ an 11½ ounce frozen pound cake, thawed
- ¼ cup sherry
- 1 (4½ ounce) container frozen non-dairy whipped topping, thawed

Stir undrained raspberries together with cornstarch in a small saucepan. Cook over moderate heat, stirring until mixture thickens and clears. Remove from heat. Stir in lemon juice and cool.

Cut pound cake into small cubes. Sprinkle with sherry. Let stand several minutes.

In 5-ounce dessert dishes, alternate layers of whipped topping, cake cubes, and raspberry mixture ending with a swirl of whipped topping. Chill. Makes 4 servings.

Sandwich idea for a picnic

Americans love picnics. A popular pastime in the summer and early fall is toting a basket picnic supper to an outdoor concert. Whether it's rock, jazz or Beethoven's Fifth, people of all ages can be found in the local parks listening to music and eating sandwich.

Another favorite is the tailgate picnic — so called because a station wagon's tailgate when lowered makes an ideal picnic table. This modern version of chuck wagon meal is a great way to picnic before a baseball or football game.

The best part of any picnic is the food. Make sure you have plenty of it; you'll work up an appetite just being outdoors. Select foods that suit the weather, the group and the picnic site. In general picnic foods should be quick to make, simple to carry and easy to eat. Finger foods (crackers, peanuts, raw vegetables, pickles), cold cooked meats, hearty salads (potato, macaroni, rice, coleslaw), hot and cold thermos drinks and uncut fruit travel well.

Sandwiches are always popular for picnics. Make them ahead and wrap individually or carry different fillings in plastic containers along with a variety of bread and rolls. Suggested here is Curried Shrimp Salad for sandwichs. The surprise ingredients in this crunchy sandwich spread is cocktail peanuts which give flavor and texture as well as nourishment. Peanut supply large amounts of protein, niacin, riboflavin and other important food elements.

CURRIED SHRIMP SALAD

Makes 6 sandwiches

- 2 cups chopped cooked shrimp
- 1 cup finely chopped celery
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¾ teaspoon curry powder
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 2 tablespoon chopped parsley
- ½ cup mayonnaise
- ½ cup chopped cocktail peanuts
- 6 hard rolls

Combine shrimp and celery in a large bowl. Mix together onion, salt, curry, lemon juice, parsley and mayonnaise. Blend into shrimp mixture. Chill.

Add peanuts. Cut ½-inch slice from top of each roll, then scoop out soft center. Fill below of each roll with shrimp mixture.

Not too long

It's thrifty to save hearts and gizzards from chickens and freeze them, but don't store them more than 3 months. When enough have accumulated, use them to make broth.

Fish, vegetables in 2 easy dishes

Whet your family's seafood appetite with two new, low-cost entrees that combine the best of fish and vegetables in one easy dish.

Families looking for low-calorie meals will find this crustless quiche ideal for quick dinners. It's a healthful blend of frozen chopped spinach and any frozen white fish, be it haddock, cod, sole, turbot or perch. This flexible recipe lets you take advantage of the frozen fish specials at your local supermarket.

FISH AND SPINACH QUICHE

1 (one-pound) package frozen white fish fillets
2 eggs, lightly beaten
1 (10-ounce) package frozen chopped spinach, defrosted
2 tablespoons grated parmesan cheese
1 tablespoon chives or chopped green onion
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
salt, pepper, nutmeg to taste

In a saucepan simmer frozen fish in saltwater for 10 minutes, or until fish flakes easily with fork. Flake fish into nine-inch pie dish. Separately combine eggs, spinach and all seasonings. Pour over flaked fish, then dot with butter or margarine. Bake for 20 minutes in preheated 400-degree oven. Serve hot, or cut into wedges and serve cold with green goddess dressing. Yields four to six servings.

For a more elegant main dish, here's another combination of fish and vegetables, this time featuring frozen sole and zucchini. The lowcost ingredients in this recipe bake up into a rich, bubbling casserole that has great eye appeal and color.

SOLE ZUCCHINI CASSEROLE

1 (one-pound)package frozen sole, thawed
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ teaspoon salt
1 (10-ounce)package frozen zucchini slices, thawed
½ cup frozen chopped green pepper
¼ cup frozen chopped onion
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 (10¾-ounce) can cream of mushroom soup
1 (2¼-ounce) can sliced ripe olives, drained
2 tablespoons white wine
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1 tablespoon chopped pimiento
½ teaspoon dill weed

Sprinkle fish with lemon juice and salt. Roll up each fillet, then cut in halves. Place rolls in shallow 1½-quart baking dish.

Saute zucchini, green pepper and onion lightly in butter or margarine, cooking until dry. Stir in undiluted soup, olives, wine, parsley, pimiento and dill weed. Heat together just to boiling, then pour over fish rolls.

Bake in 350-degree oven for 15 to 20 minutes, or until fish flakes easily. Makes 4 servings.

Have a feast with freezer jams

The peach was reportedly born in China long before history was written. During the eighth century the poets of the land celebrated its' season with an annual "Feast of Peaches" which was actually a banquet resplendent with exotic delicacies. The glory of the meal, however, was peaches.

Today everyone celebrates peach season, and many peach lovers extend the season by freezing peaches or turning them into fresh-tasting, easy-to-make freezer jams.

The three recipes that follow all boast the special flavor of fresh ripe fruit that is the wonder of freezer jams. The fruit isn't cooked, but is merely crushed and mixed with a 2 ounce package of powdered jam and jelly pectin, light corn syrup and sugar. The 2 ounce size jam and jelly pectin is essential to this technique, and corn syrup is added to prevent crystallization while contributing to the good jam consistency. When directions are carefully followed, the freezer jam is amazingly easy to make. It needs no processing, no boiling, no special canning jars, nor paraffin seal. It is as inviting for the first-time jam-maker as for the old hand. Any family, anywhere, can celebrate "The Feast of Peaches" this year, all year.

Orange Peach Freezer Jam

3 pounds (about) fully ripe peaches
¼ cup of lemon juice
2 medium oranges
1 package (2 oz) powdered jam and jelly pectin
1 cup light corn syrup
4½ cups sugar

Rinse, peel, pit and fully crush peaches. Measure 2 cups. In large bowl or saucepan, stir together peaches and lemon juice. Rinse oranges and grate enough orange rind to measure 1 teaspoon. Reserve. Peel, section and finely chop oranges. Measure 1¼ cups. In large bowl or saucepan, stir together fruits and grated orange rind. Slowly sift in jam and jelly pectin, stirring vigorously. Set aside 30 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add corn syrup, stirring well. Gradually stir in sugar. To hasten sugar dissolving, jam mixture may be heated very slightly, but do not heat to more than 100 degrees (lukewarm). Ladle into washed and scalded freezer containers leaving ½-inch headspace. Cover at once with tight lids (no paraffin needed). Label all containers. Store in freezer and transfer to refrigerator as needed. Makes 7 (½-pint) containers.

Spiced Peach Freezer Jam

2½ pounds fully ripe peaches
¼ cup lemon juice
½ teaspoon ground ginger
½ teaspoon ground nutmeg
1 package (2 oz.) powdered jam and jelly pectin
1 cup light corn syrup
4½ cups sugar

Rinse, peel, pit and fully crush peaches. Measure 3¼ cups. In large bowl or saucepan, stir together peaches and lemon juice. Add ginger and nutmeg; mix well. Slowly sift in jam and jelly pectin, stirring vigorously. Set aside 30 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add corn syrup, stirring well. Gradually stir in sugar. To hasten sugar dissolving, jam mixture may be heated very slightly, but do not heat to more than 100 degrees (lukewarm). Ladle into washed and scalded ½ to 1-pint freezer containers leaving ½-inch headspace. Cover at once with tight lids (no paraffin needed). Label all containers. Store in freezer and transfer to refrigerator as needed. Makes 7 (½-pint) containers.

Peach Pineapple Freezer Jam

1½ pounds fully ripe peaches
1 cup undrained crushed canned pineapple, packed in its own juice
¼ cup lemon juice
1 package (2 oz) powdered jam and jelly pectin
1 cup light corn syrup
4½ cups sugar

Rinse, peel, pit and fully crush peaches. Measure 2¼ cups. In large bowl or saucepan, stir together fruits and lemon juice. Slowly sift in jam and jelly pectin, stirring vigorously. Set aside 30 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add corn syrup, stirring well. Gradually stir in sugar. To hasten sugar disolving, jam mixture may be heated very slightly, but do not heat to more than 100 degrees (lukewarm). Ladle into washed and scalded ½ to 1-pint freezer containers leaving ½-inch headspace. Cover at once with tight lids (no paraffin needed). Label all containers. Store in freezer and transfer to refrigerator as needed. Makes about 8 (½-pint) containers.

Canned beans make delicious casseroles

Did you know that the covered dish or pot luck supper where each family brings a favorite dish to share at the church, school or civic meeting goes back to the earliest days of America?

It's an interesting story. The Puritans were very pious people and they believed it was a sin to do any work after sundown Saturday and all day Sunday. This was the Lord's time in their lives. This concern extended even to the preparation of food but the Puritans got around this in a clever way. On Fridays they soaked dried beans. On Saturdays they added brown sugar and mustard, pork and water, and took the beans in their big crocks to the baker who used his brick ovens to bake the beans all day. Thus, they had a delicious Saturday night supper, and good provisions for the Sunday meal without doing any work on the Sabbath. Before the people went in for the long sermon, they set their bean pots to warm by the open hearth where they would meet to eat at "nooning time."

Beans are still being baked the brick oven way in New England today. Church suppers are still being given, too, and the favorite contri-bution to a pot luck affair is a piping hot crock of beans made the convenient way with perhaps a touch or two of your own such as a dash of onion or molasses.

If you want to make a showpiece baked bean casserole, try Lattice Top Bean and Beef Casserole. It looks so attractive, everyone will gravitate toward it at the covered dish supper, and the dish will soon be empty, a sign of popularity well known to experienced pot-luckers. Canned baked beans can also serve as a hearty and well-loved side dish. Sweet and Sour Beans are a delightful variation using canned brick oven baked beans. Your family will enjoy this — as well as your fellow guests at the pot luck supper.

Lattice Top Bean and Beef Casserole

1/3 cup chopped onion
1/3 cup chopped green pepper
1 tablespoon oil
¾ pound ground beef
¼ cup catsup
1 28-ounce can brick oven baked beans
1 cup buttermilk baking mix
5 tablespoons corn meal
6 tablespoons milk

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. In a large frying pan, saute onion and green pepper in oil for 3 minutes. Add ground beef and cook until meat is browned. Mix in cat-sup and beans. Place in 1½-quart casserole. Bake for 15 minutes. Meanwhile, in a small bowl, combine baking mix and corn meal. Add milk all at once; stir with fork into a soft dough. Beat vigorously 20 strokes, until dough is fairly free from the sides of the bowl. Turn dough onto cloth covered board, lightly dusted with flour. Knead gently 8 to 10 times. Roll dough out to ¼-inch thickness. Cut into ½-inch strips. Remove casserole from oven; arrange strips on mixture to make a lattice top. Return to oven and bake 10 to 15 minutes longer until top is golden.

Makes: 6-8 servings.

Sweet and Sour Beans

1 28-ounce can brick oven baked beans
2 tablespoons cider vinegar
¼ cup packed brown sugar
1/3 cup diced green pepper
½ teaspoon soy sauce
1 8-ounce can pineapple chunks, drained

In a 2-quart saucepan, combine all ingredients and cook over medium heat for 10-15 minutes or until piping hot.

Makes: 6 servings.

The origin of oranges

Tracing the historical origin of oranges is much like following the cultural mainstreams of mankind, for this popular fruit has evidently been around in one form or another since the Garden of Eden or its historical equivalent.

Our navel oranges are the direct descendants of two navel trees from the Brazilian state of Bahia that were imported by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (with the aid of a missionary) in 1870 and then transported overland from Washington, D.C. to Riverside, Calif., in 1873 where they were used as the source of extensive plantings.

Long before Leland Stanford drove the golden spike to complete the transcontinental railroad and, incidentally, started oranges rolling eastward, Fra Junipero Serra had, quite literally, planted the seed in the orange orchards that were a fundamental part of each of the missions strung along the California coast more than 200 years ago.

Father Serra's valencia orange seeds were the product of rootstock developed in Central America, Mexico and Florida from orange seeds that Christopher Columbus brought to the New World in his second voyage. And Columbus probably got his seeds from the already-established orange groves of Seville and other parts of southern Europe.

It was the Moors who introduced the orange to the Iberian peninsula, having brought it with them in their westward migration from Arabia. Yet there is historical evidence that it was the Genoese and Portuguese traders who brought the sweet orange from China where it had been cultivated for many centuries to the Mediterranean and that what the Moors brought was the sour orange. In any case, it was the Arabic name "naranj" which stuck.

Cranberry ideas to appease hungry snackers

A snack is described in Webster's Dictionary as a "light lunch," but snacking as such has turned into more than a once-a-day mini repast. There's morning pick-me-up snacking, afternoon snacking, cocktail hour and party snacking, before bedtime snacking and generally, anytime of the day "I'm in the mood for a tidbit" snacking.

These days, keeping a house stocked with snacks for a variety of tastes can put quite a dent in a food budget. Candy bars alone seem to be almost worth their weight in gold! So it's a wise housewife who can prepare tasty snacks that are "cents-ible" as well as nutritionally good.

The sweet 'n tart flavor of cranberries is a favorite of tots, teens and grownups alike and can be used in preparing a variety of snackster delights.

"Cranberry Circus Sandwiches" will please your youngsters. They are prepared open face on whole wheat bread, with a spread made from cream cheese, orange marmalade and chopped nuts. Using cookie cutters, slices of tangy, jellied cranberry sauce are cut into tiny animal shapes. These would be nice to serve children on a rainy day, or after school, or even for a party.

For any day snacking treat, "Redberry Relish Hot Dogs" will be enjoyed by all the family. A spicy mixture is made by combining jellied cranberry sauce, catsup, and pickle relish which is spooned on franks in toasted buns. A strip of bacon is an added tasty touch.

For the kids anytime of the day, or to serve along with cocktails if friends pop in, make batches of "Cranapple Crunch" and "Cranberry Crackle." For the crunch wheat bits are glazed with a mixture of cranberry apple drink, corn syrup, sugar, salt and butter, and the crackle is a combination of cranberry juice cocktail, popped corn, peanuts, corn syrup, brown sugar, salt, butter, baking soda, and vanilla. Both can be stored for long periods in airtight containers and kept on hand for nibbling.

No snacking would be complete without a refreshing sipper, and "Cranberry Super Shake" will become a family favorite. It combines vanilla ice cream, jellied cranberry sauce, milk, nonfat milk crystals, almond and vanilla extracts. This pretty, pink and foamy drink can be mixed ahead of time and kept conveniently in the refrigerator. It's also delicious served along with any of the other snacks.

This collection of snacks is sure to appease the appetites of the hungriest snacksters in your house.

In a bowl with fork beat cream cheese until fluffy. Beat in marmalade and nuts. Spread mixture on slices of bread. With a sharp knife cut jellied cranberry sauce into ½ inch thick lengthwise slices. Place slices on paper toweling to absorb excess mixture. Using cookie cutters, cut animals out of sauce. Place animals on top of sandwiches. Chill until ready to serve.

Redberry Relish Hot Dogs
(Serves 8)

- ½ cup jellied cranberry sauce
- ½ cup catsup
- ¼ cup well drained pickle relish
- 8 frankfurters
- 8 frankfurter buns, split
- 8 slices crisp bacon

In a bowl, mix cranberry sauce, catsup and pickle relish until well blended. Grill frankfurters until brown on all sides in a broiler or skillet. Toast buns. Place cooked frank in each. Spoon relish over franks. Top each with bacon slices. Serve at once.

Cranapple Crunch
(Makes 16 cups)

- 1½ teaspoons salt
- 2/3 cup light corn syrup
- ½ cup butter or margarine
- 2 packages (12 ounces each) bite-size shredded wheat

In a large saucepan, combine cranberry apple drink, sugar, salt and corn syrup. Add butter and bring mixture to a boil. Boil hard, stirring occasionally, until the temperature on a candy thermometer registers 270 degrees. Place shredded wheat into a large greased bowl. Slowly pour hot syrup over shredded wheat while stirring with a greased long spoon until all pieces are coated. Spread shredded wheat in a thin layer on two greased large cookie sheets. Let stand at room temperature until syrup hardens. Store in an airtight container in a cool dry place until ready to serve.

Cranberry Crackle

Remove from heat and stir in baking soda and vanilla. Place corn and peanuts into a large greased bowl. Slowly pour syrup over popcorn while stirring with a greased long spoon until all particles are coated. Press crackle mixture thinly and evenly onto two greased large cookie sheets. Let stand at room temperature until syrup hardens. Store in an airtight container in a cool dry place until ready to serve.

Cranberry Super Shake
(Serves 6)

- 1 can (16 ounces) jellied cranberry sauce
- 1 quart vanilla ice cream, slightly softened
- 2 cups milk
- 1 cup nonfat dry milk crystals
- 1 teaspoon almond extract
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract

In a blender, combine cranberry sauce and ice cream. Whirl until smooth. Pour mixture into a large bowl. In blender, combine milk, milk crystals, almond and vanilla extracts and whirl until smooth. Combine milk and cranberry mixture in a bowl and beat until smooth and well blended. Pour into glasses and serve with large straws. Serve at once.

Papaya is mini feast in itself

Papaya, the tropical fruit from Hawaii, is a mini feast in itself. One average papaya, about a pound, makes two generous servings, eminently practical for us Mainlanders who live alone or have small families. And it's one soft-fleshed fruit we can enjoy at every season of the year.

Papayas are easy to select at the market. Look for a somewhat pear-shaped fruit, 5 to 6 inches long, green-colored with a touch of yellow showing through. Papayas will ripen in a couple of days at room temperature to a bright half yellow, half green to over-all yellow-orange. Once ripe, papayas should be refrigerated to stay fresh for up to a week. Never squeeze this delicate fruit to determine ripeness because papayas bruise easily. Color is the best guide.

Sweet and refreshing, Hawaiian papaya is a "regular" in the Islander's diet. Hawaiians start their day off with juicy golden papaya, halved and seeded with a splash of lime or lemon juice. The papaya is an excellent breakfast fruit. In addition to its marvelous tropical flavor, it has only 78 calories per half and is rich in vitamins C and A and potassium.

Papaya Kebobs

Cubes of Hawaiian papaya, alternating with other attractive foods on a stick, make easy, elegant appetizers for summer entertaining. Papaya will not turn dark after cutting so the kebobs can be prepared ahead of all the last-minute rush. Mix and match these kebob ideas:

—Papaya with ham cubes; with small prawns or crab legs and a cocktail sauce for dipping; with chunks of fresh summer fruits, such as strawberries, peaches, grapes, plums or pineapple; with chicken or beef teriyaki or with bite-sized barbecued pork.

Wow of a Luau Appetizer

Win the praises at your next party by serving big chunks of fresh fruit in a large glass bowl with toothpicks for spearing and a sour cream sauce for dipping. With the wonderful variety of summer fruits starting to appear in markets, the possibilities are endless. Hawaiian papaya is at its peak season during May and June and blends beautifully with other traditional summer fruits — peaches, grapes, strawberries and plums. The fruit bowl is pretty enough to serve as the centerpiece at the table. Each guest should have a small bowl of sour cream — grated orange rind-ginger dressing for dipping speared fruit.

Blend A Papaya

The electric blender and Hawaiian papaya make delicious, refreshing spoon drinks in minutes. For starters, try these two exotic, nourishing drinks:

—Chop one peeled and seeded papaya and one peeled banana into the blender container; add ¼ cup lemon juice and puree. Pour into two glasses and freeze an hour or so until mushy. Garnish with a fresh strawberry, pineapple spear or sprinkling of nutmeg.

—Peel and seed one papaya; chop into the blender container. Add one cup plain yogurt or ice cream and 3 tablespoons honey; puree until smooth. Pour into two mugs and top with a nutty granola.

Pottery bowl

A pottery bowl with a cover, designed for a single serving of French onion soup, makes a good store-and-serve container for homemade pate.

SUKIYAKI

The onion, to its many enthusiasts, is more than a vegetable. It's a spice, a flavoring, a song in the stew. It's even been hailed as a nostrum, a cure-all and a good-luck charm. General Ulysses S. Grant thought them indispensable and refused to move his Union troops without them.

Of course, there's a more mundane reason why some people become seemingly emotional about onions: freshly sliced onions make them cry. There are as many popular ways to avoid tears over onions as there are tales about onions themselves, but one that many people think works is to hold the onion under running water as you are slicing it.

Onion enthusiasts, including those who brave the tears, should be glad to know that late spring onions are now coming on the market in large volumes, and that prices should be lower, according to market reporters.

To get the most out of the onions you buy, select only those that are bright, clean, hard, well shaped, and mature with dry skins.

To keep these high-quality onions fresh and ready to use, store them in a dry place, with a temperature of 32 to 36 degrees and a humidity of 60 to 70 percent or lower. However, if these onions are stored wet, high temperatures, lower humidity, and good air movement are recommended.

For "out-of-the ordinary" dishes using tasty onions try . . .

SWEET — SOUR CARROTS AND ONIONS

Place 1 pound each cooked whole carrots and onions in a baking pan and pour a sweet-sour sauce over them. Heat at 350 degrees for 20 minutes. To prepare sauce: Brown ¼ cup butter, blend in ¼ cup cornstarch and continue browning. Salt and pepper to taste. Combine ¾ cup each sugar and vinegar with 2 cups hot water and gradually stir into butter. Cook slowly until thickened, stirring constantly.

PEAS AND ONIONS NAPOLI

Cook 1 clove garlic, minced, and 1 large onion cut into rings, in 3 tablespoons butter until tender but not brown. Drain a 16 to 17 ounce can of peas; add ¼ cup of the drained liquid and the peas to onions and garlic; heat. Serve sprinkled with Parmesan cheese. Serves four.

Japanese dish goes American

Along with technology and science, the Japanese have absorbed some of the culinary habits of the Western World — especially the eating of meat. Formerly, Buddhist regulations forbade meat consumption but gradually this concept was abandoned and beef, pork and chicken were added to Japanese cuisine. Beef, in particular, has become a staple of the Japanese diet. It is the principal ingredient in the most internationally famous dish Japanese cuisine — Sukiyaki.

The Japanese cook and serve Sukiyaki at the table for all to see. This custom can easily be carried on in the American home with the help of an electric frypan or heavy skillet over a hot plate. (Or just prepare the dish in the kitchen and serve with fluffy white rice.)

Before cooking Sukiyaki, assemble all the ingredients on a platter — strips of beef sirloin; thin slices of onion, fresh mushrooms, celery, water chestnuts and scallions; bean sprouts and fresh spinach. Combine cornstarch, sugar and soy sauce and set aside. At mealtime, heat peanut oil in a skillet and brown the meat quickly on both sides.

(Japanese cooks perfer peanut oil because it can be heated to the very high temperatures necessary to cook foods quickly without smoking or burning.) Next add all the vegetables except spinach and cook for three minutes; pack spinach into skillet and cook three minutes longer. Pour soy sauce mixture into skillet, cook until thickened and serve immediately with hot cooked rice. In just a matter of minutes you can cook a Japanese meal for the whole family to enjoy.

SUKIYAKI

Makes 4 servings

1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 tablespoon sugar
1/3 cup soy sauce
1/3 cup peanut oil
1 pound beef sirloin cut in thin strips
1 medium onion, thinly sliced
½ pound sliced fresh mushrooms
1 can (16-ounce) bean sprouts, drained
½ cup diagonally sliced celery
¼ cup sliced water chestnuts
¼ cup sliced scallions
1 package (10-ounce) fresh spinach, washed and trimmed
Hot cooked rice

Combine cornstarch, sugar and soy suace; set aside.

In electric skillet, heat peanut oil. Quickly brown meat on both sides. Stir in onion, mushrooms, bean sprouts, celery, water chestnuts and scallions; cook for 3 minutes, stirring constantly. Pack spinach into skillet. Cover; cook 3 minutes longer. Stir to mix well. Pour soy sauce mixture into skillet. Cook and stir until sauce is thickened. Serve immediately with hot cooked rice and additional soy sauce, if desired.

Roast pork, corn stuffing are nutritional old favorites

Two long-time country favorites, roast pork and corn bread stuffing, offer good taste and convenience for modern menus. Corn bread stuffing seasoned with sage and thyme is baked in the same pan as the roast. The pork roast drippings flavor the corn bread enhancing the old-fashioned goodness of the easy one-pan entree.

A tender, lean fresh ham roast is a good choice for economy-conscious consumers. Select a boneless roast so there is no waste in bones.

Nutritionally, pork is a good source of niacin, riboflavin and thiamine — all nutrients essential to good health. A 4 8 ounce serving of lean pork contains about 250 calories and 40 grams of protein. According to Recommended Dietary Allowances established by the National Academy of Sciences, an adult male weighing 154 pounds needs about 55 grams of protein per day. To establish the protein need for each family member multiply the weight in pounds by the factor 0.36. This calculation is based on the technical rule that about a third of a gram of protein is recommended for each pound you weigh.

Pork Roast and Herbed Corn Bread Stuffing

Makes 7 to 8 servings

5 to 6 pound pork leg (fresh ham) boneless roast

Place roast on rack in shallow pan. Insert roast meat thermometer. Roast in 325 degree F. oven, until internal temperature reaches 185 degrees F. or about 4 hours. During the last hour of cooking remove roast from oven and add Herbed Corn Bread Stuffing to the pan. Return to oven for one hour or until pork is done.

Herbed Corn Bread Stuffing

6 cups coarsely crumbled corn bread
1 stick (⅓ cup) butter or margarine
1 cup chopped celery
½ cup chopped onion
1 cup sliced mushrooms
1 cup chicken broth or 1 chicken bouillon cube dissolved in 1 cup boiling water
2 eggs, beaten
1 teaspoon leaf thyme
½ teaspoon leaf sage
1 teaspoon salt

Place corn bread in large mixing bowl. Melt butter in small skillet. Add celery, onion and mushrooms. Saute about 5 minutes then add to corn bread. Add remaining ingredients and mix well. Bake with pork roast according to above.

SPICE CAKE

Here's a little different cake

Are you looking for a back-to-basics cake recipe, but you don't want to cover yourself completely with flour? Do you want a healthy dessert to eat along with your evening coffee? Do you like carrot cake, but you just don't happen to have any carrots handy? And, most importantly, are you ready for the unusual?

Well, look no further. Because there's a Very Special Spice Cake recipe that just fits the bill. It's made with tomato sauce.

VERY SPECIAL SPICE CAKE

- 3 cups sifted flour
- 1½ cups sugar
- 1½ teasp. baking powder
- 1½ teasp. cinnamon
- ¾ teasp. nutmeg
- ¾ teasp. cloves
- ¾ teasp. allspice
- ¾ teasp. salt
- 1 (8-oz./226 grams) can tomato sauce
- 1½ teasp. baking soda
- 2 eggs, beaten
- ¾ cup pure vegetable oil
- 1 cup chopped nuts
- 1½ cups golden raisins
- ½ cup orange or pineapple juice

In large mixing bowl, combine flour, sugar, baking powder, spices and salt. Thoroughly mix sauce and soda in small bowl; add to flour mixture. Stir in eggs, oil, nuts, raisins & fruits juice; mix well. Pour into greased 10-inch (25 centimeter) bundt or tube pan. Bake at 350 degrees (175 c) 45 to 55 minutes. Cool in pan 15 minutes before turning out on serving plate. Dust top with powdered sugar. Makes one 10-inch (25 centimeters) cake.

Olympic athletes will snack on raisins

To an Olympic athlete, diet plays a key role in training and competition. A balance of nutrients and an adequate intake of calories is especially important to maintaining strength and endurance.

Water, vitamins, minerals, protein, fats and carbohydrates are the nutrients a competitive athlete, and we all need daily.

The body needs water for energy production, for temperature control, particularly during periods of vigorous exercise, and for the elimination of waste. Depriving the body of water greatly limits strength and endurance.

Vitamins and minerals are necessary for regulating body processes and building body chemicals.

Fats are a concentrated source of food energy. They add flavor to food and have a high satiety value.

Protein is a component of all body tissue and is needed for growth and repair. However, proteins are a less efficient source of energy than carbohydrates and fats.

Carbohydrates are the body's primary source of energy. Sugars and starches are the most efficient and readily available source of energy, and generally the most inexpensive. Carbohydrate foods should contribute well over 50 per cent of an athlete's total caloric intake.

Bread, pasta, rice, vegetable starch as in potatoes and dry beans, fresh fruits and raisins are examples of carbohydrate-rich foods. These foods may be consumed at meals and as snacks.

Raisins are an ideal snack food for athletes because they're lightweight, portable and easy to handle, and because they don't add a lot of bulk to the diet.

This summer 68,000 raisin snack packs will help feed more than 8,000 athletes from 131 countries during the game. The raisins will be used on a cold buffet table available three times a day and will be packed in box lunches for the athletes competing outside of the Olympic Village.

For your own summer snacking fun, try these Olympic Raisin Oatcakes. They're a cinch to make, and like rainsins, these bar cookies are portable, packable and light-weight — perfect for camping, hiking or biking.

For another quick summer snack, make Volley Ball Gorp. Simply mix together raisins, minature marshmallows and animal crackers for a fun, high-energy snack.

OLYMPIC RAISIN OATCAKES

- ½ cup butter or margarine
- 1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1 cup raisins
- 2 cups oats
- ¼ cup chopped nuts
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- ¼ teaspoon salt

In saucepan, melt butter. Stir in sugar and cinnamon until smooth. In bowl, mix remaining ingredients. Add butter mixture. Blend ingredients thoroughly with fingers. Press in greased 8-inch square pan. Bake in preheated 350 degree-oven, 25 minutes. (It will look soft in middle but golden around edges.) Sprinkle with powdered sugar if desired. Cool until firm, about 1 hour. Cut into squares.

Makes 25 1½-inch squares

VOLLEY BALL GORP

Mix 1 cup raisins with 1 cup miniature marshmallows and 1 package (2 ounces) animal crackers.

Makes about 2½ cups.

Peanuts give salad spread surprise flavor

If you are the type of person who is happiest when busy, you probably enjoy taking on as much PTA, church and political campaign work as you can handle. Besides hard work, these jobs usually mean lots of fun and friends and the personal satisfaction of doing something for others.

With political campaign work you are doing a job that benefits your country. Candidates depend upon campaign workers to raise funds, urge people to vote and acquaint community members with political issues. Extensive planning and preparation are needed for this work . . . and many meetings.

Don't forget refreshments when you are having a business meeting or work session. Even volunteers work better on full stomachs.

Plan snacks that are light and quick to serve so that you do not have to interrupt your participation in the meeting to fuss with the food. Confetti Egg Salad Spread can be prepared in advance and refrigerated until serving time. It is a colorful blend of eggs, peanuts, pimiento, ripe olives and parsley that is all nourishment and no empty calories. The surprise ingredient in this delicious spread is peanuts which give flavor and texture as well as nutrients. Peanuts supply large amounts of protein, niacin, riboflavin and other important food elements.

CONFETTI EGG SALAD SPREAD

Makes 2 cups

- 6 finely chopped hard-cooked eggs
- ½ cup finely chopped peanuts
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped pimiento
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped ripe olives
- 1 tablespoon finely chopped parsley
- ¾ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon white pepper
- ¼ cup mayonnaise
- 1 tablespoon milk
- ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

Combine eggs, peanuts, pimiento, ripe olives, parsley, salt and pepper. Blend in mayonnaise, milk and Worcestershire sauce. Serve with crackers or bread.

Rich potato soups perk up summer picnics

When a picnic is "in the soup" it means that it's the latest style. People are taking homemade soups to picnics and enjoying them a lot. Soups go great with sandwiches, hot dogs or hamburgers and they fill in the corners created by outdoor hunger.

Picnic soups may be piping hot or chilled. Both travel well in a vacuum bottle. Some of the most appealing picnic soup ideas are coming out of Idaho. Many early settlers of Idaho were Germans, and the Germans make marvelous potato soups with rich, thick texture and earthy flavor. Potato and Cheese Soup is great eating served hot at a picnic or cook out, and it has a built-in convenience factor for the cook. It's made with packaged hash brown potatoes. They are just stirred into the creamy soup mixture and cook covered for 10 minutes. It's that simple.

A Cold Potato and Cucumber Soup adds a touch of elegance to a picnic, and it's very easy to make despite its gourmet character. The easy part comes by using instant mashed potatoes for the soup base, and quickly buzzing it up in an electric blender. This is a wonderful soup to tote to picnics, and a favorite, too, for luncheons and suppers when the weather has gotten very hot.

Summer is the time to make the most of convenience products to get out of the kitchen fast, and packaged instant potato products are one of the best friends a cook can find at the supermarket. Use them often to cut down work in the summer kitchen.

POTATO AND CHEESE SOUP

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
¼ cup chopped onion
¼ cup finely chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons flour
7 cups milk
¼ teaspoons dry mustard
2 chicken bouillon cubes
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 cup (4 ounces) shredded Cheddar cheese
1 package (6 ounces) hash brown potatoes
2 tomatoes, peeled and chopped

In large saucepan melt butter over medium heat, add onion and green pepper, and cook until vegetables are tender. Blend in flour; stir in milk, dry mustard, bouillon cubes, salt, pepper and lemon juice. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Stir in cheese and potatoes; cook covered 10 minutes. Serve with chopped tomatoes sprinkled on each serving.

YIELD: 8 cups; 6 servings.

COLD POTATO AND CUCUMBER SOUP

Instant mashed potatoes for 8 servings
Water
Milk
1 cup additional milk
2 medium cucumbers, pared, seeded and cut into cubes
2 tablespoons chopped chives
1 tablespoon lemon juice
¾ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper

Heat liquids called for in package directions for preparing mashed potatoes, pour into electric blender container, and sprinkle with mashed potato flakes. Cover and process until blended, add remaining ingredients and process until smooth. Chill several hours.

Makes 4 cups.

High quality apples ready this summ.

Apples made news last fall when the biggest crop on record nationwide was harvested. Now, through the wonder of "controlled atmosphere" storage, high quality apples will be good consumer news this summer.

Right now, fresh apple supplies are over 60 per cent higher than in recent years. Last spring, 9,745,844 forty-two pound bushels of apples were in storage on May 1. This year's supply on that date was 16,301,206 bushels.

Major retail chains are planning apple specials in the coming weeks, reflecting lower wholesale prices.

"Harvesting apples at just the right stage of maturity and cooling them immediately are the keys to successful long term storage," according to Joe Brownlow, Manager of the Washington State Apple Commission. "Temperature and oxygen content of the storage rooms are controlled to slow down the breathing rate of apples. The fruit is actually 'lulled to sleep'," Brownlow adds.

Many people rate the flavor of apples from storage better than that of those right off the tree.

Consumers can benefit from this unprecedented summer apple situation by using the fruit in a variety of easy ways.

— Green salads can include apple chunks or wedges. Golden Delicious apples keep their color longer than others after cutting, but a squeeze of fresh lemon juice will retard discoloration of any apple.

— Add apple chunks to chicken or seafood salads, potato salad, and cole slaw.

— Include thinly sliced apple on meat sandwiches.

— Spread peanut butter or cheese spread on apple wedges for snacks.

— Carry apples to picnics along with other summer fruits. Apples eaten out of hand act as "nature's toothbrush," helping to clean other food particles from between teeth.

The average apple has just 90 calories, and one milligram sodium per hundred grams, making it suitable for low-sodium diets. So plan to take advantage of the current price advantage available now. The United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association recommends selecting firm, unbruised apples that are of good color for their variety. Refrigerate at home to maintain crispness and flavor.

Tomato paste

Often recipes call for as little as a tablespoon or two of tomato paste and you have a good deal left over in a can you have opened. Store the remaining tomato paste in the freezer and it will keep well.

Preserve pickled peppers now for winter snacks

"Peter Piper picked a peck of pickled peppers. How many pickled peppers did Peter Piper pick?" So goes the renowned tongue twister. But the untwisted fact remains that Peter couldn't possibly have picked pickled peppers. Most probably he picked peppers for pickling, because they're one of the easiest vegetables to preserve.

A peck of peppers, picked and pickled now, while available, will enliven the "football-watchers sandwich snack" in fall.

But however you plan to use your pickled product, now is the time to get ready, set and start pickling.

To help you pack perfect peppers, here are some hints.

—Select fresh, firm, well-shaped peppers with a uniform glossy color.

—Use distilled white or apple cider vinegar with consistent acidity to ensure proper preservation.

—Follow the recipe directions exactly; make small batches; never increase the recipe by doubling, tripling, etc.

—Do not use jars and lids from commercially-packed foods — they are not suitable for home preserving.

The following recipes use fresh green peppers as a major ingredient.

PICKLED GREEN PEPPERS

3 pounds green peppers (7-9 large)
Boiling water
2½ cups distilled white vinegar
2½ cups water
1¼ cups granulated sugar
8 cloves garlic
4 teaspoons salad oil
2 teaspoons salt

Remove seed pods and white "seams." Cut lengthwise into ¾-inch strips. Place pepper strips in bowl; cover with boiling water. Let stand 5 minutes; drain. Combine vinegar, water and sugar in saucepan; simmer 5 minutes. Pack peppers in clean, hot jars. To each jar add 2 cloves garlic, 1 teaspoon oil and ½ teaspoon salt. Pour hot liquid over peppers to within ½ inch of top making sure vinegar solution covers peppers. Cap each jar at once. Process 5 minutes in boiling-water bath. Makes 4 pints.

When made from tender young peppers, the following recipe for PEPPER RELISH will retain a fresh flavor longer. To enjoy the fullest flavor, it is recommended that the relish be used within 6 months.

PEPPER RELISH

4 pounds green peppers (18-20 medium)
1 pound onions (3-4 large)
2 cups distilled white vinegar
1¼ cups granulated sugar
2 tablespoons salt
1 teaspoon mustard seed
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
½ teaspoon ground allspice
½ teaspoon ground ginger
½ teaspoon ground cloves

Wash, trim and quarter peppers and onions. Put vegetables through food grinder, using coarse blade; drain, discarding liquid. Combine vinegar and remaining ingredients in saucepot; heat to boiling. Add vegeatables; simmer 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Continue simmering while quickly packing one clean, hot jar at a time. Fill to within ½ inch of top making sure vinegar solution covers vegetables. Cap each jar at once. Process 5 minutes in boiling-water bath. Makes 4 pints.

A tasty Hawaiian refresher

Almost every mainlander who visits the Hawaiian Islands returns home a devoted fan of Hawaii's favorite tropical fruit, the papaya. Halved or quartered and served with a wedge of lime, the papaya is de rigeur at breakfast everywhere on the Islands, and is a mainstay in Hawaiian cookery at other times of the day.

A chilled, ripe golden-yellow papaya has a fragrant, delicately-sweet flavor reminiscent of the warm tropical sunshine. Fortunately, you don't have to trek to Hawaii to discover this wonderful flavor for yourself. Papaya is now readily available in many mainland markets, including our own, all year long. The papaya is in especially good supply making this a good time to try this exotic fruit.

Unknown to many, the papaya is one of the most healthful of all fresh fruits. One seven-ounce half provides almost twice the vitamin C and over two-thirds the vitamin A recommended daily, as well as other important nutrients, including potassium. Yet, papayas are surprisingly low in calories — a mere 78 per half.

Papayas may be underripe, primarily green with just a touch of yellow, when purchased. But they'll ripen beautifully to a half green, half yellow or over-all yellow-orange in a couple of days at room temperature. Ripe papayas should be stored in the refrigerator where they'll stay fresh for up to a week.

The papaya has a unique pear-like shape and hollowed cavity that makes it a perfect "bowl" for serving main dish and fruit salads, cottage cheese, sherbet or ice cream. For a spectacular brunch or luncheon salad, for example, fill papaya halves with this lime-marinaded fruit. It's served with a spicy cream dressing and brings the taste and look of the Islands right to your home.

PAPAYA SALAD BANANA SPLIT

2 Hawaiian papayas
Lime-Rum Marinade (recipe follows)
1 red apple, diced
½ pound fresh grapes,
2 tablespoons chopped walnuts
Creamy Dressing (recipe follows)
2 bananas
Lettuce leaves
Nutmeg

Halve and seed papayas; refrigerate. Prepare Lime-Rum Marinade (recipe follows). In mixing bowl, toss apples, grapes and walnuts together; combine with marinade. Cover and refrigerate. Meanwhile, prepare Creamy Dressing (recipe follows); chill. At serving time, fill papaya halves with drained, marinaded fruit mixture. Arrange on lettuce-lined salad plate. Garnish with banana half, split lengthwise. Place a scoop of Creamy Dressing alongside. Sprinkle with nutmeg.

Make 4 servings.

LIME - RUM MARINADE: In saucepan, combine ¼ cup sugar and 2 tablespoons water; bring to boil. Reduce heat; simmer until sugar dissolves, about 3 minutes. Remove from heat; add ¼ cup lime juice and 2 tablespoons light rum. Makes ½ cup.

CREAMY DRESSING: Into 1 cup whipping cream, whipped stiff, stir 2 tablespoons chopped walnuts, 1 tablespoon sugar and 1 teaspoon each grated lemon rind and lemon juice. Chill. Makes about 1½ cups.

Growing pains

With the exception of Miami, the nation's largest metropolitan areas have almost stopped growing, The Conference Board observes. Migration from the other 15 biggest urban centers nearly offset their natural increase in population between 1970 and 1974; and this trend is expected to continue. Many people are vacationing and retiring in the sun belt — Miami, Tampa-St. Petersburg, Phoenix and Orlando — and business is following them there. Also, population is shifting to the smaller urban areas, which offer most big city advantages without the same scarcity of space.

Wheat bran treats are great lunch box fillers

Filling a lunch box with a variety of tastes and nutrition is one of the biggest problems for the sandwich-maker. For inspiration, take a cue from medical experts concerned with the decrease of fiber in the American diet and add bran to your children's lunches. Wheat bran is one of the best sources of dietary fiber.

It's been known for years that fiber helps regulate elimination, but now it is theorized that it may play a role in preventing cancer of the colon and rectum, diverticulitis, heart disease and obesity, too.

Studies by British researchers show that rural Africans rarely have these diseases until they go to cities and eat modern Western foods as a steady diet. Their native high fiber diet results in moving possibly harmful wastes through the alimentary canal more quickly than is usual in Westerners, and it is believed by some researchers that this helps keep them relatively free of cancer of the colon and rectum.

The modern American diet is low in fiber compared to that of 19th century Americans, but putting roughage back into your diet is as easy as using bran cereal. Sprinkle it on other cereals and other foods, substitute it for nuts in cookies, or use it as a ground meat stretcher. With wheat bran cereal as an ingredient of No-Knead Raisin Bread, Applesauce Cake or Chocolate Branana Bars, you'll give your brown-baggers the fiber needed in a day, and some wholesome new lunch treats.

No-Knead Raisin Bread

- 3 cups unsifted regular all-purpose flour
- ½ cup instant nonfat dry milk (in dry form)
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ½ teaspoon cinnamon
- 2 packages active dry yeast
- ¼ cup sugar
- 1½ cups warm water
- 2 cups bran cereal
- 1 egg
- 1/3 cup regular margarine or butter, softened
- 1 cup seedless raisins
- 1 tablespoon regular margarine or butter, melted
- ½ teaspoon cinnamon
- 2 tablespoons sugar

Stir together flour, nonfat dry milk, salt and ½ teaspoon of the cinnamon. Set aside. Combine yeast, the ¼ cup sugar and the warm water in large mixing bowl. Stir in bran cereal. Let stand about 2 minutes or until cereal is softened. Add egg, margarine and about half of the flour mixture. Beat at medium speed on electric mixer for about 2 mintues or about 200 strokes by hand. Mix in remaining flour mixture by hand to form a stiff, sticky dough. Cover bowl lightly. Let stand in warm place (80 to 85 degrees) until doubled in volume, about 1 hour. Then add raisins, stirring dough down to original volume. Spoon into well-greased 8x5x3-inch loaf pan. Brush top of dough with melted margarine. Sprinkle with a mixture of ½ teaspoon cinnamon and the 2 tablespoons sugar. Bake in 375 degrees oven about 45 minutes or until loaf is golden brown. Remove from baking pan. Cool on wire rack. Yields one loaf.

Applesauce Cake

- 1¾ cups unsifted regular all-purpose flour
- 1½ teaspoons baking power
- ¾ teaspoon baking soda
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1½ cups sugar
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- ¼ teaspoon ground cloves
- ⅛ teaspoon ginger
- ⅛ teaspoon allspice
- 3 eggs
- 2 cups applesauce
- ½ cup vegetable oil
- 1½ cups bran cereal
- ¾ cup coarsely chopped nuts

Stir together flour, baking powder, soda, salt, sugar and spices. Set aside. Beat eggs in large mixing bowl until foamy. Add applesauce, oil and bran cereal. Mix well. Add dry ingredients, mixing until well combined. Stir in nuts. Pour into greased 13x9x2-inch baking pan. Bake in 350 degrees oven about 45 minutes or until wooden pick inserted near center comes out clean. Cool. Dust with confectioners' sugar, if desired. Makes 12 to 16 servings.

Chocolate Branana Bars

- 1 cup unsifted regular all-purpose flour
- ½ teaspoon baking powder
- ¼ teaspoon baking soda
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon cinnamon
- ¼ cup regular margarine or butter, softened
- ¾ cup sugar
- 1 cup mashed, fully ripe bananas (about 3 medium)
- 1 egg
- ¼ cup milk
- 1 cup bran cereal
- 1 package (6 ounces, 1 cup) semi-sweet chocolate pieces, melted
- 1 cup chopped nuts

Stir together flour, baking powder, soda, salt and cinnamon. Set aside. Measure margarine, sugar, bananas, egg, milk, bran cereal and chocolate into large mixing bowl. Beat well. Add flour mixture and nuts. Beat until well combined. Spread mixture in greased and floured 13x9x2-inch baking pan. Bake in 350 degrees oven about 30 minutes or until wooden pick inserted near center comes out clean. Cool. Frost with Chocolate Velvet Frosting. Cut into bars. Makes 32 2 and 1½ inch bars.

Chocolate Velvet Frosting

- 1 package (6 ounces, 1 cup) semi-sweet chocolate pieces
- 2 tablespoons shortening
- 1 cup sifted confectioners' sugar
- ¼ cup milk
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon vanilla flavoring

Melt chocolate with shortening in medium-size saucepan over very low heat, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Add sugar, milk, salt and vanilla, mixing until smooth. Spread over cooled Chocolate Branana Bars.

Old-time conserve worthwhile

By Cecily Brownstone
Associated Press
Food Editor

This is the time of year, before summer's full quota of fruit appears in abundance, to consider "putting up" an old-fashioned conserve made with fresh rhubarb and canned pineapple. It's a delicious spread for toast, biscuits, muffins and other hot breads.

RHUBARB-PINEAPPLE CONSERVE

- 4 cups sliced (1-inch pieces) rhubarb, about
- 1½ pounds 20-ounce can crushed pineapple, drained
- 1½ cups sugar
- ¾ cup light corn syrup
- 1 tablespoon coarsely grated orange rind
- ¼ cup orange juice
- ½ cup coarsely chopped walnuts.

In a heavy 5-quart saucepot stir together the rhubarb, pineapple, sugar, corn syrup, orange rind and orange juice. Cook over low heat, stirring often, until sugar is dissolved. Increase heat and boil, stirring often, until thick — about 45 minutes; temperature, if tested with a candy thermometer, should reach 220 degrees. Stir in walnuts.

Ladle into clean, hot, dry half-pint wide-mouth jars leaving ¼-inch headspace. Wipe top edge of jars with a damp cloth. Seal according to jar manufacturer's directions.

Process in a boiling water bath for 10 minutes after boiling temperature is reached. Remove and cool on a wire rack or a folded towel. Label, date and store in a cool, dry place. For best flavor, use within 1 year.

Makes five ½-pint jars.

There really is some good news

Claremont-Mudd's football fortunes appear to be on the upswing.

Coach John Zinda says he has the best group of freshmen he's had at the Claremont Colleges.

Topping them is running back Rickey Maddox of Pacific Palisades. He has been one of the best in Los Angeles City football the last two years.

At Cleveland High (San Fernando Valley) in 1974, the 5-8, 177-pound Maddox earned second team All-City honors. Last year he moved to Pacific Palisades where he earned co-Player of the Year honors with quarterback Mike Stennis in the Western League.

Maddox gained 1,254 yards in 11 games and averaged 5.47 yards per carry. He caught 11 passes for 87 yards and scored 19 touchdowns rushing.

A versatile ball player, Maddox kicked 31 points-after-touchdowns and five of 10 field goal attempts. He personally outscored nine of the 11 teams he faced and had a total of 160 points in regular season play.

His career total of 349 points broke the record previously held by Anthony Davis.

Things are also looking up for this year's California 500 at Ontario Motor Speedway, Sept. 5.

Advance sales up

General manager Ray Smartis reports advance ticket sales have been best since 1972, the track's second year of operation. Smartis says for the first time ever, Victory Circle seats will be sold out.

Another result of moving the race back to its original day-before-Labor Day running is Smartis' prediction that the California 500 will have as many entries this year as the Indy 500.

There were so few entries last year, if you remember, that in order to fill the 33-car field, two cars that hadn't even qualified were admitted to the race.

Smartis, who said he always felt ticket prices were too high, has reduced them nearly 40 percent on the average.

The current price range is from $8.00 to $30 for reserved seats. General Admission is $6.00. Top price formerly was $55. Seats that formerly cost $30 are $20. Seats formerly costing $25 are $15.

In this day of high inflation and skyrocketing prices, Smartis is doing the unheard of. Wish others would follow.

This year the entire schedule will be compressed into eight busy days, actually seven days of track activity.

OMS will open Sunday, August 29. Practice will be Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. Qualifications will be Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 1 and 2

The track will be open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday through Thursday. Admission will be $1.00 on practice days and $2.00 during qualifications.

Final day of pre-race track action will be Friday, Sept. 3. The course will be open to the 33 qualifiers for final tuneup or carburation runs and pit stop practice.

Twin 100s out

Along with returning to the original Sept. running date, Smartis is also going back to the four-lap qualification run. The first-day qualifiers get the top positions with the fastest car on the pole.

Eliminated are the twin 100-mile qualifying races of the past two years. While interesting, they didn't prove successful financially and were not overwhelmingly popular with the drivers.

Another new daredevil is on the scene. He's "Captain Rollerball" who is really Curt Michaelson of Bloomington, Minn.

Michaelson, or Capt. Rollerball if you prefer, has an act that includes a backpack type, hydrogen peroxide rocket (200 lbs. thrust) and a pair of roller skates.

The rocket gives "Rollerball" enough thrust to attain speeds of 80 mph on rollerskates! He'll be appearing (for awhile at least) at the Nitro Championships at Orange County International Raceway in East Irvine Saturday.

According to the San Francisco Chronicle, Rollie Fingers has revealed that he would have lowered his asking price to remain in Oakland with the Athletics.

"I would have settled for a little less to stay here, but it never came up," Fingers is quoted as saying.

For awhile at least, Bowie Kuhn has put Rollie back in the A's uniform.

STRUGGLE

Claremont High's Dave Brigante of the North team and Garey's Stan Webster of the South vie for control of ball during La Verne Rotary's third annual Pomona Valley All-Star Game Tuesday night at La Verne College's Supertent. North won the game, 92-85.

North cagers are too 'Sly'

PB Staff Writer

The North, led by the domineering play of Bonita High's Steve Sly in the second half and Claremont's Rob Fossum in the first, won La Verne Rotary's Pomona Valley All-Star Basketball Game Tuesday night for the first time in the three-year history of the game.

Record-setting performances by Sly and Claremont's Dave Brigante lifted the North to a 92-85 victory before a full house in the La Verne College Supertent.

Sly grabbed 24 rebounds, three more than Cleve Porter's record set in 1974, while the speedy Brigante came up with a record five steals and tied the mark held by Ganesha's Donald Barnes and Claremont's Todd Ervin for the most assists — nine — in the La Verne Rotary game.

Brigante also scored six of his 12 points in the final quarter while the North was stretching its lead from two points to seven over the final 12 minutes. During that fourth quarter Sly scored eight points, Damien's Mike Wetenkamp added seven and Pomona's James Knight tossed in five.

Sly, who had just seven points and six rebounds in the first half, scored 14 points and grabbed 18 caroms in the second half to finish the game as the leading scorer with 21 as well as the leading rebounder.

While Sly was relatively quiet in the first half, Fossum scored 10 of his 13 points and caught 13 of his 21 rebounds — a figure that would have tied Porter's old record.

Those two leapers were primarily responsible for North's 86-70 rebounding advantage in the game — a figure surprising in the light of South's slight height advantage under the boards.

The South was certainly not without its stars. Rowland's Rusty Owens, at 6-foot-6 the tallest player in the game, scored 14 points and gathered in 18 rebounds while Garey's Gary Carpenter scored 14 and caught 14 caroms and Chaffey's Mark McQuaid added 10 points and 17 rebounds. George Terry of Ganesha scored 12 points for the South.

The North trailed, 78-76, with under six minutes to go before Fossum made a free throw and Sly hit a basket to give the Yankees the lead for good, 79-78 with 4:55 remaining.

Knight then scored on an impressive follow shot and Brigante made a pair of free throws for an 83-78 North advantage. After Garey's Stan Webster scored a free throw for the South, the North reeled off six straight points on a tipin by Sly of a Wetenkamp shot and two baskets by Wetenkamp. That gave the North a 10-point lead with under three minutes to go and the victors had no trouble holding the advantage.

"There wasn't really a turning point," said North head coach Remi Tremblay of Bonita after the game. "It was a back-and-forth game and we just had the lead when the clock ran out." The lead changed hands nine times and the score was tied on 12 occasions.

In the first two All-Star games, the scores were somewhat higher: 104-102 and 130-109.

"We slowed the pace down deliberately," said Tremblay. "We didn't want to try to run with them because we knew they'd blow us out."

It looked briefly as if the South might do just that in the first quarter. After the score was tied 2-2, Terry quickly scored four of the next five baskets and McQuaid added another to give the South a sudden 12-4 lead.

The North chipped that margin down to 15-13 but the South shot out to a six-point edge, 19-13. But four free throws by the North in the last minute of the quarter made the score 21-17 after the first 12-minute period.

Alta Loma's Jamie Eagle hit two quick baskets to open the second half, tying the score at 21, and Charter Oak's Mike Moses scored on a follow shot for North's first lead, 23-21, with 10:04 remaining in the half.

The lead bounced back and forth until Brigante hit three straight shots and Royal Oak's Brian Kelly added one for a 40-35 North advantage.

Dodgers fall behind Pads

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers are slowly sinking in the National League West, torpedoed by another June swoon.

"We're not trying to make everybody look like Cy Young or Grover Cleveland Alexander, but that's what we're doing," said Sutton after the Cincinnati Reds swept a two-game series Tuesday night with back to back 4-hitters to drop the Dodgers into third, 5½ games behind.

The Reds 6-0 victory and Randy Jones' 13th victory put San Diego in second place.

It capped another nightmarish June for the Dodgers.

A year ago they entered June leading Cincinnati by a game and a half. A month later they trailed by eight.

"If they don't close the season next week, we'll be okay," said Manager Walter Alston, trying to find some humor in the midst of a four-game losing streak.

Cincinnati's Fred Norman, squeezed out of the rotation earlier this month, made a bid to reclaim a starting spot with his first shutout since April 18.

The 33-year-old lefthander ran his lifetime record at Riverfront Stadium to 28-6, but not without some shaky moments.

"When I warmed up I was skeptical. I didn't get it together until the last couple minutes. I didn't think I'd last the first inning," said Norman, who upped his record to 5-1.

Once he settled down, "it was like sitting in a rocking chair," said batterymate Johnny Bench, who broke out of an 0-for-16 slump with three hits to spark three uprisings. "All he threw were strikes."

Hot-hitting Doug Flynn drove in three runs as the Reds threaten a repeat of their runaway a year ago when they buried the Dodgers by 20 games in the most lopsided division race ever.

An injury siege—and a Cincinnati rampage—scuttled the Dodgers last year. Injuries are taking their toll again for the Dodgers.

Los Angeles has lost speedster Dave Lopes and RBI man Ron Cey to injuries recently.

Alston said the skid "is nothing that we can't overcome with some hitting. We haven't scored any runs in a week."

"You take Cey out of the lineup and it's hard to score runs," said Alston.

Reds Manager Sparky Anderson has his doubts about the Dodgers.

Bell's slam leads Chisox

KANSAS CITY — Ex-Mt. San Antonio College star Kevin Bell slammed his first major league home run in rather unusual fashion Tuesday.

Bell cracked an inside-the-park grand slam homer to lead the Chicago White Sox to a 14-8 slugfest win over the Kansas City Royals. He had been recently promoted from the minors by the Chisox.

While chasing Bell's third-inning blast, Royals' leftfielder Tom Poquette crashed head-first into the wall and was knocked unconscious. Before the Royals could retrieve the ball, Bell and three of his mates had circled the sacks for the grand slammer.

Poquette suffered a fracture of his left cheekbone and other facial injuries on the play and will be out of action for at least three weeks.

Bell, who prepped at Northview High in Covina, finished the biggest night of his young major league career with three hits. Jim Spencer and Jorge Orta also homered for the Sox in the win.

Angels had a rough day

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

ANAHEIM — The Oakland A's — or what's left of the A's — will be visiting Anaheim Stadium tonight to open a two-game series to close the Angels' 10-game homestand.

Noland Ryan, who has put together two outstanding performances back-to-back with a two-hit shutout over Milwaukee and a 15-strikeout show against Boston, will try to even his season record at 7-7 against the A's Mike Norris.

The lack of hitting has been the major reason why the Angels are again in the basement of the American League West but pitching was the main culprit Tuesday afternoon when the Minnesota Twins pounded out 17 hits in a 10-6 win over the Halos.

But the umpires also had something to do with it if you listen to Angels' manager Dick Williams, who was ejected from the game early with catcher Andy Etchebarren and coach Billy Muffett.

Plate umpire Bill Kunkel gave the trio the afternoon off with Muffett leaving in the third inning and the other two in the fourth.

"He (Kunkel) was trying to provoke things," Williams argued. "He was looking for people to throw out. He agitated Etchebarren who wasn't doing anything and he threw Muffett out for nothing."

Muffett was excused early when he complained about no interference call on Minnesota first baseman Rod Carew after he bumped Dave Chalk when he doubled in the third.

Etchebarren and Williams got the afternoon off when they argued about third base umpire Lou DiMuro calling Dan Ford safe at third base when Chalk threw to third baseman Ron Jackson on Lyman Bostock's grounder.

The game was still close at that point but Minnesota erupted for three runs in the fifth inning and two more in the sixth to break it open.

Minnesota enjoyed the lead throughout after scoring three runs on Carew's homer in the first inning before starter Don Kirkwood (2-7) could retire a batter.

Ford belted his 10th homer of the season — a two-run shot — off of Mickey Scott to give Minnesota a comfortable lead.

Carew, rookie catcher Butch Wynegar and second baseman Bob Randall led the parade with three hits apiece.

The Angels' attack was highlighted by a three-run homer by catcher Terry Humphrey, who replaced Etchebarren, in the bottom of the fourth.

Twins' starter Jim Hughes (3-8) picked up the win even though he struggled throughout. Pomona product Bill Campbell blanked the Angels in the final 2 2/3 innings to preserve Hughes' victory.

ANGEL ANGLES — Frank Tanana, who has already missed two starts, was given permission to throw on the sidelines Friday in Kansas City and if all goes well, he will start next Tuesday in Chicago. Dr. Frank Jobe said X rays showed no calcium deposits in Tanana's sore left elbow.

Palomino can build his house

WEMBLEY, England (AP) — Carlos Palomino, the new world welterweight boxing champion, is tired of sharing a bedroom with his three brothers and plans to build a house with a room of his own.

"Now I'm world champion I guess I can afford it," the 26-year-old Mexican-American said after hammering Britain's John Stracey to defeat in 12 furious rounds at London's Wembley Empire pool Tuesday night.

Palomino left Mexico when he was 10 and lives in a suburban house at Westminster, near Los Angeles, with his parents, 10 brothers and sisters and his 5-year-old son, Carlos Jr. His marriage ended in divorce four years ago.

The bedroom is a converted garage with four beds in it.

"We live as one big happy family," Palomino said. "My folks have all helped me a lot, and now I hope I shall be in a position to do something for them."

Palomino never had previously boxed outside California.

Stracey, 25, one of Britain's sporting heroes, had been world champion since beating Jose Napoles in Mexico last December. He lost his crown to Palomino after a barrage of body punches had sent him to the canvas twice for counts of eight.

When he got up the second time, British referee Sid Nathan stopped the bout at 1:35 of the 12th round.

Palomino followed a plan set up by his manager, Jack McCoy and attacked Stracey's body.

"I could see from the start my body punches were hurting him, and I kept working at them," Palomino said. "He hit me with some good punches, but they lacked power. I didn't expect the fight to end as quickly as it did."

Palomino, three-quarters of a pound lighter than Stracey at 145¼ pounds, had a longer reach and made good use of it. He was on top from the start.

This was Palomino's 20th victory in 24 pro fights, with one defeat and three draws. Stracey now has won 44 fights, lost four and drawn one.

Palomino is studying for a master's degree in recreation management at Long Beach State University. But he said he plans to continue fighting and will defend his title as often as he can.

"I would like to remain world champion until I'm 30," he said.

He may not be the last of the fighting Palominos. His 14-year-old brother Paul is a junior Golden Gloves champion.

"He's going to be a much better boxer than I am," Palomino said.

Vault mark to Roberts

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Dave Roberts regained the world pole vault record with a mark of 18 feet 8¼ inches and promptly declared it "will take at least the same height or better to win" an Olympic gold medal.

But the 24-year-old medical student's record-shattering vault was only one of the highlights of a big day at the U.S. Olympic track and field trials Tuesday:

—Marathon champion Frank Shorter, Craig Virgin and Garry Bjorklund finished 1-2-3 in a 10,000-meter final that produced four of the fastest times ever in the U.S.

—Millard Hampton, a powerfully built 19-year-old headed for UCLA next fall, won the 200-meter dash as the top three finishers ran the fastest races of their lives.

—Jane Frederick, a top prospect for a medal at Montreal, won the women's pentathlon and missed her American record by only 110 points.

—Madeline Manning Jackson, 28, earned a third trip to the Olympics, becoming the first American woman to run 800 meters in less than two minutes.

Roberts borrowed a pole from Arkansas State's Earl Bell, the man who took the world record from him in late May, after breaking his own pole on his first try at 18-8¼. He was given three attempts at that height, clearing it on the final try.

He missed twice at 19-0¼

It's a Racquet

EYE SEES TENNIS BALL. Signal goes to arm, which swings racquet, which whacks ball. Textbook simplicity. A routine physiological process. Easy for anyone, all the way down to the most myopic hacker. Right?

Well, maybe not. The expressions shown in the photos at right seem to indicate that hitting a tennis ball can involve a lot of concentration, determination and contortion, and sometimes a touch of anguish as well. The six players — from left, Stan Clark, Sharon Bregman, Margi Sullivan, Don Cromer, Frank Martinez and Gloria Jones — were caught in the middle of a stroke during the Pomona Valley Closed Championships last weekend at the Claremont Tennis Club.

When the two days of serving, ground stroking and volleying were over, the happy faces belonged to those who had advanced into next weekend's semi-finals matches in five open events. The not-so-happy crowd was left to ponder the disappointments, particularly in the men's events, where half the seeded players stumbled and near miss losses abounded.

Claremont Tennis Club champ Rick Roper, seeded No. 2 in men's singles in this tournament, was ousted by unseeded Olarn Isarra, the Claremont High student from Thailand, 6-4, 7-6, in a quarter-finals match Sunday. Another unseeded player, Dave Click, eliminated fourth-seeded Stan Clark, 6-4, 6-2, after Clark had battled through a dozen deuces before losing his serve and surrendering the first set. Veteran Pete Welsh extended top-seeded Dave Waterhouse to three sets before succumbing in the quarters, 5-7, 6-2, 6-4. And for the near miss of the tournament, nothing was the equal of Hank Krieger's second round loss to Jim Lucke by only two points — the ninth point of a tie-breaker in each of two sets. So in Saturday's semis Waterhouse will test Click at 9 a.m. and Isarra will challenge Geoff Clark at 10:30.

Third-seeded Geoff Clark won his quarters match from Lucke, 4-6, 6-1, 6-1, to give the seedings committee a .500 batting average, but the upsets binge continued in men's doubles, sidelining two of the four seeded pairs. The pick-up team of Don Cromer and Carl Skvarna dumped their fellow Claremont Tennis Club members, third-seeded Lucke and Charles Zetterberg, 2-6, 6-3, 7-6, in the quarters. And the fourth-seeded twosome, Click and Ray Reinhard, lost their opening match 7-5, 1-6, 6-3, to Isarra and Mike Bechard, who then lost, 7-5, 6-4, in the quarters, to another unseeded tandem, Dale Geiger and Gary Kreff. Top-seeded Chuck Anderson and Stan Clark made the semis with a 6-3, 6-1 triumph over Jim Rees and Paul Schoenlaub, while second-seeded Waterhouse and Bill Geary survived a first set scare against Paul Skvarna and Roger Skinner, to advance, 4-6, 6-4, 6-1.

It's Anderson-Clark vs. Gelger-Kreff and Waterhouse-Geary vs. Cromer-Skvarna at 2 p.m. Saturday.

No surprises were in store for Doris Clark, who's in the semis in all three events in which she's top seeded. Mrs. Clark defeated Peggy Rees, 6-1, 6-2, in the women's quarters and teamed with Chuck Anderson in a 6-1, 6-2 win over Pat Parsons and Dave Griffin in the mixed doubles. She and Donna Dickenson had a bye into the final four in women's doubles.

Mrs. Clark's opponent in a semis match Friday will be Tracy Senior, the No. 3 seed, who moved up with a 6-1, 6-0 victory over Donna Watson, Dickenson reached the singles semis with a 7-6, 6-0 conquest of Gloria Jones and at 10:30 Saturday will play the winner of today's match between second-seeded Christy Stafford and Pat Parsons.

Other women's doubles semi-finalists are the No. 2 team, Margaret Overin and Karen Lucke, 6-4, 6-0, over Parsons and Karen Berry; Cathie Headley and Doris Cromer, 6-1, 6-2, over Betty DiCarlo and Enid Douglas; and Jones and Laila Low, 6-3, 6-3, over Lucille Pearsall and Evelyn Walker.

Dickenson and Clark oppose Jones and Low and Overin and Lucke meet Headley and Cromer Saturday at 1 p.m.

In the mixed doubles Clark and Anderson face third-seeded Jim and Karen Lucke at 4 p.m. Saturday. The second-seeded pair, Geoff Clark and Cathie Headley, await the winner of a match scheduled today between the fourth-seeded team of Roper-Margi Sullivan and Jim and Peggy Rees.

The Clark-Headley duo were 6-2, 6-7, 6-3 winners over Gelger and Lori Brecheen and the Luckes eased by Isarra and Pearsall, 6-0, 6-1.

Sundays finals schedule calls for the women's singles at 9, the men's at 10:30, the women's doubles at noon, the men's at 1 and the mixed at 2.

ANOTHER TOURNAMENT is under way in the local area. The Montclair Recreation Department is putting on its first tournament, with play scheduled through the week at advanced, intermediate and novice levels at the Montclair High courts. With four events — men's singles and doubles and women's singles and doubles — at each level, the schedule is a busy one. They'll be playing from the afternoon into the night today, Thursday and Friday. Saturday and Sunday starting time is 7 a.m. and semi-finals and finals matches both will be played Sunday, trophy presentations ending the day at 7 p.m.

SAYS BILLIE JEAN KING (sitting in retirement from singles play at Wimbledon): "Wimbledon belongs to me. I love that center court. I think I could do well this year if I did play singles, but I have not given it much thought thus far. I'll possibly know in two weeks how sitting in the stands and watching will affect me."

Her prediction on her successor as women's champ: Evonne Goolagong.

NBC-TV will present two 90-minute telecasts from the hallowed grounds this weekend. One will be at 2 p.m. Saturday, the other at 12:30 p.m. Sunday, both on Channel 4. Wimbledon closes down on Sundays, but tapes of early round matches are to be shown.

NEW YORK (AP) — The Ringling Bros. and Barnum and Bailey Circus didn't have to take a spring breather for hockey and basketball this time in Madison Square Garden. Both the Rangers in the National Hockey League and the Knicks in the National Basketball Association failed to make the playoffs in their respective sports.

Owens made three buckets in the final two minutes to cut the North lead to 45-43 at the buzzer. Owens led the first-half scoring with 12, but added only two more in the second half.

The North stretched its lead to as much as six in the opening minutes of the second half, but a slam dunk (a legal maneuver in the All-Star game) by Carpenter tied the score at 55-55 and drew a roar of approval from the crowd with 4:25 left in the third quarter.

But two minutes later Fossum, who blocked three shots in the game, stole the ball and dribbled half the length of the court before planting another slam shot, drawing another roar and giving the North a 61-57 edge.

Carpenter's fourth basket of the quarter tied the score at 63 with 31 seconds to go, but Sly connected with eight seconds left for a two-point North lead after three periods.

South reeled off the first six points of the final period but a steal and jump shot by Brigante, his second basket in a row, pulled the North within a point and Knight tied it at 72 with a free throw at 7:17. The score was knotted again at 74 and 76 before the North made its final move.

The North also won the halftime competition, 9-8, in a cheerleaders' free throw contest.

Jones ties 63-year-old record

By Associated Press

"As soon as I let it go, I knew it was a ball," he said.

With the slip of that pitch, the San Diego left-hander let a National League record fall out of his grasp—Christy Mathewson's monumental no-walk record established 63 years ago.

The free pass to Marc Hill leading off the eighth inning of Tuesday night's 4-2 victory over the San Francisco Giants stopped Jones' streak at 68 walkless innings.

A few moments before, he had pulled into a tie with the great Mathewson of the New York Giants by striking out Darrell Evans to close out the seventh inning. But the streak had been weighing heavily on his broad shoulders.

"I fought off the pressure for a long time but about the fifth inning it caught up with me," said Jones. "Subconsciously I'm sure it affected me. It's kind of disappointing to go that long and then end up walking the guy."

The pressure was nearly palpable in the Padres' stadium, too. When Jones struck out Evans, he received a standing ovation from the crowd of 29,940.

Then in the eighth, Jones went to a 3-2 count on Hill. The batter fouled off two straight pitches, then walked. An audible sigh of disappointment from the fans filled the stadium. Jones disgustedly kicked the dirt, let his head flap down.

"I just tried to relax and throw strikes but I kept missing low with my sinker and got behind," Jones said irritably, tugging at his cap.

Jones, who had faced 296 batters before the pass to Hill, then lost all control by walking his second batter of the inning, Larry Herdnon. Luckily it came after a double play had wiped out Hill and caused Jones no trouble.

Pirates 10, Cubs 7

Rennie Stennett smashed five hits and Al Oliver and Richie Zisk each had three, leading Pittsburgh over Chicago. With the Pirates trailing 5-0 going into the fifth inning, Stennett singled home two runs. The Pirates then took the lead with four runs in the seventh and added four more in the eighth.

Willie Stargell, Zisk and Bill Robinson each singled home a run in the seventh. Robinson drove in the tying run, and when relief pitcher Oscar Zamora took a cutoff throw and threw wildly past third base, Zisk scored the run which put the Pirates ahead to stay 6-5.

Expos 8, Phillies 3

Gary Roenicke's two-run double and solo home runs by Mike Jorgenson and Pat Scanlon helped Montreal beat Philadelphia. Right-hander Clay Kirby, who pitched hitless ball for 5 1-3 innings, earned his first victory of the season against five losses with the aid of three hitless relief innings by Dale Murray. They combined on a three-hitter.

Cardinals 3, Mets 0

St. Louis right-hander John Denny continued his mastery over New York, pitching a three-hitter over the Mets. Denny, 3-4, registered his fourth career triumph over the Mets without a loss in two seasons. He struck out four batters without issuing a walk.

A four-hit first inning ignited by Bake McBride's single gave the Cardinals a 2-0 lead and all the offense they needed. Lou Brock and Ted Simmons drove in the runs.

Astros 9, Braves 7

Bob Watson keyed a four-run rally with a two-run double in the eighth inning, leading Houston over Atlanta. Atlanta's Rowland Office extended his hitting streak to 27 games with a run-scoring double in the sixth.

Walks by Ken Boswell and Greg Gross off Frank LaCorte, 0-1, got the Houston rally started in the eighth. Cesar Cedeno drove in Boswell with a single before Watson's double scored Gross and Cedeno. Watson later scored on Enos Cabell's hit.

LV midget racer stands second

CORONA — USRC point leader Roy Cook Jr. of Mentone has four feature wins and three runnerup finishes but still can't shake La Verne's Danny McKnigh' in the title chase.

After his second place finish to Buddy Irwin at Santa Maria on June 5, Cook leads McKnight by 63 tallies. Both will be in the field at Corona Saturday night at 8 as the USRC midgets make their third appearance of the season here. Cook drives the Clancy Wright VW and McKnight will be be in the seat of the RIMCO Miller VW.

Cook and McKnight have each garnered six main event wins on the Corona half-mile dirt since USRC started competing here in 1972. McKnight is the all-time USRC feature winner with 33 and Cook follows the late Lowell Sachs (21) and Bobby Olivero (17) with his 16 victories. Cook is currently one of the hottest midget drivers in the nation. In his last two main events (two with BCRA in northern California), he has four wins and five second place spots.

Blind draw angers some Pocono drivers

MOUNT POCONO, Pa. (AP) — "Due to a rain-out..."

The words have been written many times in the short history of Pocono International Raceway, a one-time spinach farm that was well-watered if not successful.

The words appeared again on Monday on an emergency news release about qualifying for Sunday's $400,000 Schaefer 500 being washed out.

A blind draw was held instead—a draw that put young charger Johnny Parsons on the pole position, Janet Guthrie in 22nd spot, and five drivers on the hot seat.

PIR Owner Dr. Joseph Mattioli and the sanctioning U.S. Auto Club had decided one day of qualifying, Sunday, would be enough to fill the 33-car field, though it had never been done before.

Only two cars qualified Sunday, those of Dick Simon and Al Loquasto. Bob Harkey spun out trying to become the third as the rains started. Miss Guthrie passed up her attempt before the skies opened, and moved to the back of the line where her chances seemed finished.

It upset more than a few people when she lucked out on the draw.

"What it means is, you've got her car in there, which has no business being in the field, and two guys who deserve to be in the field who aren't going to make it," growled one competitor.

Miss Guthrie said she didn't care how she made the field, but she didn't want anyone just to arbitrarily put her in.

The complex draw, and the even more complex rules behind it, marked the first time the rain-plagued second-richest auto race in the world had its field filled in that way. In fact, all other USAC Indianapolis car 500-milers have been filled on performance.

Why couldn't qualifying have been extended?

"Well there's three or four reasons for that," Mattioli explained. "One is, all of our people here who work here are part-timers.

"Our firemen all have regular jobs, our clean up crews, our medical people. They work all over the country. They're racing fans basically. They make their plans on our schedule, and once we deviate from that it's very hard for them."

The participants—the drivers, mechanics, owners, entrants— didn't really care about the loss of qualifying. They would have been satisfied if Mattioli had decided to start all 35, meaning no one would get the axe.

Petitions were circulated to that effect. And Mattioli said that if all 35 entrants or their representatives agreed and signed liability releases, he would permit it.

That was stymied by Loquasto's crew chief Clint Brawner, who refused to sign because "nobody helped us in 1974 at Indy when it rained and we were left in the qualifying line."

"I wanted to see everyone sign the petition," said three-car entrant Doris King. "It would have been the first time in USAC that everybody had agreed on anything.

"That would have meant more to me than anything that we might have done in the race."

Without the releases, Mattioli wouldn't go along. He is very wary of lawsuits, as well he should be, for just one probably would destroy the track's delicate financial situation.

So a complex plan was devised from the rule book, a compendium of clauses and counter-clauses that really left Mattioli with the freedom to do anything he wanted.

Claremont cyclist injured

"I'm going to try it again in 1977," reported Nick Quackenbos of Claremont as he made his way around his Quackenbos Co. office on crutches, after crashing his 250cc Yamaha 22 miles into the recent Baja 500.

Quackenbos said the accident occurred when his bike hit a wet spot and a cloud of dust created by bikes ahead prevented him from seeing it.

Quackenbos was able to get back on the Yamaha and made the official checkpoint 2 at the 135-mile mark by 7 p.m. Friday night, and checkpoint 3 on the San Felipe Highway by 1 a.m. Saturday.

Volunteer paramedics from San Diego County gave him emergency treatment at checkpoint 3 for a cracked ankle bone and a cracked wrist bone.

Part of Quackenbos' pit crew, Frank Hungerford and Bob Olin, took him to El Centro hospital where a splint was put on the wrist, and a cast on the ankle.

Quackenbos discovered that his Yamaha had blown the front fork seals during the accident, and he had only the springs under him.

"The paramedics were super. So was my pit crew," Quackenbos said.

Believes it will hurt case against Harrises

Lawyer quizzes jury on bulletproof glass

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "I felt like I was being protected from something out there."

Questioned behind a bulletproof shield Tuesday, prospective juror Karen Turtle told the court trying Symbionese Liberation Army members William and Emily Harris that extraordinary courtroom security measures do have her a bit worried.

Defense attorneys have argued the wall-to-wall bulletproof glass separating the spectators from the participants would prejudice jurors against their clients, the former fugitive traveling companions of Patricia Hearst.

Defense attorney Leonard Weinglass questioned 12 prospective jurors about how the security courtroom was affecting their views of the case.

"I just wondered about it. What the reason was," Albert Jaramillo said, describing his initial reaction to the glass shield. "I was scared to ask why."

Superior Court Judge Mark Brandler has refused to move the proceedings to a conventional courtroom, citing a threat to kidnap Los Angeles Police Chief Edward M. Davis unless the Harrises are freed.

The Harrises, avowed members of the SLA, are on trial with the newspaper heiress on charges of kidnaping, robbery and assault, but their part of the case has been severed from hers because she is undergoing presentencing psychiatric testing ordered in her federal bank robbery trial in San Francisco.

The grand jury indictment stems from a May 1974 incident at an Inglewood, Calif., sporting goods store during which Miss Hearst is alleged to have fired a gun at the building while Harris struggled with a clerk over a pair of allegedly shoplifted socks.

By and large, the courtroom barrier confused the potential jurors. A few said they felt it wasn't necessary.

Weinglass questioned George Fields, an elderly letter carrier, about the security.

Weinglass: "Do you think you are in personal danger here."

Fields: "There is less danger with the glass here."

Q: "If the glass was removed would it be more dangerous."

A: "It would have to be."

Q: "On what do you base that."

A: "The fact that it's there."

Only one prospective juror, Sarah Miller, a former federal security employe, said she felt glad that the shield protected her. "I feel security is a good thing," she said. "Whether it's necessary or not is not for me to say."

NOTICE INVITING BIDS FOR CASH CONTRACT NO. 4593 VALLEY BOULEVARD LANDSCAPING (Walnut Area)

Notice is hereby given that sealed bids will be received by the Road Commissioner of the County of Los Angeles, in Room 180, 1540 Alcazar Street, Los Angeles, California 90033, until 9:30 a.m. on June 29, 1976; and then will be publicly opened and read in Room 193 at the above address for the installation of polyethylene film, sprinkler system, landscaping and other incidental and appurtenant work estimated to cost less than $10,000, all in accordance with the provisions of the Plans, Specifications, Notices and Instructions to Bidders therefor which are on file and open for inspection at the offices of the Board of Supervisors and the County Road Department.

The Engineer may, from time to time and without Board approval, issue addenda to the contract documents during the period of advertising for bids for the following purposes: (a) revising Prevailing Wage Scales, (b) clarifying or correcting special provisions, plans or bid proposal; provided, however, that any such addenda shall not change the original scope and intent of the project.

Purchasers of contract documents shall be notified of and furnished with copies of such addenda, either by certified mail or personal delivery, during the period of advertising.

Proposal must be submitted on forms prepared and furnished for the purpose, which may be obtained at the Information Desk in the lobby of the Los Angeles County Road Department Administration Building, 1540 Alcazar Street, Los Angeles, California 90033 at which office bidders may also purchase copies of the Plans and Specifications for the contemplated work for the price of $7.08 plus Sales Tax per set, not refundable. A mail address and a phone number must be left at the aforementioned office which the prospective bidder agrees is sufficient to reach him.

Each submitted proposal must be accompanied by a certified or cashier's check, or a surety bond, payable to the County of Los Angeles in an amount equivalent to at least ten (10) percent of the total aggregate bid price of such proposal, as a guaranty that the bidder, if his proposal be accepted, will enter into and execute the awarded contract, and furnish the required bonds in connection therewith, in accordance with the terms of the aforementioned Specifications and Instructions to Bidders. In the event that a surety bond is submitted in lieu of a check, it shall be subject to the condition that the surety thereon be approved by the County Auditor and County Counsel.

The Board of Supervisors reserves the right to reject any or all bids, and to waive technical errors and discrepancies, if to do so seems to best serve the interests of the County.

Pursuant to the provisions of Sections 1770 to 1777, inclusive, of the Labor Code of the State of California, the Board of Supervisors has ascertained the general prevailing rate of per diem wages for each craft or type of workman needed to execute the proposed contract, and it will be required that not less than said rates be paid to all such workmen employed or engaged on the work. Complete wage rate schedules are on file at the office of the Board of Supervisors and the County Road Department.

The rate of compensation for any classification not listed in the schedule, but which may be required to execute the proposed contract, shall be commensurate and in accord with the rates specified for similar or comparable classifications or for those performing similar or comparable duties.

SPECIAL INSTRUCTIONS TO BIDDERS: Bidders must satisfy themselves by personal examination of location of the proposed work and by such other means as they may prefer as to the actual conditions and requirements of the work, and shall not at any time after submission of the bid dispute, complain, or assert that there was any misunderstanding in regard to the nature or amount of work to be done.

The contractor to whom this contract is awarded will be required, before execution of the contract by the County Board of Supervisors, to file with the County Board of Supervisors surety bonds as follows:

A "Faithful Performance Bond" amounting to 100% of the total contract price is required for all contracts.

A "Payment Bond" (labor and material) amounting to 50% of the total contract price is required for all contracts which have a total contract price in excess of $10,000.

By order of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Los Angeles, State of California.

Almanac

Today is Wednesday, June 23rd, the 175th day of 1976. There are 191 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1683, William Penn signed a friendship treaty with Indians in the Pennsylvania region. The agreement was faithfully kept by both sides for more than 60 years.

On this date

In 1713, Charleston, S.C., was incorporated.

In 1722, England's Queen Anne ordered the French people in Nova Scotia to take an oath of allegiance to her government within one year or leave.

In 1836, there was a surplus in the U.S. Treasury and the $28 million was divided among 26 states.

In 1938, Congress created the Civil Aeronautics Authority to regulate air traffic.

In 1967, President Lyndon Johnson and Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin held a summit meeting in Glasboro, N.J.

Also in 1967, the Senate voted to censure Democratic Senator Thomas Dodd of Connecticut for allegedly using campaign funds for his personal benefit.

Five years ago: President Richard Nixon announced he would make the disputed Pentagon papers available to Congressional committees but with a top-secret label.

Today's birthdays: Former Secretary of State William Rogers is 63 years old. Movie and stage director and choreographer Bob Fosse is 49.

Thought for today: The best doctor in the world is the Veterinarian. He can't ask his patients what's the matter he's just got to know — humorist Will Rogers, 1879-1935.

Bicentennial footnote: The Provincial conference of committees, meeting in Philadelphia, called for the election of deputies to a Provincial Convention on July 8th.

Tests of swine flu vaccine satisfactory

WASHINGTON (AP) — The basic vaccines for the national effort to guard against swine flu came through their initial human tests with promising results and few side effects.

Scientists reported that tests with 5,186 persons indicate one standard vaccine won't do the whole job. There could be several different vaccines or combinations used to innoculate all 215 million Americans if the federal plan is completed.

"The results show it's remarkably easy to immunize people above 24 years of age," said Dr. Harry Meyer, of the Food and Drug Administration's Bureau of Biologics. "However, the results reinforce the attitude that children have to be dealt with more cautiously concerning influenza than adults."

He noted that persons 24 years or older make up two-thirds of the population.

The apprehension about innoculating children arose when test results with hundreds of youngsters 3 years and older showed that the kind of vaccine that stimulated the best reaction against flu virus also caused the most severe side effects.

Dr. David Karzon of Vanderbilt University, summarizing the tests on children, cited uncomfortable side effects such as mild fever, headache and general malaise. None of the side effects was life-threatening, he said.

"We had no dangerous reactions occur at all," Karzon stressed, "and the general acceptance of all products was good."

While saying there were no more side effects with children than with other flu vaccines, researchers said they wanted better than this average performance because of the numbers that are to be innoculated this time.

Karzon said another type of vaccine resulted in fewer side effects but wasn't as effective in generating antibodies against swine flu-like virus.

To overcome the side-effect problem, Karzon said scientists would begin testing the idea of giving booster shots of this vaccine three to four weeks after the first innocation in hopes of building up a better immune response.

With reduced doses of the more effective vaccine or a doubledose of the other, Karzon said he was "optimistic" that a good vaccine regimen for chilren would be developed before flu season next winter.
